Sunshine Charters seeks shade from competition

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Over the last 14 years Gary Dawson's Sunshine Charters has taken more than 25,000 people out to enjoy sailing on Lake Michigan, Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix.

And he hopes a new captain, a new sailboat and a proposed new agreement with the city will add many thousands more to those sailing customers.

Dawson has recently come to city officials with a request for a five-year lease that would not only guarantee the business its current commercial dock space and marketing kiosk at the Charlevoix Municipal Marina, but would also guarantee that the city would lease the second commercial slip to another sailboat for hire.

Dawson spoke to the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority at its monthly meeting Monday seeking a resolution of support for his request from the city.

Dawson explained that he is at a point where he's "kind of thinking about going down to the Caribbean and retiring."

However, Dawson said, he's considering entering into a business partnership with the Sunshine's current captain, Joshua Mack. Dawson said he and Mack are considering making a significant commitment to operating a sailboat charter business in Charlevoix by purchasing a 40-foot Mike Bell Offshore Catamaran to replace the current mono-hull Sunshine. He said the boat will likely cost about $125,000.

Dawson said the catamaran he's looking at (which has previously been used as a charter boat) would be a significant upgrade from the current boat, not only because it could carry more people (34 versus 20 now), but also because it is a more stable vessel that will provide more comfort and a greater sense of security for people who might otherwise be wary of venturing out on a cruise.

Dawson said he's willing to take on the risk of purchasing the catamaran with Mack, but he needs the assurances from the city to help reduce that risk.

"I'm willing to do this with Josh," Dawson said. "He's willing and eager, but what's important is a five-year contract that's exclusive. There isn't enough business for two sailboats."

Further making the case for the exclusive lease, in an outline of the proposal to the city, Mack points to the economic benefit Sunshine Charters provides to the city as it enhances the array of seasonal attractions the community offers to visitors.

"My wife, Gary and I are looking to commit to a possible 10-year or more endeavor to continue to provide Charlevoix with a major vacation destination activity," Mack writes. "Continuing to operate Sunshine Charters is going to be an extremely large step for us financially and a rather large risk without a commitment for support from the city."

He adds, "Another sailboat would not only cause the loss of revenue from our slip, but the other (commercial) slip as well ... having one successful business at the docks is better than having two slow or failing businesses in the downtown harbor."

Downtown Development Authority director Keith Carey noted that in an initial conversation with city manager Rob Straebel, a Michigan Waterways Commission official, at first blush, the proposal is something the commission may find acceptable, assuming the contract were put out for bid (because of the exclusivity provision).

All the authority board members who were present at Monday's meeting (mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson, Dan Barron, Kirby Dipert, Hugh Mason and Jeannine Wallace) agreed that Sunshine is an asset to the community and generally supported the idea of the agreement.

However, "playing Devil's advocate," Dipert wondered if it would be "right" for the city to give an exclusivity agreement to a commercial entity — especially one that is publicly owned.

He said many business owners, including himself, would love to have an agreement that would prevent competition.

Barron replied, "We have to view this in our experience. We've had tour boats come in here and compete against each other in the past ... The worst possible outcome is to have to charters come in here and compete against each other and then they both leave and we have no sailing charter here."

Ultimately, the board members present voted unanimously to recommend to the city council that it grant the proposed agreement that Dawson and Mack seek.

Dawson said he plans to present the proposal to the city council at its next meeting, which is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 1.

See repeats Ryan Shay Mile win

MORGAN SHERBURNE
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The fourth annual Ryan Shay Mile takes a particular strategy to win — something not lost on the runners who won the race.

Different from a race run on a track, the Ryan Shay Mile is a road mile race that includes a downhill — down U.S. 31 into Charlevoix's downtown — in its last 400 meters.

"The hill is deceiving," said Andrea Parker, who placed first in the women's race with a time of 4 minutes, 40.00 seconds. "You think it's going to be a great boost and give you a lot of speed. It does, but you have to control that speed because it's not right at the end. You still have to come off the hill and maintain."

This is the third time that Parker has run the mile, but the first she has won it.

"That's probably a first timer's mistake, is if you do try to finish (coming off the hill), you wind up just dead," said Parker, an all Big Ten runner at the University of Michigan.

Parker's fellow University of Michigan alum Katie Jazswinski, a Dexter native and all Big Ten champion who recently qualified to run in next year's Olympic trials in the marathon event, finished second with a time of 4:40.95. Dot McMahan of Rochester finished third with a time of 4:48.51.

Parker's former experience helped her win the race.

"You can't just let it go (on the downhill)," she said. "What's most important is moving your torso. Your core forward. Otherwise you're going to kick your legs out and stop yourself."

Parker is originally from [illegible], but now lives in Scottsdale, Ariz.

"It's [illegible] where it's relatively quiet and then suddenly just reach this burst [illegible]. It's great to have such good crowd participation. We have all been in races and in track meets and it's like, 'Go Andrea' and it's one person."

Experience also paid off for [illegible] with a time of [illegible].

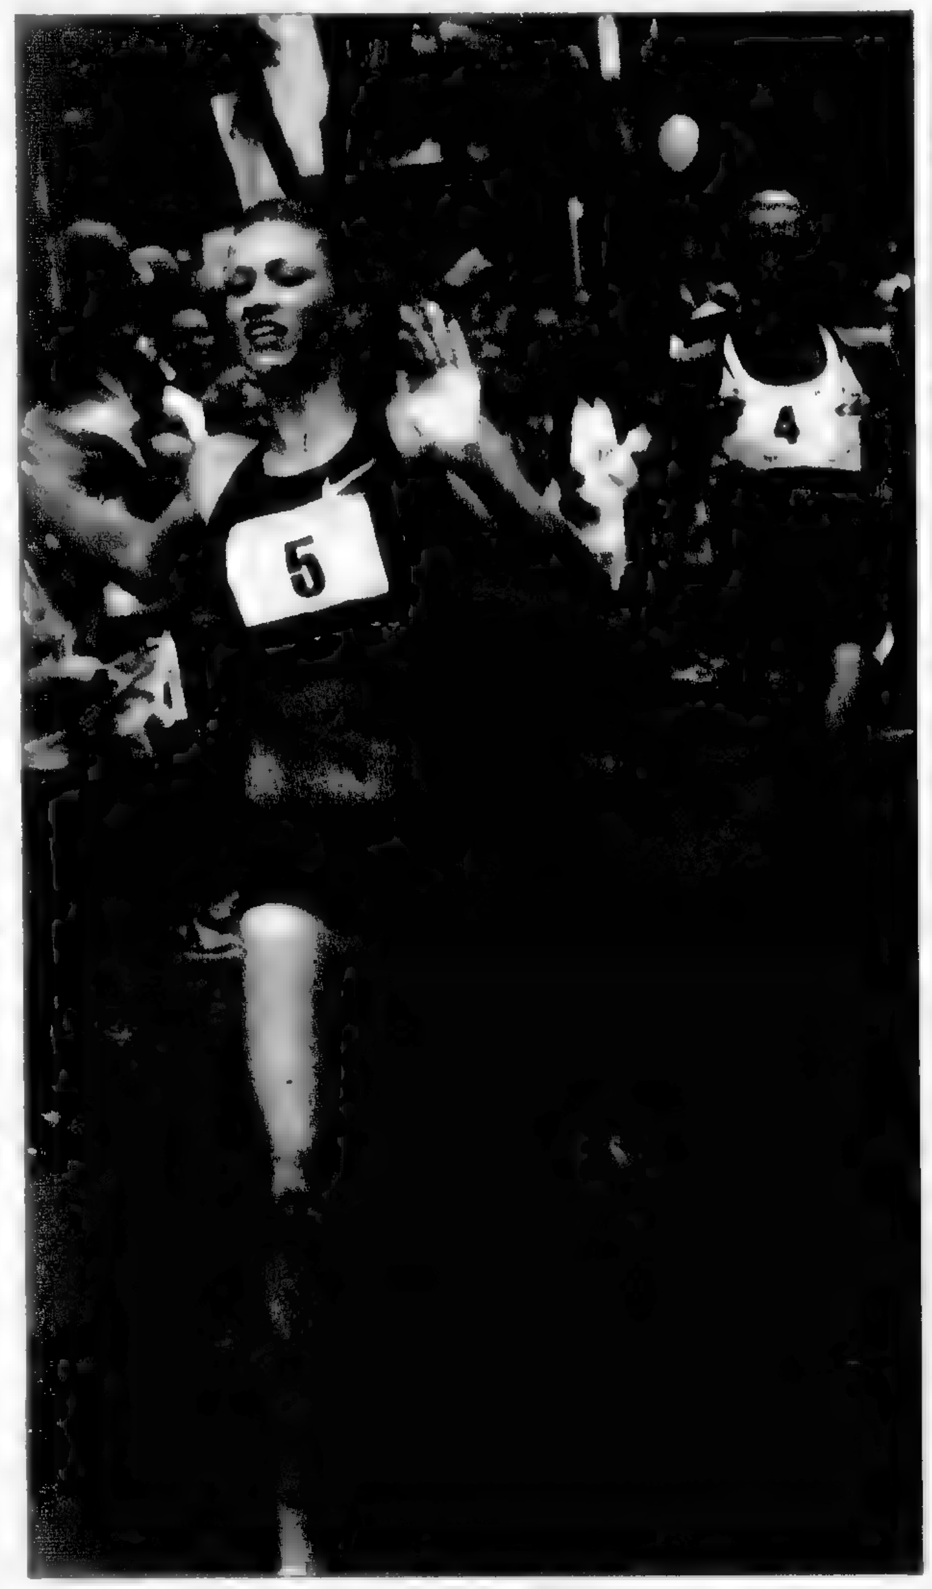
See finished in front of Charlotte, N.C.'s Matthew Elliott, a graduate of Winthrop University in Rock Hill, N.C. Elliot finished with a time of 3:58.48.

"At probably 600 meters out, (Elliott) got it going pretty hard, and then he moved on the downhill really well, but I remember from last year that the downhill, when you're starting to work out the lactic acid, (the hill) just pumps it into your legs," said See. "I knew if I could stay in control, that I would have something to finish with."

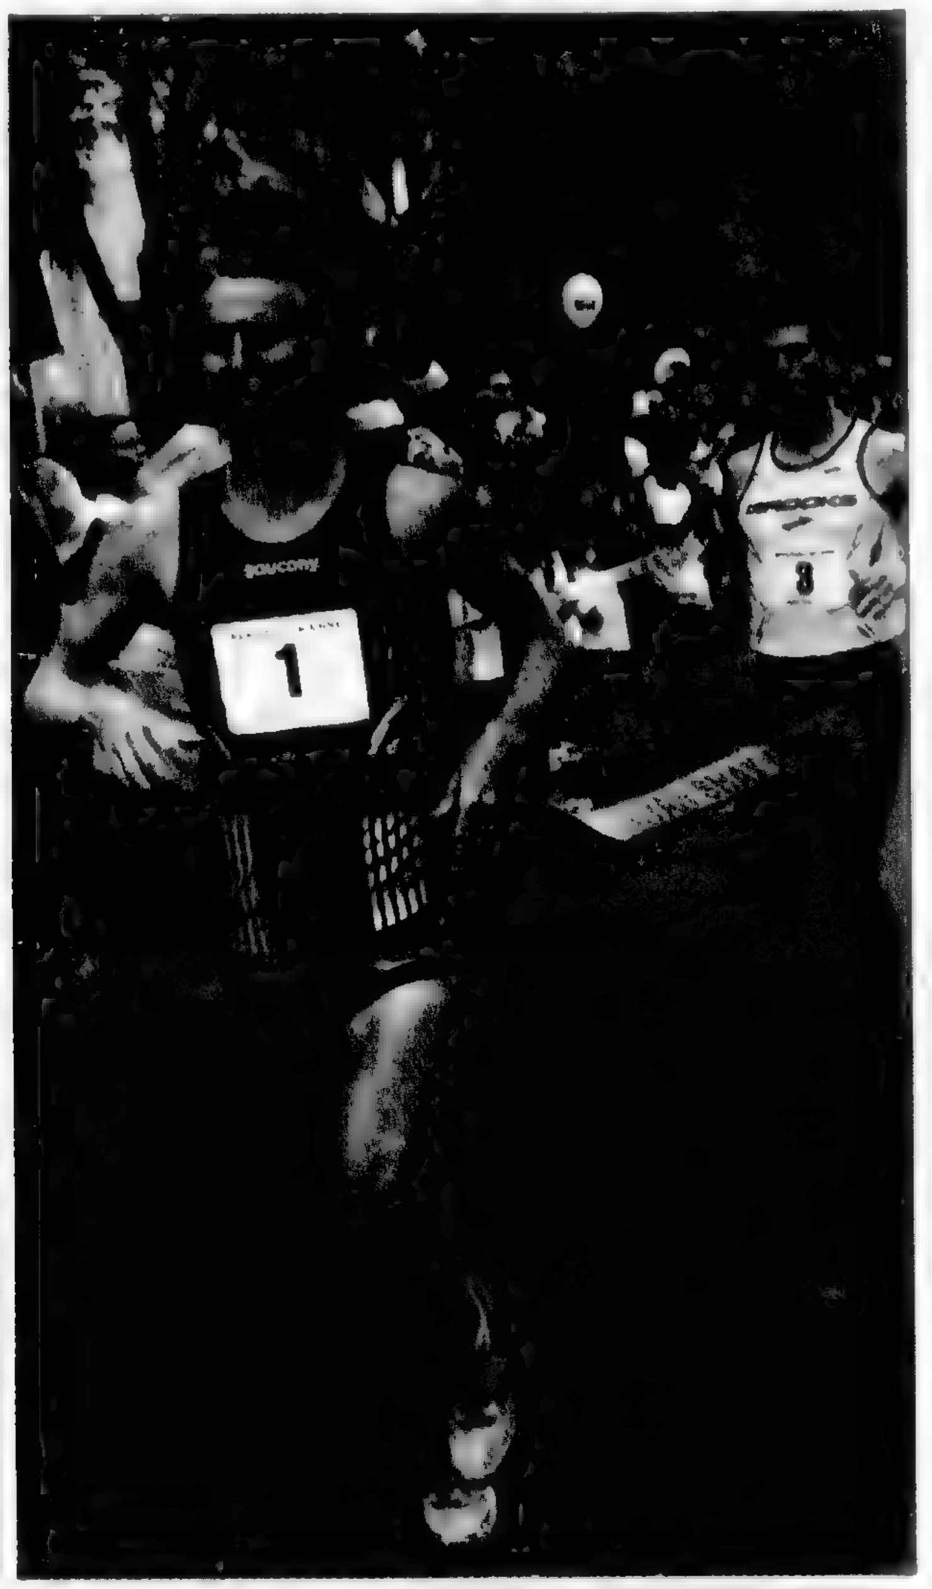
Coming in third for the men with a time of 3:59.88 was Kenya's Richard Kandie, who runs for the Duma Runners Club based just outside of Minneapolis. George Mason graduate Samuel Horn crossed the finish line in fourth place with a time of 4:00.91 and Australia's Ryan Foster, a new Penn State grad, cruised in fifth place with a time of 4:03.77.

"The great thing about this race as opposed to a track mile is in a track mile, say you have 200 meters to go: a straightaway, a turn, and a straightaway," said See. "You have to make your move on one of the two straightaways. Here, there's 300 meters to go, and you just slow and steady pick it up. It doesn't matter if you're outside somebody because you're not going to have to run the curve. That's the big difference, and I knew that from last year. I think last year just helped me out a ton."



G. RANDALL GOSS/NEWS-REVIEW

Andrea Parker of Scottsdale, Ariz. crosses the finish line of the Ryan Shay Mile in Charlevoix on Saturday with a time of 4 minutes, 40.00 seconds — just ahead of fellow University of Michigan alum Katie Jazswinski, who finished second with a time of 4:40.95.



G. RANDALL GOSS/NEWS-REVIEW

Last year's Ryan Shay Mile champion Jeff See of Middletown, Ohio, crosses the finish line first again this year at the road race in Charlevoix on Saturday. He finished with a time of 3 minutes, 58.29 seconds, just ahead of Charlotte, N.C.'s Matthew Elliott. Elliot finished with a time of 3:58.48.

Michigan PGA Senior Championships begin

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW

Lee Houtteman of Grand Traverse Resort & Spa spends a lot of time instructing, teaching and offering lessons at his own learning center in Traverse City.

On Monday, Houtteman showed a field of the state's top senior professionals a thing or two during the opening round of the Michigan PGA Senior Championship at the Charlevoix Golf & Country Club.

Houtteman carded an opening-round 4-under par 68 to take a two-shot lead into the second and final day today, Tuesday. He leads Frank McAuliffe of the Kendall Academy of Golf in Ypsilanti, who shot 2-under 70.

In third pace is Randy Erskine of Great Oaks Country Club in Rochester, who fired an opening round 1 under 71.

Five seniors are tied for fourth place, all at even-par 72, including Dave Kendall of the Kendall Academy, Robert Makoski of Grosse Ile Golf & Country Club, Ron Beurmann of the Country Club of Jackson, John Nolan of the Van Dyke Sports Center, and Ray Glen, a PGA life member who resides in Rochester Hills.

Houtteman, who recently teamed with 2008 PGA Professional National Champion and six-time Michigan Open Champion Scott Hebert to win the 2011 State PGA Pro Pro Championship at Shanty Creek Resort in Bellaire, was named Teacher of the Year by the Northern Michigan PGA in 2005 and has won multiple Player of the Year awards in Michigan.

Houtteman, who's also been nominated a Top 50 instructor by Golf Digest, is a five time PGA National Club Professional Championship qualifier and has had multiple top 10 finishes in the Michigan Open, Michigan PGA, and Michigan Section Match Play.

McAuliffe, who joined the Kendall Academy in March, is the 2010 Golf Professional of the Year as voted by the Michigan PGA. McAuliffe also captured the 2007 Michigan PGA State Pro-Am at Boyne Highlands as he partnered with son Frank McAuliffe IV.

Erskine is a former University of Michigan standout who played on the PGA Tour in the 1970s and '80's, is a five-time Michigan Open champion, and a member of the Michigan Golf Hall of Fame.

Barry Redmond of the Boyne Golf Academy shot 2-over 74 and was the top finisher among area pros after the opening round. Dave Mocini, the owner/general manager of the Charlevoix Golf & Country Club, shot 78, while lifetime member Larry Mancour of Oden shot 87.

The 36-hole stroke-play tournament was expected to conclude at approximately 2:30 p.m. Tuesday — too late for results to be included in this week's edition of the Courier. (See www.charlevoixcourier.com for updates. In addition to the winner, the next top six finishers will qualify for the 2011 Senior PGA Professsional National Championship Oct. 6-9 in Virginia.

Michigan Women's Amateur

Sarah Johnson of Wixom shot a 4-under Monday for the first-round lead in the 95th Michigan Women's Amateur at Prestwick Village Golf Club in Highlands.

Johnson, who plays at Eastern Michigan and won the 2011 Michigan-American Conference tournament, got to 3 under through her first four holes and never faltered. She made five birdies against just one bogey on the day.

Andrea Clark of Jackson and Sarah Hoffman of Saline both shot even-par 72 and trail Johnson by four shots, while three players — Gabrielle Yurik of Oakland, Ella Pendy of Grosse Pointe Farms and Carly Saint-Onge of Marquette, shot 1-over 73. Defending champion Natalie Brehm of Mount Pleasant shot a 3-over 75 and stands eight shots behind the leader.

The tournament was scheduled for 18 holes of stroke play Tuesday, with the top 32 advancing to begin match play on Wednesday, July 27.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX

Ordinance No.751 of 2011

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE CODE OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX BY ADDING A NEW ARTICLE V TO TITLE I, CHAPTER 7, AND RENUMBERING MULTIPLE SECTIONS OF TITLE I, CHAPTERS 7 AND 8 .

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:
SECTION 1. Addition of New Article V. Planning Commission to Title I, Chapter 7 of the Charlevoix City Code.
A new Article V. Planning Commission is hereby added to Title I, Chapter 7 of the City Code and shall read as follows:
1.400 Creation.
There shall be a City of Charlevoix Planning Commission pursuant to Act 33 of the Michigan Public Acts 2008, as amended, being the Michigan Planning Enabling Act (MCL 125.3801 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the Planning Commission with the powers and duties as therein set forth and as hereinafter provided. This article shall be officially known and described as the "City of Charlevoix Planning Commission Ordinance."

1.401 Membership.
The Planning Commission shall consist of nine members appointed by the Mayor and subject to approval by a majority vote of the City Council. To be qualified to be a member and remain a member of the commission, the following qualifications must be met:

(a) Shall be a qualified elector of the City of Charlevoix, as defined in Section 1.407.
(b) Shall attend training for commission members, pursuant to Section 1.402 after an individual's first appointment and before reappointment;
(c) Shall meet the conditions provided for each individual member in subsections 2, 3, and 4.

Members shall be appointed for three-year terms. If a vacancy occurs, the vacancy shall be filled for the unexpired term in the same manner as provided for an original appointment such that the terms of one-third of all commission members continue to expire each year. A member shall hold office until his or her successor is appointed.

The membership shall be representative of the important segments of the community, such as the economic, governmental, educational, and social development of the City of Charlevoix, in accordance with the major interests as they exist in the city, such as agriculture, natural resources, recreation, education, public health, government, transportation, industry, commerce, healthcare, building trades, hospitality, retail, finance, insurance, real estate, cultural, historic, and recreational resources.

The membership shall also be representative of the entire geography of the City of Charlevoix to the extent practicable.

The City shall fill any vacancy in the membership of the commission for the unexpired terms in the same manner as the initial appointment.

The transition from the previous City of Charlevoix Planning Commission and the commission established in this article shall be gradual and shall take place over the next three years. The City shall continue to make annual appointments, appointing approximately one-third of the membership of the commission as specified in this article, so that three years from the effective date of this article the membership, membership representation, and number of members have completed the transition to fully comply with this article. All other aspects of this article shall have immediate effect.

1.402 Training.
Appointed members of the Planning Commission shall attend educational programs designed for training members of Michigan planning commissions if the adopted City of Charlevoix budget for that fiscal year includes funds to pay for tuition, registration, and travel expenses for the training. Nothing in this paragraph shall prevent a member who has not had training from finishing his or her term of office unless the member resigns or is removed by action of the City Council. The member shall be ineligible for reappointment at the conclusion of the term of office if they did not attend training. The Planning Commission shall include in its bylaws what training programs qualify to meet this requirement.

1.403 Removal from office.
The City Council may remove a member of the Planning Commission for misfeasance, malfeasance, or nonfeasance in office upon written charges and after a public hearing. Failure to disclose a potential conflict of interest as required by Section 1.404(4) shall constitute malfeasance in office.

1.404 Meetings
The Planning Commission shall hold not less than four regular meetings each year, and by resolution shall determine the time and place of meetings. Unless the bylaws provide otherwise, a special meeting of the commission may be called by the chairperson or by two other members, upon written request to the secretary. Unless the bylaws provide otherwise, the secretary shall send written notice of a special meeting to commission members not less than 48 hours before the meeting.

The business that the Planning Commission may perform shall be conducted at a public meeting of the commission held in compliance with the Open Meetings Act, Act 267 of the Michigan Public Acts of 1976 (MCL 15.261 to 15.275). Public notice of the time, date, and place of a regular or special meeting shall be given in the manner required by that act.

A writing prepared, owned, used, in the possession of, or retained by the Planning Commission in the performance of an official function shall be made available to the public in compliance with the Freedom of Information Act, Act 442 of the Michigan Public Acts of 1976 (MCL 15.231 to 15.246).

Before casting a vote on a matter on which a member may reasonably be considered to have a conflict of interest, the member shall disclose the potential conflict of interest to the Planning Commission. The member is disqualified from voting on the matter if so provided by the bylaws or by a majority vote of the remaining members of the Planning Commission.

1.405 Powers and Duties
Master Plan.
The Planning Commission shall make and approve a Master Plan as a guide for development within its planning jurisdiction. The planning jurisdiction includes areas within the city and may also include any areas outside of the city that, in the judgment of the commission, are related to planning for the city.
In preparation of the Master Plan, the Planning Commission shall do all of the following, as applicable:
Make careful and comprehensive surveys and studies of present conditions and future growth within the planning jurisdiction with due regard to its relation to neighboring jurisdictions.
Consult with representatives of adjacent local units of government in respect to their planning so that conflicts in master plans and zoning may be avoided.

The Master Plan shall also include information pertinent to the future development of the planning jurisdiction as detailed in Act 33 of the Michigan Public Acts of 2008. (MCL 125.3833 (2)).
Preparation and adoption of and amendments to the Master Plan shall follow the procedures established in Act 33 of the Michigan Public Acts of 2008 (MCL 125.3839-125.3845).

The Planning Commission shall make an annual report to City Council concerning its operations and the status of planning activities, including recommendations regarding actions by the City Council related to planning and development.

Capital improvements program.
Upon adoption of the Master Plan, the Planning Commission shall annually prepare a capital improvements program (CIP) of public structures and improvements, with the assistance of staff.
The CIP shall show those public structures and improvements, in the general order of their priority for the ensuing six-year period, based upon the requirements of the local unit of government for all types of public structures and improvements.

Review of plats.
Upon adoption of the Master Plan, the Planning Commission shall review and make recommendations on plats, after publishing and holding a public hearing.

1.406 Approval, ratification, and reconfirmation.
All official actions taken by the City of Charlevoix Planning Commission preceding the commission created by this article are hereby approved, ratified and reconfirmed. Any project, review, or process taking place at the effective date of this article shall continue with the commission created by this article, subject to the requirements of this article, and shall be deemed a continuation of any previous City of Charlevoix Planning Commission. Blood drives — Officials with the American Red Cross are continuing their appeal to help replenish the critically low local supply of certain blood types. Officials said donations in May and June dropped to the lowest levels the Red Cross has seen during this timeframe in more than a dozen years. Red Cross officials said demand is high for all blood type, but particularly for types O negative, which can be used for any patient. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

Final cut

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

As stories of wizards, superheroes and cute little blue characters have played for audiences recently on the screens at Charlevoix's downtown movie theater, a drama playing out behind the business's curtains has come to a less-than-happy ending for its owner.

Officials with Charlevoix State Bank recently took possession of the Charlevoix Cinema III after its long-time owner Bill Supernaw was unable to work out a deal to salvage his struggling business from the jaws of a mortgage default.

In June Supernaw told the Courier that he needed to come up with about $50,000 by early July to prevent a bank foreclosure on his three-screen theater on Antrim Street.

Supernaw said the theater's money troubles have come from a combination of rising costs, overall declines in movie attendance across the industry, a sluggish economy and the seasonal nature of the economy in Charlevoix.

He said over the past two years his ticket sales have been down by about 25 percent and that about 70 percent of his annual business is during a 6-8 week period in the summer.

Charlevoix State Bank Chief Executive Officer Mike Hinkle said in mid-July, when it became clear that Supernaw would not be able to come up with an arrangement to get current on his mortgage, bank officials began taking over operations at the theater.

The bank has hired Teresa Hart, who previously worked at the theater with Supernaw to manage the business while bank officials seek a buyer. Hart is also the city's part-time recreation director.

Hinkle said Supernaw and Hart worked together to make sure the transition in ownership was seamless.

"We've been fortunate that (Hart) could hit the ground running," Hinkle said.

Hinkle said the bank does not want to be in the business of running a movie theater and is eager to find a buyer

Woman charged with drug delivery causing death

Shelly Klomp could face up to life in prison if convicted

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVEIW
STAFF WRITER

An East Jordan woman appeared in a Charlevoix courtroom recently to face charges of causing a recent drug death.

Shelly Jean Klomp, 46, appeared Tuesday, July 26, in Charlevoix County's 90th District Court to be arraigned on the felony charge of delivery of a controlled substance causing death. She faces up to life in prison, if convicted.

East Jordan Police allege that Klomp, of East Jordan's Echo Street, provided the victim, Laura Grogan, with at least one morphine pill on March 2, the day after Grogan gave Klomp a ride home from a Traverse City rehabilitation facility. The pair watched movies that evening in Klomp's living room, where Grogan fell asleep on the floor, a police affidavit filed in the case.

Klomp

Klomp went to lunch the following day and when she returned home, found Grogan unresponsive on the floor, where she had remained from the previous night, according to the affidavit.

Klomp and Grogan spent five days together at the Traverse City rehabilitation facility, authorities said.

Shaynee Fanara, Charlevoix County's chief assistant prosecutor, said the case is a serious one and precisely the reason the county has a drug death team to investigate such incidents

"It's a death and we have a prescription problem throughout our nation and if it's causing the untimely death of somebody, we have to use all resources to get a conviction for the family," Fanara said.

Klomp will be defended by Traverse City attorney Michael Lewis. He told 90th District Court Judge Richard May that it will take some time to investigate the case against his client and prepare her defense.

May scheduled a pre-trial conference for Aug. 23 and a preliminary hearing on Aug. 30. May continued Klomp's $5,000 bond.

"We need to determine if there's a provable cause of death and if the ingestion of morphine is the cause of death," Lewis said outside the courtroom.

Lewis said he will consult with a pathologist, toxicologist or pharmacologist to review Grogan's autopsy report. He also said his client is not guilty.

"She denies emphatically that she gave morphine to anybody," Lewis said.

According to the affidavit, Klomp told authorities she receives morphine pills from her former husband.

No additional charges in this case are expected at this time, Fanara said.

Beaver Island resident seriously injured in motorcycle crash

BEAVER ISLAND — A Beaver Island resident was seriously injured when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a mini-van Wednesday, July 27.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider identified the motorcycle rider as Robert Bellingar, 20. Bellingar was treated by medical crews on Beaver Island and then airlifted to Munson Medical Center in Traverse City by a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter crew from Air Station Traverse City. Later in the day, Friday, police officials said Bellingar was listed in fair condition. He remained listed in fair condition at Munson Medical Center on Monday.

Sheriff's office officials said the crash happened at about 8 p.m. on Gull Harbor Drive near Lake Street.

Police said Bellingar was riding a Honda "dirt bike" southbound on Gull Harbor Drive when he rounded a corner too fast and collided with an oncoming Dodge Caravan driven by Madison Shannon, 16, of Illinios.

Police added that speed appeared to be a factor in the crash, but alcohol was not involved.

Fire destroys East Jordan home

EAST JORDAN — Fire officials say an electrical problem may have caused a fire that destroyed an East Jordan home on Third Street Wednesday, July 27

East Jordan Fire Chief Glen Thorman said firefighters were called around 12:30 p.m. to the 100-block of Third Street, where a fire had burned for some time. Nobody was home and a neighbor called for emergency responders after noticing smoke, Thorman said.

"We were they just shy of five hours," he said.

Thorman said some personal items may be saved from the rubble, but the building likely is a total loss. Nobody was injured in the fire, though the owners' three cats died in the blaze, Thorman said.

Boyne City Fire Department also assisted at the scene.

Lake Charlevoix boating crash under investigation

Marine deputies with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office are investigating a boating accident that happened on Lake Charlevoix late Saturday. No injuries were reported.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said the crash happened at about 10:30 p.m. near Hayden Point in Eveline Township. Deputies said Mark Arthurs, 45 of West Bloomfield was operating his 23.5-foot motorboat in the area when his vessel struck a moored 22-foot Tanzer sailboat owned by Anthony Sasso, 57, of Okemos.

Deputies cited Arthurs for leaving the scene without reporting the accident. No one was aboard the Sasso's sailboat at the time of the incident. A sheriff's office release did not indicate if there was any damage to eithe vessel.

Deputies were assisted at the scene by the U.S. Coast Guard crews from both Charlevoix and Traverse City. The accident remains under investigation.

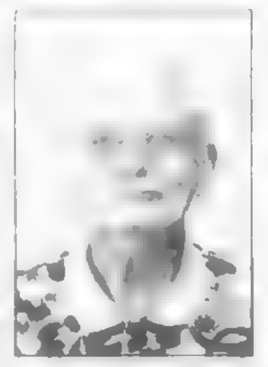
Author analyzes our adjective addiction



EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

As a child I was often admonished to "watch my language." The warning usually came after an errant "darn" or even the occasional "damn" had escaped my lips. Even an inappropriate adjective might bring the warning. "Watch your language, young man," some adult would say. And I learned to watch it. I still do. Apparently, such advice is seldom imparted to people in any effective way.

Not only political figures, but public figures of almost any stripe all too often use language in ways that are specifically intended to arouse fear, loathing, anger or just confusion. Inflammatory adjectives are most to blame. This is not a new phenomenon. At least in political speech, it dates back to the founding fathers, who were excoriated and verbally insulted in ways that are almost frightening.

Nonetheless, it is worth paying attention to the adjectives used, even if only to recognize and ignore them.

There is no such thing as "government" in the usual language of today. There is bloated government, out-of-control government, excessive government and overly-extravagant government. I keep hoping someone will talk eventually about how much government would be wise to have, or specifically what kind of government would be best for the country. Less government is not the universal answer to the question of how much.

There seems to be no such thing as simply "taxes." There are burdensome taxes. There are job-killing taxes. There are unfair taxes, as well as several other negative kinds. No one seems interested in deciding which taxes and how much and for what purposes. Taxes could, of course always be lower, but the end state of no taxes at all is simply nonsense. Taxes are the cost of living in a civilized society.

Even schools suffer from adjectives. There are failing schools or even failed schools. There are elitist schools. There are too-costly schools, where out of control teachers are demanding excessive increases in pay and privileges.

There are no "subsidies," there are only excessive subsidies or wasteful subsidies. There are no unadjectivised regulations. All the same adjectives used for taxes can be applied to regulations, with the same fear-inducing outcome. I long for someone who has learned to "watch their language" to tell us which regulations are good and useful, which subsidies are generally beneficial, which taxes are necessary for communal life, and how schools could be better.

Maybe Ernest Hemingway was right about adjectives. He told aspiring writers to edit their work by first substituting "damn" for each of the adjectives they had written and then go back and cross out all the "damns." Ernest must have heard his elders telling him to "watch your language, young man."

Football camp wrap-up

Charlevoix's Rayder Football Youth Camp concluded its 2011 edition last week with special guest former University of Michigan All-American offensive lineman Jon Jansen who offered instruction and spoke with campers about the importance of hard work both on and off the football field. This year's camp had 38 participants, the highest number of campers in the eight-year history of the summer clinic. Jansen also joined Rayder coaches in providing instruction to campers. Jansen was a second-round draft pick of the Washington Redskins in 1999 and spent 10 years as a mainstay on their offensive line before concluding his NFL career with a one-year stint in Detroit. The Rayder Football Youth Camp is a two-evening youth football program that seeks to develop skills in all aspects of football including passing, catching, blocking, tackling and position-specific techniques. The camp is open to youths entering grades 4-8 and is staffed by Rayder high school, middle school and Pop Warner football coaches.

LETTER to the editor

Red Cross official apologizes for delays during recent blood drive

Editor:

On behalf of the American Red Cross, I would like to apologize to the community members who came out to donate blood at the July 14 Community Reformed Church blood drive in Charlevoix. The wait times our donors experienced were much longer than anticipated. I would like to personally apologize for any inconveniences that may have occurred as a result of unexpected delays.

Our blood donors are a vital link in the process allowing the American Red Cross to ensure critically ill patients receive the blood they need. While we work hard to plan our blood drives and to appropriately staff them to meet the goal that has been set, on occasion, unexpected issues arise – such as staff illness -and long waits occur.

Whether your readers were able to donate blood at the July 14 American Red Cross blood drive or not, thank you! It is supporters, like them, who help the American Red Cross succeed in our life-saving mission.

In order to ensure successful drives in the future, I encourage all eligible donors in our community to make an appointment to donate blood by calling 1-800-RED-CROSS (733-2767) or visiting redcrossblood.org. Thank you for all you do to support our mission to help save and improve lives.

Sincerely,

Biz Bauer

THEATER

for the business, but he said bank leaders recognize the importance of the theater to the downtown businesses and to the community at large.

"We're going to be looking to sell it, but not in a fire sale manner — more in a managed manner," he said. "The theater is great for the town and we think it is still a viable business."

To that end, Hinkle said, the bank is planning to do some long-needed maintenance on the facility.

"It doesn't do anyone any good to shut it down. We're going to put some money into it — do some painting and fixing up — and work to improve the operation.

For his part, Supernaw said he was trying all along — and is still trying — to find a business arrangement that will allow him to keep the theater.

Supernaw said the theater's become so much a part of his life, he's not sure what he'll do if it ends up that his days owning it are truly behind him.

"I don't have words to describe it," Supernaw said Monday.

Supernaw has been involved in running a theater in downtown Charlevoix since 1972 when he and his cousin bought the single screen theater at 220 Bridge Street. Later, in the mid-80s Supernaw bought his cousin out and in 1995 he moved the theater to its current location where he made a three-screen theater out of a former car dealership.

Hart, who started working for at Supernaw's first theater when she was 12 and worked for him for the next 23 years, said her main focus will be on giving the facility a fresh look.

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday approved a measure that may allow a well-known sailing charter company to obtain the long-term, competition-free dock space lease it is seeking.

In a unanimous vote, the council directed city staff to draw up a "request for proposal" that generally mirrors a request from Sunshine Charters for a long-term lease with the city for its current dock space and kiosk at the city marina.

Gary Dawson, who has owned and operated Sunshine Charters out of the marina for the past 14 years recently told city officials that he is planning to retire to the Caribbean, but is hoping to keep Sunshine Charters afloat through a new business partnership with its current captain Joshua Mack.

Dawson explained that the business plan calls for Mack and his wife to handle all day-to-day operations and the purchase of a 40-foot Mike Bell offshore catamaran to replace the current mono-hull Sunshine. The new vessel will cost about $125,000, Mack told the city council Monday.

Dawson said the catamaran he's looking at would be a significant upgrade from the current boat, not only because it could carry more people (34 versus 20 now), but also because it is a more stable vessel that will provide more comfort and a greater sense of security for people who might otherwise be wary of venturing out on a cruise.

Both Dawson and Mack have pointed to the business as a major tourist draw to the city.

The men are asking the city for a five year lease that would include an agreement that the city would not lease the other commercial slip (which is currently occupied by a power boat charter company) to another sailing charter company.

Dawson and Mack said there would not likely be enough business to support two sailing charter businesses, and they are making their request in an effort to reduce some of the risk associated with the purchase of the new sailboat.

Recently city officials have heard from Michigan Waterways Commission representatives who gave their tentative nod to the arrangement — provided that the city follow a process whereby it seeks competitive bids for the lease agreement.

City manager Rob Straebel said if there ended up being more than one bid, the city council would not be required to accept the highest dollar amount, but could opt for the bid it feels is in the best interest of the city.

Currently Sunshine pays $100 per foot for dock space. For the its current vessel, that's $4,500 per year.

Straebel said the bidding process will probably take place in the next 6-8 weeks.

In other business, the board approved a bid from Al Shindorf Builders, Inc. of Charlevoix for $24,500 to repair the roof and paint the clubhouse at the city-owned Charlevoix Golf Club. City officials had originally set aside $28,000 for the work.

City staff noted that the work on the clubhouse has been put off for several years because of budget constraints.

The board also approved a request from the Charlevoix Historical Society to place an informational kiosk at the edge of East Park near the intersection of Bridge and Clinton streets. The kiosk provides a brief description of the society, gives directions to the nearby Harsha House museum and shows several historical photos showing what a person standing at the location of the kiosk might have seen at various times in history.

In his report to the council, Straebel noted that work has begun on the Meech Street reconstruction project. He said plans call for crews to begin working in the Meech Street/U.S. 31 intersection on Sunday, Aug. 7. He said the work could cause some minor traffic delays in the area for about five days.

Straebel also said he and city planner Mike Spencer are working to put together a special meeting later this month that would include the council, city planning commission and the Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees and the township planning commission so that the four boards can discuss how they wish to proceed as they craft their respective medical marijuana regulations. Both the township and the city are in the midst of six-month moratoriums on medical marijuana businesses, which were passed to allow leaders from both municipalities to draft regulatory ordinances. A date for the combined meetings has not yet been set.

Charlevoix cyclist injured in crash

A Charlevoix-area man was injured when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a passing car early Sunday

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider identified the injured cyclist as Donald Van Suilichem, 61. Van Suilichem was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was treated for his injuries and released.

Police said the crash happened at about 8 a.m. on Boyne City-Charlevoix Road near U.S. 31.

Deputies said Alicia Drost, 20, of Charlevoix reported that was traveling east on Boyne City-Charlevoix Road when she came around a curve into the sun. Police said Drost reported that she was momentarily blinded by the glare of the sun on the wet pavement and as she reached up to pull the vehicle's sun visor down, she struck something. She realized it was a cyclist when she turned around, police said.

Police sad Van Suilichem was also traveling east on Boyne City-Charlevoix Road at the time of the crash.

Deputies were assisted at the scene by the Charlevoix Township Fire Department and the Charlevoix Ambulance. Schneider also offered his thanks to a private citizens who stopped and rendered aid at the scene until emergency service workers could arrive. On Monday Schneider said the incident remains under investigation, but the investigating officer is expecting to issue a some type of moving violation citation to Drost.

LOOKING BACK…

The third bridge across the channel leading to Lake Michigan was the first of three swing bridges. It was erected in 1878, placed precisely in the middle of the channel, and lasted until 1901. At first it was painted a brilliant red. The bridge was supported by a circle of round metal pilings. It rode on a turntable activated by a huge "key" placed in a hole in the roadbed that led to a worm-gear mechanism. This key, 16 feet long and four feet high, could be turned by two men, but the best number was four. There never seemed to be a lack of volunteers on hand whenever a boat needed to pass through. In May of 1885 alone they turned the bridge 717 times. The key is now on display in Hoffman Park on Park Avenue near Bridge Street.

This image is included in the Charlevoix Historical Society's new fully narrated DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan — A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades," and its new illustrated publication "Charlevoix's Channel Bridges." Both are available at the society's Harsha House Museum, 103 State St. next to the Congregational Church, 1-4 p.m. Monday-Saturday.

Plumm

George William "Moe" Plumm, 84, of Charlevoix, died Thursday, July 28, 2011, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan. Funeral mass took place at be 3 p.m., Monday, Aug. 1, at St. Mary Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Matthew A. Wigton officiated. Visitation took place from 6-7:30 p.m., Sunday, at the Winchester Funeral Home, where the Rosary was recited at 7:30 p.m.

George was born Dec. 6, 1926, in Bellaire, the son of Forrest and Mabel (McDonald) Plumm. His family moved to Charlevoix in 1932, and Moe attended Charlevoix Public Schools through the 11th grade, when he moved to Brimley, graduating from high school there in 1945. He was an avid athlete and made sports his favorite subject.

He entered the U.S. Army and served in an elite honor and color corps of MPs. A bugler, he attended all Army festivals, parades, and played taps at funerals. After being discharged in 1947, he returned to Charlevoix where he married his high school sweetheart, Maxine McKenzie on Sept. 13, 1947.

George's love for the Great Lakes led him to become a yacht captain. He piloted yachts for J.P. Wilson and I.T. Quarstrom. He later worked for John McGott, managing the Water's Edge Resort, and working on boats until his retirement, because of blindness. He truly loved the water, and after he couldn't see, still enjoyed the smell and sound of the lakes.

George was a member of St. Mary Church, the Knights of Columbus, American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post, #226, where he was a two-term post commander, and was a third ward Charlevoix city councilman.

George is survived by his wife, Maxine; daughter, Jayne (Gary) Almonrode of Nashville, Tenn.; son, Patrick Plumm of Houston, Texas; five grandchildreh; four great-grandchildren, sister's in law, Betty McKenzie, Thelma McKenzie, Wanda Plumm, and Gertrude Plumm. He was preceded in death by his brothers, Orlo, Robert, and John, and sister, Maxine.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Northland Library Cooperative (for the blind and physically handicapped) 220 West Clinton, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Bottomley

Nancy was born in Pontiac, Mich. to Fritz B. and Doris Ilene (Specht) Kirk on May 27, 1940.

Nancy graduated from Royal Oak George A. Dondero High School in 1958. While in attendance there she was a member of the National Honor Society and was president of both Junior Achievement and Future Nurses.

Following high school she earned a scholarship to Wayne State University's School of Nursing. She graduated from WSU with her bachelors in nursing in 1962.

On June 15, 1963, she married Douglas Lee Bottomley in Royal Oak, Mich. To this union were born four children Michele Lynn, Richard James, Robert Frederick, and Laura Anne.

In the early '70s Nancy taught expectant parent classes at Otsego Memorial Hospital. When in 1975, she moved to Bellaire, Mich. she began working at the health department. At that time, she was the only public health nurse in Antrim County. Her duties were varied, from well-baby care to school nursing to treating sick and disabled clients in their homes. In 1979, she was promoted to home health coordinator, a new position at the health department.

Nancy returned to college in 1983 and in May of 1985 received her master of arts in nursing administration from the University of Michigan.

Upon completed of her degree, Nancy again returned to the health department, and at that time, a hospice was getting organized in Charlevoix. Nancy represented the health department on the hospice planning board to establish Hospice of Northwest Michigan, then called Charlevoix County Hospice. By the early 1990s, home health clients wanted nurses, therapists, and aides to continue to care for them when their doctors recommended hospice and it was decided the time was right to launch a certified hospice program in the health department's four counties and it could not have been done without the volunteers from Hospice of Northwest Michigan. The two organizations have been partnering ever since.

Nancy retired as the director of adult health and aging services in January of 2006. She managed home health and hospice programs for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department for Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties. She touched many lives in the 25 years she worked for the health department.

Nancy volunteered her time at Good Samaritan in Ellsworth, was a member of the Central Lake Library Book Club, played in two golf leagues at Antrim Dells and one at Shanty Creek, was a member of the Chain O Lakes Quilters, Central Lake and Little Traverse Bay Quilter's Guild, Petoskey in which she was co-chair.

Nancy is survived by her two daughters Michele 'Shelly' (Todd) Derenzy of Central Lake; Laura Bottomley (Zach) Brown of Charlevoix; her grandchildren Richard Cass Derenzy of Chicago; Erica Michele Derenzy (Jason Luneack) of Bellaire; JJ Bottomley, Devon Michele Bottomley, and Mya Anne Brown, of Charlevoix; her great-grandson Patrick Kenneth Luneack II, her sister Diana Gange of Alpharetta, Georgia, nieces, nephews, cousins, in-laws and many friends.

She was preceded in death by her two sons, Richie and Bobby, her former husband Douglas Bottomley, her parents Fritz and Doris Kirk, and a sister Karen Sue Kirk Dickinson.

The funeral took place at 11 a.m. Friday, July 29 at The First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. Burial at Fairview Cemetery, Gaylord followed. The family requests donations be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, 220 W. Garfield, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. Arrangements were handled by the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes.

Rebecca Allen Bour Rogalla:
May 19, 1952 - July 22, 2011

Rogalla

Rebecca Allen Bour Rogalla, 59, of Charlevoix, formerly of Owosso, died peacefully Friday, July 22, 2011, at Hiland Cottage, Hospice of Little Traverse Bay, Petoskey.

Rebecca was born in Owosso on May 19, 1952. She graduated from Owosso High School in 1970. She then attended and graduated from Kendall School of Design in Grand Rapids, receiving several awards and honors for her creative talents.

In 1972, she married Willard Martineau and moved to Charlevoix. Rebecca began a 20 year career working with artist, Norman Brumm, that included managing the Norman Brumm Studio. She was instrumental in moving the studio from Norwood to Charlevoix, and in designing the art displays in the new studio.

In 1990 she married Edward Rogalla, moved into the Garfield Street home and continued to live in Charlevoix while they owned and managed the Osceloa Inn in Reed City.

Rebecca had a wonderful ability to take the ordinary and make it into a unique artistic experience. Her love of nature inspired art showed in her home decorations, her yard, flower gardens, her gifts, notes, and cards. Her style of dress and jewelry always showcased her playful happy creative spirit.

Rebecca loved the sun and water. She loved walking the beaches of Lake Michigan, Lake Charlevoix, and Gulf Shores, Ala. She could always be found picking up Petoskey stones, sea glass, or some unique beach treasure. She spent her most enjoyable times sailing and boating and spending long, hot, lazy days on the water with her family and friends. As a friend, she always took time to listen and to share. She valued her friends and their friendships greatly.

Rebecca met her significant other, Ron Brower of East Jordan, and he remained her dearest friend and companion throughout the remainder of her life. With Ron, she enjoyed all of the special loves of her life.

Rebecca is survived by Ron; her father, Lester A. Bour; sister, Deborah Crawford, both of Charlevoix; nieces, Erin (Gary "Joe") Miller of Owosso, and Regan (Brandon) Brown of Spring Lake, and their children, Grace and Maddie, and Max and Jack; uncle, Robert (Paula Alexander) Allen of Owosso; aunt, Cathy Bour of Spring Lake; cousins, George J. Rebecca was predeceased by her mother, Theresa "Tess" (Allen) Bour; her grandparents, Harold and Viola Allen, and George J. and Hilda Bour; uncles, Dr. James Bour, and George J. Bour, II.

A private memorial service for immediate family is planned.

New owners, new name for former Don's Market

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

One of Charlevoix's best known businesses, Don's Market, has changed owners and is celebrating its grand opening under the new name, Galway Bay Green Grocer.

Jeff and Betsy Kelly, longtime Charlevoix residents, assumed ownership of the small market effective July 1. Jeff had previously managed the IGA in Harbor Springs when it was under the same ownership as the Charlevoix store.

"I really enjoyed working for Don Haney in Harbor Springs," Kelly noted. "I've known the Haneys for over 15 years and have always been a customer of the store."

When the store went on the market, the Kellys jumped at the chance to purchase it. The couple had previously owned a meat market in the Alpena area in years past as well.

"With experience in business management and over seven years running Northern Michigan grocers, I thought we could do well with our own market," Kelly noted.

Originally from the Detroit area, the Kellys were frequent visitors to the area over the years. Both of their families owned vacation properties in Northern Michigan and the couple fell in love with the area over time, eventually deciding to relocate.

Some of their plans for change to the market include expansion of their current merchandise lines, pizza making and catering.

"We have already completely restocked our full-service meat and seafood counter, as well as the produce selection," Kelly noted.

The new owners have plans to focus primarily on locally grown produce as well as organic foods such as honey.

"We intend to work closely with local farmers and other producers to offer the freshest selection we can," Kelly said. "A large percentage of our produce will be local."

"We want to be a part of the community. We are members of the Charlevoix (Area) Chamber of Commerce and Betsy is one of their ambassadors," Kelly noted.

The Kelly family is Irish, and intend to incorporate their heritage into the new grocery. Charlevoix already has a strong Irish influence, which the Kelly's plan to be a part of.

"We chose the name of the store based on our Irish background and have plans to further incorporate that into the business," Kelly noted.

"Eventually we have plans to change even the store's facade to look much like an Irish grocer," Kelly said.

They are currently discussing that plan with designers, planning the change for the future.

The Kellys are busy getting the store up to speed as well as working with new staff and suppliers. They also have ongoing plans to add more services and offerings to cater to the year-round residents of the area.

"We would like to eventually offer catering and more custom foods as well as cooking classes," Kelly said.

The goal for many of the new services is to grow the winter business, while attracting more local customers, according to Kelly.

Galway Bay Green Grocer is located at 402 Petoskey Ave., Charlevoix, in the same building as the former Don's Market.

Store hours are 8 a.m.-8 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m.-9 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 8 a.m.-6 p.m. Sunday. Phone (231) 547-0080.

Irish Boat Shop marks half-century afloat

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

If Irish Boat Shop had been established with a mission statement, company president Michael Esposito believes that statement might well have focused on "messing around in boats."

This year, Irish — which has locations in Harbor Springs and Charlevoix — is celebrating 50 years of serving the needs of boat enthusiasts.

"Service, repairs, storage and dockage is the foundation of the company," Esposito noted, "with a little fun thrown in for good measure."

In early October 1943, Herb and Edith Irish, along with their three children, Jane, Ann and David, sailed around Harbor Point and into Harbor Springs aboard their 32-foot sailboat, Loon. Herb Irish announced, "I guess we'll stay here" — and stay they did.

"My youth was spent in and around the woods and waters of Harbor Springs, teaching sailing, fixing boats, and racing other people's sailboats," David Irish noted.

"After serving as a navigator in the Air Force, I had to decide what to do with my life. Playing with boats for a living seemed a good choice, and by an accident of time, place and circumstances, the opportunity existed," said Irish.

In 1961, David opened Irish Boat Shop in Harbor Springs. After purchasing the initial waterfront land, construction commenced on buildings and minimal facilities.

"The financing came from resort people I knew through sailing and some money I borrowed from family. We got possession of the land in April of 1961 and worked to make it a business," noted Irish.

Although the work and office spaces were without heat and the boat hoist was pushed by hand, the company was doing well by its second year. By 1965, there was a new 20-ton boat hoist along with a smaller 8-ton hoist, heated office and shop space, fixed breakwater, docks and storage buildings in place.

In 1971, Irish purchased the defunct Stover Creek Marina in Charlevoix. This marina was constructed as a modern boatyard and marina, focusing on larger boats.

"We did the same things as in Harbor Springs, just with somewhat bigger boats," Irish said.

In 1977, Irish Boat Shop purchased the old oil depot on Ferry Avenue in Charlevoix and undertook the construction of a third marina. That same year in Harbor Springs, the business opened a sail loft for the construction and repair of sailboat sails and canvas work.

During the next few years, Irish Boat Shop continued to grow in both Harbor Springs and Charlevoix.

Another major renovation took place in 1993, when the original waterfront buildings in Harbor Springs had become obsolete and were removed and replaced with modern shops and work areas, customer service and employee facilities and heated boat storage.

On Jan. 1, 2007 David Irish retired as president of the company and the executive and operational responsibilities were turned over to Michael Esposito. David Irish remains involved as chairman of the board and treasurer of the company.

"I am a lucky guy; I really like what I do," Irish said. "I like people who hang around boats, I like people who enjoy boats and I like people who work on boats. Helping people have fun with boats is our business."

Over the years, many things have changed at Irish Boat Shop. The company now operates with three waterfront marinas with approximately 300 slips and more than 200,000 square feet of inside storage.

Irish Boat Shop represents several popular boat and marine engine lines including Sea Ray Boats, Boston Whaler, Zodiac, Laser Performance and many others. The business has achieved some of the highest levels of certification and recognition in the industry, including Brunswick Master Dealer, Mercury Marine Platinum Dealer and Authorized Hinckley Service Center for the Great Lakes Region. Irish Boat Shop also is an Authorized Legacy Service Center.

Both Harbor Springs and Charlevoix sites are Certified Clean Marinas, a program that certifies marinas and boatyards on their performance in meeting a wide variety of standards with respect to environmental stewardship and clean operations.

"We are proud of the fact that within our company we have three Certified Marina Managers — there are less than 300 worldwide — and two state of Michigan-certified stormwater inspectors," said Esposito

The company encourages its employees to participate in their communities, and it supports local charities through contribution of money, time and equipment. In addition to being active locally, to environmental interests and to the land trust movement, Irish has served the sport of sailing in a variety of roles — locally, nationally and internationally — for more than 25 years.

"I could not have predicted, nor even imagined in 1961 where the company would be today," Irish said. "But where we are today is the consequence of good people, employees, customers and community; and perhaps a bit of good luck."

Emergency food and shelter grants available

Charlevoix County has been awarded $17,725 and Emmet County has been awarded $26,348 in federal funds under the Emergency Food and Shelter National Board Program. These funds will be distributed by a local board and are used to supplement emergency food and shelter programs in these counties through September 30, 2011.

The award was made by a National Board that is chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency and consists of representatives from the Salvation Army; American Red Cross; United Jewish Communities; Catholic Charities, USA; National Council of the Churches of Christ in the USA; and, United Way of America. The local board was charged to distribute funds appropriated by Congress to help expand the capacity of food and shelter programs in high-need areas around the country.

The Local Board is chaired by United Way and includes representatives from the Salvation Army, American Red Cross, Temple B'Nai Israel, Catholic Human Services, Emmanuel Episcopal Church, the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians, governmental representatives from both counties, the Department of Human Services, both counties' community foundations, and the Nehemiah House.

This board will determine how the funds are will be distributed among the emergency food and shelter programs run by local service agencies in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Under the terms of the grant from the national board, local agencies chosen to receive funds must: 1) be private voluntary non-profits or units of government, 2) have an accounting system, 3) practice nondiscrimination, 4) have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and/or shelter programs, and 5) if they are a private voluntary organization, they must have a voluntary board. Qualifying agencies are urged to apply.

Emergency Food and Shelter funds were awarded to the following agencies last year: the Women's Resource Center, the Salvation Army, the Manna Project, St. Francis Church, Brother Dan's Food Pantry, East Jordan Care and Share, SDA Community Services Center, and Good Samaritan Family Services.

Public or private voluntary agencies interested in applying for Emergency Food and Shelter Program funds must contact Martha Lancaster, Char-Em United Way, P.O. Box 1701, Petoskey Mich. 49770; phone (231) 487-1006; email info@charemunitedway.org for an application. The deadline for applications to be received is 5 p.m. Friday, Aug 12.

New planning commission seated amid split votes

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County now has a new planning commission, though its members don't know how long their initial terms will last.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners on Wednesday rescinded the old planning commission ordinance, adopted a new one that complies with the state's Planning and Enabling Act of 2008 and then seated seven members to the public body. All six incumbent planning commissioners received reappointments and commissioners chose Patrick Howard, who is the current Chandler Township Planning Commission chairman, for the seventh spot.

Ferguson

"I do think it's great to get somebody from over on the east side," said Nancy Ferguson, planning commissioner from Charlevoix who also owns property on Beaver Island

The six-incumbent planning commissioners include Ferguson, as well as Dennis Jason, Michael Buttigieg and Bob Draves, all from East Jordan, and Tom Wieland and Larry Levengood, both from Charlevoix. Staggered terms lengths will be determined later.

Levengood

Charlevoix County missed the state's July 1 deadline to make the planning changes and seat a new planning commission.

Levengood said he's pleased county commissioners finished the task.

"We need to get on with business," he said.

Gillespie

Commissioners approved the changes to the county's planning ordinance with a 4-1 split vote, with commissioner Rich Gillespie dissenting.

Commissioner Chris Christensen did not attend the Wednesday evening meeting.

Gillespie said that before he voted in favor of the planning changes, he wanted further legal clarification after a citizen comment raised concerns for him. Charlevoix County prosecutor John Jarema, also the board's civil counsel, arrived late to the meeting and was not present for the planning discussion.

Bay Township resident Bob Taylor submitted a written document during public comments that contends the Planning and Enabling Act of 2008 is illegal for general law counties in Michigan.

There are two charter counties in Michigan and 81 general law counties, including the two with unified governments that are also considered general law counties, said Angela Minicuci, spokeswoman for the Michigan Association of Counties.

Taylor and county resident Roger Conaway said the state legislation and associated planning ordinance is an assault on private property rights and an attempt to launch county-wide zoning. They also said adoption of the ordinance could be considered "nonfeasance, misfeasance, malfeasance or perhaps even reaching the level of racketeering," according to Taylor's submitted letter that both he and Conaway read aloud at the meeting.

Gillespie said county officials weren't yet organized enough to adopt the new planning ordinance.

"The tenor of Mr. Taylor's letter is concerning," Gillespie said.

Gillespie and commissioner Joel Evans, board chairman, wanted to table the appointments at least until Christensen could attend. Commissioners Shirlene Tripp, Bob Drebenstedt and Ron Reinhardt voted against the additional delay.

The board also adopted a planning commission ordinance clarification that underscores how officials do not intend the new ordinance to initiate county-wide zoning without a public vote.

The last split vote at Wednesday's meeting came when the board seated the seventh planning commissioner. Evans and Gillespie voted for applicant Robert Tidmore, a retired civil engineer from Beaver Island, while Tripp, Drebenstedt and Reinhardt voted for Howard.

Also during the meeting, commissioners agreed to apply for a $10,000 state snowmobile law enforcement grant, contribute $50,000 toward the crushing cost for gravel donated to the county by St. Marys Cement Plant and adopted the updated employee handbook.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission is scheduled to meet and elect officers at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 11, in the Pine Lake Room in the basement of the county's administration building in Charlevoix. The meeting had originally be slated for Aug. 4, but on Friday planning department officials moved the date back a week "to give planning department staff and commission members adequate time to prepare for the meeting."

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS WRITER

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Last week, like many of us here in Northern Michigan, Charlevoix's Bill Ivan was sweating it out.

Ivan

Ivan was in Bloomington, Ind. working on some off-season conditioning and training at Indiana University, where he's been traveling back-and-forth from Charlevoix since June 6.

Ivan, a 2009 Charlevoix High School graduate who signed with Division I Indiana following a standout career with the Rayders, enters his second season with the Hoosiers after being redshirted last season.

Ivan, a 6-foot-4, 280-pound left offensive tackle, will look to take to the field in 2011 under new Hoosier head coach Kevin Wilson, who served as co-offensive coordinator and offensive line coach from 2002-05 and as offensive coordinator and tight ends and fullbacks coach from 2006-10 at the University of Oklahoma.

"The transition to the new coach and his staff went well," Ivan said. "I got a good feel for the coaching staff and it's been going smooth. (Offensive line) Coach (Greg) Frey recruited me from Michigan.

"It's been going very good."

Ivan, the first Division I player to come from Charlevoix in more than 20 years, took part in IU's annual Cream & Crimson spring game in mid-April, where the former Associated Press Division 5-6 All-State first-team selection with the Rayders played on special teams and as a second string left tackle.

"I was happy with our spring game," Ivan said. "It was a lot of fun."

As for the possibility of seeing significant playing time with the Hoosiers, Ivan said it's too early to tell.

"Right now, I can't really judge a lot on that," Ivan said. "I won't know everything until after camp. Right now, I'm just happy to be with the guys and to be able to get through everything."

Ivan, who through a rigorous weight-training program has gained some 20 pounds of muscle to his frame, said his first year at Indiana was a big jump coming from Northern Michigan.

"For me, it was nice to be redshirted," Ivan said. "I had to put on a lot of weight. When I left Charlevoix, I was at about 260. Now, I'm up to about 280."

Ivan, who helped guide the Rayders to playoff berths in both 2008 and 2009, said weight training and speed of the play where two things he noticed right away that were significantly faster than the high school level.

"That was the biggest thing," Ivan said. "Between the speed and with guys you're going up against that are bigger than you, it was an adjustment."

Ivan said he and the rest of his teammates are anxious to get the 2011 season started.

The Hoosier, who finished 5-7 last season and 1-7 in the Big Ten, open the season on Sept. 3 against Ball State at Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis. Indiana's Big Ten opener is Oct. 1 against Penn State. The Hoosiers will not play the University of Michigan this season, but do face Michigan State at East Lansing on Nov. 19.

Indiana returns seven starters on offense and six on defense.

"I'm really excited," Ivan said. "Especially now with the new coaching staff. We're all really excited to get things going."

Don Jess, Ivan's former coach at Charlevoix, said Ivan's tremendous work-ethic and attitude should carry him far this season.

"I know he's been working really, really hard and he's been getting stronger," Jess said. "With them (Indiana) having a coaching change, anything could happen."

Experience wins the day at championships

STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW
SPORTS WRITER

Editor's note. Play in the Michigan Senior PGA Championship was still taking place at the time last week's edition of the Charlevoix Courier was printed on Tuesday, July 26. This story is the follow up to the story on first day of tournament action that appeared in last week's edition.

Chalk this one up to experience.

That, along with stellar ball striking and putting for a man who's been in countless tournaments across the state for a number of years.

Randy Erskine of Great Oaks Country Club in Rochester shot an impressive final round 4 under par 68 to claim the Michigan Senior PGA Championship Tuesday at the Charlevoix Golf & Country Club. Erskine, 63, overcame a four-shot deficit to first-round leader Lee Houtteman of Traverse City, who posted a 3-over par 75 on Tuesday and finished in a three-way tie for second.

Erskine, a former University of Michigan standout who was a PGA touring professional in the 1970's and 80's and is a member of the Michigan Golf Hall of Fame, finished the two-day, 36 hole stroke-play tournament at 5 under 139. He earned a check for $2,000 and qualified for the Senior PGA Professional National Championship Oct 6-9 in Virginia.

Erskine, who has won nearly every major tournament in the state including the Michigan Open five times, said he was simply glad to add another title to his long and impressive resume

"It feels great," said Erskine, who shot a 1-under 71 in Monday's opening round. "It's been a little while since I've won a tournament. I'm 63 now and I'm competing against all these younger seniors you might say."

Erskine opened his final round steady and solid on the back nine as he posted two birdies and no bogeys to make the turn at 2-under. Houtteman, meanwhile, struggled from the start and quickly saw his lead dwindle as he carded four bogeys and then a double-bogey on the par-4 18th to turn at 4-over.

"He (Houtteman) just had a day where he hit in the wrong spots a couple of times," Erskine said. "Lee's a good friend of mine."

Erskine then birdied the 374-yard par-4 first hole before suffering his first bogey of the round on No. 4, a 131-yard par-3.

"I was so mad at myself on No. 4 for going at the pin because it's a sucker pin," Erskine said. "I pulled it a little bit and it went past the cup. I still had an easy putt, but I missed it."

Erskine then followed on No. 5, a 528-yard par-5, with an errant tee shot he topped and trickled just 20 yards beyond the forward tee.

"I just said 'What in the heck is happening?'" Erskine said. "I had to get buckled down right then. I could still get on the green in three and still make a birdie."

Erskine's third shot from 170 yards left him 3 feet from the cup, where made birdie.

"I was able to hit it in there really tight and that made a big difference," he said. "I knew that I had some shots to work with."

Erskine birdied two of his final three holes to finish at 34-34 — 68, but said he still felt nerves throughout the day.

"I was still nervous a little bit out there," he said. "I just controlled my nerves very well and fortunately got a victory."

Houtteman carded two birdies and a bogey on the finishing par-5 506-yard No. 9, where his approach shot found the water hazard.

"He (Houtteman) thought he could reach the green in two, but instead he hit it in the water," Erskine said. "Instead of him finishing second all alone, he took the chance to tie me. I would've done the same thing. He only missed that second shot by about 8-10 feet and he could've given himself an eagle chance."

Erskine said experience had a "big part to do with" his victory.

"I've been fortunate to win a lot of tournaments in the state and this is a special one because there aren't that many (competitive) years left," he said.

Erskine, who also won the Michigan Senior PGA Championship in 2002, finished the tournament with nine birdies and was 5-under on par 5's.

"It just felt really good," Erskine added. "It was nice ball-striking for two days. I hit the ball solid and hit the ball close for a lot of birdies."

Houtteman, a teaching professional at the Grand Traverse Resort & Spa in Acme, finished at 68-75 — 143. Also finishing tied for second were John Nolan of the Van Dyke Sports Center in Warren (72-71—143), and Robert Makoski of Grosse Ile Golf & Country Club (72-71—143).

Bob Ackerman of Bob Ackerman Golf Academy in Walled Lake shot the lowest round of the day as he tied the course record with a 6-under par 66. The course record was set just two days prior by Dave Kendall of the Kendall Academy of Golf in the tournament's pro-am.

Ackerman finished the tournament tied for fifth at even par (78-66—144) along with Jack Seltzer of the Kendall Academy of Golf (74-70—144). Kendall was tied for seventh at 1-over par (72-73—145) with Nick Berklich of Grand Blanc (73-72—145).

Ackerman, Seltzer, Kendall, Houtteman, Makoski, Nolan and Berklich will all join Erskine at the Senior Professional National Championship, which will be contested at Creighton Farms in Aldie, Va., and River Creek in Leesburg, Va., in October.

Barry Redmond of the Boyne Golf Academy finished tied for 11th at 74-74—148, while Dave Mocini, the owner/general manager of the Charlevoix Golf & Country Club, was 25th (78-79—157). Larry Mancour of Oden was tied for 26th (87-74—161).

Historical Society to again present golf history program

The Charlevoix Historical Society will repeat its well-received program on the History of Golf in Charlevoix at the Depot, Depot Beach, at 7 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 8.

Tom Heid, director of golf and grounds at the city's Charlevoix Golf Club and Steve Braun, former pro at the Belvedere Golf Club will narrate the program. The program will trace the development of the Chicago Club course, designed in 1896 by a young Willie Watson who would soon become one of the world's most famous course designers, through its turning over to the city in 1937 because of the Depression and later reduction from 18 to nine holes.

The Belvedere course was established in 1925. Watson returned to design what quickly became recognized as one of the finest courses in the country. Golf greats who have played the Belvedere besides Walter Hagen (in photo), are the immortal Bobby Jones, Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour, Sam Snead, Ken Venturi, and Tom Watson, who claims the Belvedere is one of his favorite courses. The Michigan Amateur tournament has been played more times at the Belvedere than at any other course in the state and is scheduled to return in 2012.

There will be no admission charge, but donations in support of the society are appreciated. Light refreshments will be served. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

WingNuts towed to Charlevoix for more investigation

STEVE ZUCKER
CHARLEVOIX COURIER EDITOR

Officials investigating a sailing accident that claimed the lives of two sailors in the Chicago Yacht Club's Chicago-to-Mackinac race earlier this month have had the sailboat involved in the accident towed to Charlevoix to further the investigation.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider, who has been saddled with investigating the accident by state officials, said the sailboat WingNuts was towed to Charlevoix late Wednesday, July 27 from Naubinway in the Upper Peninsula.

Schneider said efforts by Towboat U.S. to recover the vessel had been hindered by the fact that it had drifted from the site of the July 18 accident near North Fox Island onto Gray's Reef offshore from Emmet County. Schneider said on Wednesday he traveled to Naubinway to make arrangements for the vessel's transport to Charlevoix. Schneider said another salvage company that had not been contracted by the sheriff's office had towed the vessel to Naubinway hoping to stake a salvage claim to it.

WingNuts was towed to Irish Boat Shop's marina where it was pulled from the water. The boat has since been transported to a secure land-based location so that investigators from his office can conduct a thorough investigation.

Schneider said last week he expects the investigation will take several weeks. He said among the factors that will slow the investigators' task is the fact that the survivors from the wreck and other witnesses are now scattered around the state and beyond which will make tracking them down for interviews more time-consuming.

The WingNuts capsized shortly after midnight July 18 in the midst of what many race participants have since described as a very violent thunderstorm. Mark Morley, skipper of the 35-foot vessel, and Suzanne Bickel, both of Saginaw, died in the accident. Schneider has previously said that Morley and Bickel died of head trauma. A competing boat rescued the other six crew members who had been aboard the WingNuts.

A memorial service has been held for the skipper of a boat who was one of two people who died after it capsized in a fierce Lake Michigan storm during the annual sailing race from Chicago to Mackinac Island.

Hundreds attended the service for Morley Friday afternoon at the Temple Theatre in Saginaw.

Bickel's funeral was about a week prior to Morley's.

The Saginaw News reports musicians played before the start of Morley's service, which featured a metal sculpture of a sailboat on stage near the podium.

Several speakers remembered Morley as a storyteller, including Peter Brisbois, who said his friend "could talk the bark off a tree."

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

St. Mary School welcomes new kindergarten teacher

St. Mary School in Charlevoix will welcome Emily Miller as its new kindergarten teacher when classes resume in September.

Miller, who is originally from Fowler, located just north of Lansing has a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Western Michigan University and a master's degree in curriculum and teaching from Michigan State University.

For the past 11 years she taught at St Michael Parish School in Grand Ledge where she taught first grade for seven years and kindergarten for the last four years.

Miller

" I moved up here for a location change and low and behold, God blessed me with this wonderful opportunity," Miller said. "Being a teacher is a very rewarding profession. It is being a witness to a child's physical, academic, social, and spiritual growth that I value the most in my line of work. I look forward to meeting the members of the community in which I will be serving, as well as the little ones entrusted to my care."

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix Courier's sister publication, the Petoskey News Review is expected to file a lawsuit this week against Charlevoix County officials who have denied multiple recent Michigan Freedom of Information Act document requests by the newspaper.

News-Review officials said last week that they would file a civil suit in Emmet County Circuit Court if the county officials involved did not turn over the requested documents by Friday, July 29. As of the Courier's press time Tuesday, the documents had not been released.

The News-Review wants Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema to release emails between himself and county commissioner Chris Christensen. The News-Review requested the emails after the board purchased Apple iPads for the commissioners to use during meetings on May 11. News-Review Publisher Doug Caldwell and editor Jeremy McBain recently sent the commissioners a letter indicating their intent to file the lawsuit and a draft of the civil complaint.

Drebenstedt

"I hope you end up filing a suit so it all goes public," county commissioner Bob Drebenstedt said.

Both Drebenstedt and commissioner Shirlene Tripp said Jarema and Christensen have long sent emails to one another as they sat across the room during county board meetings, even nodding and laughing with each other as they did so. The News-Review's editorial board wanted to see if the suspicions were true, so McBain filed multiple requests for the emails under the Michigan Freedom of Information Act. According to McBain, the newspaper has been met with nothing but resistance.

"We just want them to follow the law. This entire situation could be resolved if they'd just produce the documents we requested, as allowable by law," McBain said.

Tripp

Tripp said she voted against the iPad purchase request because she believes the computerized equipment could be a distraction as officials try to conduct business. She also said the equipment would allow continued emails between Christensen and Jarema — what she considers a violation of the Michigan Open Meetings Act.

Tripp said the county should turn over the emails because Christensen and Jarema are "no different than the rest of us" and should abide by the state's laws designed to prevent government secrecy.

"I think it's important. If you drop it — if others had dropped it in the past — where would this country be?" Tripp said.

Christensen previously said the emails are allowable because Jarema serves as the board's civil counsel. He also said he used his laptop to take notes during meetings.

Christensen could not be reached last week for additional comments.

Last week the News-Review sent Jarema and all county commissioners copies of the newspaper's draft complaint, written by media attorney Robin Luce Herrmann, of Bloomfield Hills, who represents the newspaper.

Various county commissioners reacted differently to the newspaper's demand that they turn over the requested emails or face a civil lawsuit.

Drebenstedt said what happens in public meetings is public — everything is on the table.

"My concern is, if you have to do private stuff, why not do that private stuff on your own private time? What we do in our meetings is open to the public. Nothing is private, as far as I'm concerned," Drebenstedt said. "It needs to be said publicly, whatever is being said."

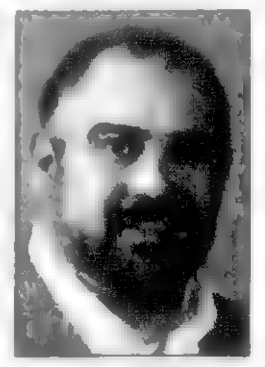
Other commissioners said this isn't a big deal

"I think it's much ado about nothing," said Richard Gillespie, commissioner.

However, Gillespie said it would "seem to make sense" to adopt a new board policy that prevents commissioners and other public officials from sending emails, texts or other electronic communications during public meetings.

Commissioner Ron Reinhardt agrees a conversation about such a policy "needs to be had."

"I don't have any concerns that they were doing anything wrong, but I think we shouldn't be texting or emailing between each other at meetings from now on," Reinhardt said.



McBain

Board chairman Joel Evans said the concerns about possible Open Meetings Act violations amounts to frivolous accusations, something that's caused frustration among county commissioners.

"We have two great people, Chris Christensen and John Jarema, who serve this county with honesty and integrity and we expect that, as a board. They are not going to do anything to violate a law or policy," Evans said. "I trust them to do what's right."

McBain said the newspaper is not willing to let the situation go.

"We're not backing down. It is our duty as a newspaper to make sure our government officials are held accountable," he said.

Petoskey News-Review Publisher Doug Caldwell echoed McBain's comments.

"The public has a right to know what's in those emails. That's the point of the Freedom of Information Act, to protect the public's right to know. We're dedicated to finding out the truth," Caldwell said.

McBain said this not only is about the public's right to know, but also holding elected county officials responsible for their conduct on taxpayer time.

"What this comes down to is we need to know if public business is being done in the open during the Board of Commissioners meetings. We have serious concerns when public officials are communicating messages of personal or public matters via email or text messages during government meetings — public meetings — when they should be paying attention at that public meeting and making sure their deliberations are done in the public's view," he said. "Furthermore, it is concerning to me when a public official gives blanket denials for a FOIA request and fails, in my opinion, to adequately abide by the Freedom of Information Act law even after several requests and having it pointed out they may be running afoul of the law, particularly if that public official professes to be knowledgeable about our legal system as a member of our law enforcement community. As a watchdog for the community, as a newspaper, it is our duty to make sure public business is being done in the public and in order to do that, these documents are important to us."

McBain first filed a Freedom of Information Act request on May 16 for all emails between Jarema and Christensen for a four-day period, including the May 11 meeting date. Jarema denied the request on May 23, but identified six emails during the requested time period and the reasons he would not release them.

Jarema

Jarema said four of the emails were personal, one was "personal to Mr. Jarema, his work product," as well as "pertain(ing) to an ongoing criminal investigation" and the last was attorney-client privileged and subject to the "frank communication" exemption. He did not reveal details about when the emails were sent.

The newspaper appealed the denial on May 27 before Jarema imposed an additional extension on June 1 giving him until June 17 to respond.

Jarema contends that electronic communications between him and a board member can never violate OMA because it only applies to public bodies and members of the same public bodies. Jarema does not sit on the board, so the law doesn't apply to him, he argues.

Jarema declined to comment because the situation likely will result in litigation, he said.

Additionally, Jarema also threatened in writing to sue the newspaper for slander and libel, should any stories be published about the Open Meetings Act concerns.

"Mr. McBain you are hereby placed on notice that anymore spoken or written word of me violating the OMA when it is an impossibility in these types of situations will result in civil action for libel and slander. Mr. McBain has now put it in writing in his denial that I am violating the OMA and he is hereby on notice. All an attorney has is his reputation and ethics and for McBain to be ignorant of the law and allege such false and malicious allegations will not be tolerated," Jarema wrote in an undated letter to the News-Review's attorneys.

McBain filed a second Freedom of Information Act request on June 16 for emails sent between the start and end of the May 11 board meeting. Then six days later the newspaper requested police documents for an unrelated criminal case that involves a local police official in an alleged domestic violence incident.

According to the draft complaint sent to commissioners, Jarema told News-Review online editor Julie Witthoeft in a phone conversation that he intended to delay a substantive response to the request for the police records because of McBain — apparently a reference to the ongoing Freedom of Information Act battle for the release of the emails sent between him and Christensen.

The Michigan State Police released a redacted version of the requested domestic violence police report on July 19 — the newspaper had sent Freedom of Information Act requests to both Jarema and the Michigan State Police for these police documents. Redacted information included some names, telephone numbers, addresses, dates of birth, physical characteristics and driver's license numbers.

Jarema's office released similar redacted police documents on Wednesday, July 27.

On June 23, Jarema responded in writing to the second Freedom of Information Act request for the emails in question and said he required more time to investigate the issue because he needed to determine if he even had to admit any emails existed. Ultimately, in a letter on July 8, Jarema said that "there is one email between Commissioner Christensen and Prosecutor Jarema during the relevant time frame." Jarema denied the newspaper's request that the email be produced, stating, among other things, that it was "personal and not subject to FOIA."

Jarema declined to comment on the multiple FOIA requests and associated denials unless the News-Review provided him a copy of the article prior to publication. However, that is against newspaper policy.

Media attorney Robin Luce Herrmann, of Bloomfield Hills, represents the News-Review. She said this is a matter of the public's right to know and hold its government accountable versus government secrecy.

"From a very broad legal perspective, the crux of the problem here is there are wholesale denials without the required specificity and some of the exemptions claimed are inconsistent," she said. "There are three different FOIA requests at issue and the course of conduct in responding to these requests raises serious questions about whether materials we're entitled to under the Freedom of Information Act are being withheld."

Close call renews channel swimming concerns

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

In a ritual that is as much of summer in Charlevoix waiting in traffic for the drawbridge, kids have long played a game of cat-and-mouse with police as they try to swim in the Pine River Channel without getting caught.

Swimming in the channel as long been prohibited by city ordinance and is punishable by a fine of $50 for a first offense.

But city officials are worried that the stakes could get much higher.

Although the warnings about the dangers of swimming in the channel are a perennial discussion among city officials, at the end of Monday's Charlevoix City Council meeting, council member Jill Picha played a recording of a voice mail she received from Mike Green, one of the pilots of the Emerald Isle, who said he had to bring the ferry to a complete stop on a recent trip through the channel to avoid hitting a swimmer who was struggling in the water.

Picha and other council members said they are concerned that one day someone may be seriously injured or killed while swimming in the channel.

Council members acknowledged that city police officers do their best to enforce the ordinance, but asked city manager Rob Straebel to work with police chief Gerrard Doan to look for other more ways to dissuade would be channel swimmers including possibly increasing the fine for violators.

Get to the Pointe: Portside Art Fair on tap

EAST JORDAN — Each year, approximately 2,600 art lovers visit East Jordan's Elm Pointe park for the Portside Arts Fair.

The event, sponsored by the East Jordan Historical Society, will take place from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 7 and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 8. Admission is free, but donations will be accepted to benefit the historical society.

This year, 75 booths will feature everything from paintings and photography to pottery and jewelry.

On Saturday, a judge will visit each booth and choose the best artists in the two-dimensional and three-dimensional categories and someone from the committee will choose a piece from the artist's booth. The work is then purchased and becomes a part of the permanent collection housed in the Cygred Riley Gallery at Elm Pointe.

In addition to the wide range of art on display and for purchase, there is also a children's activity area set up with free craft projects. Live entertainment is also scheduled for both days.

Food is also available for purchase both days, including hot dogs, sloppy joes and pie.

School board election filing deadline Aug. 16

The deadline for anyone wishing to seek election to the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education in the Nov. 1 general election must file the appropriate completed paperwork to the Charlevoix County Clerk's office no later than 4 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 16.

To be eligible, a person must be a registered voter in the Charlevoix School District.

The only seat that will be up for re-election in November is currently held by Bo Boss. Boss could not be reached before deadline Tuesday.

School board moves August meeting date

The Charlevoix Public School's Board of Education has moved its regular monthly meeting for August from Monday, Aug. 15, to Monday, Aug. 22. The meeting time of 6 p.m. and location in the large meeting room at the Charlevoix Middle School has not changed.

Charlevoix schools superintendent cited several reasons for the change

He said the district's auditors are scheduled to be conducting their annual audit of the district's books during the week of Aug. 15.

Also, because the third Monday of the month falls so early in the month, the later meeting date will not only allow the board to have some preliminary information from the audit, but also updated information on projected enrollment numbers in the event that it would need to make any last minute adjustments prior to the start of the school year.

Blood drives — Officials with the American Red Cross are continuing their appeal to help replenish the critically low local supply of certain blood types. Officials said donations in May and June dropped to the lowest levels the Red Cross has seen during this timeframe in more than a dozen years. Red Cross officials said demand is high for all blood type, but particularly for types O negative, which can be used for any patient. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

After weathering many months of gloomy financial news, Charlevoix Public Schools officials are hoping that a new fundraising campaign will serve as a spring board to meeting some of the district's equipment and supply needs.

On Monday, officials with the district, the Charlevoix Schools Foundation and the Charlevoix County Community Foundation announced the kick off of the "Investing in Our Future … Our Students" campaign — an effort to raise at least $200,000 over the next three years.

And thanks to a small, but generous group of benefactors who have pledged a combined $120,000 in matching grants, the effort has a firm foundation from which to launch.

A district release on the effort noted that "a concerned group of citizens has recognized that basic needs in the classroom are going unmet."

District superintendent Chet Janik said the money will be used only for the purchase of equipment and supplies in four designated areas:

— In science and mathematics. "To make the world of science and math come alive for our students, we need the technological resources to enhance and enrich the curriculum," Janik said. He pointed to examples of needs in this area such as elementary school laboratory supplies, curriculum textbooks with on-line interactive chapters for middle school students, and interactive software and technology at the high school.

— In health and wellness Janik said the goal is to have a Michigan model of the Presidential Fitness curriculum as the cornerstone of the school's program — and not just for students playing varsity sports. He said in recent years, equipment needs have been deferred. Needs in this area include textbooks, utility balls for various sports, and exercise equipment such as stationary bikes, tread mills and elliptical machines.

— Officials noted that engagement and interaction are key for language arts and humanities, much of which takes place outside the classroom. "To engage students we need technology such as Kindles or other book readers, digital and video cameras, graphic design software, photo printers, interactive textbooks and more," he said.

— In fine arts examples of needs include kilns, pottery wheels, replacement of consumable materials (paint, pa-

Murdick's Famous Fudge recalls recent products

On Wednesday, Aug. 3, Murdick's Famous Fudge, 230 Bridge St. issued a voluntary recall for several recently produced products out of concern that eating the products could make consumers sick.

According to a release issued late Wednesday afternoon by the local fudge shop, the recall affects individually wrapped caramels (all varieties); peanut brittle, cashew brittle; and saltwater taffy (all varieties) because the products may have been handled by ill store employees. The recalled caramels, nut brittles and saltwater taffy were sold from the Charlevoix Murdick's Famous Fudge store on Bridge Street only.

Consumers who purchased the recalled products between July 23-Aug. 3 are urged to dispose of the products or return them to Murdick's Famous Fudge in Charlevoix for a refund. Consumers with questions may contact the company at (231) 547-4213.

The recall does not affect any other Murdick's locations.

According to the release, officials initiated the recall after a local health department investigation of alleged illnesses associated with eating caramels produced at this location indicated some employees of Murdick's Famous Fudge had been exhibiting symptoms typically attributed to a norovirus infection.

Health Department of Northwest Michigan spokesperson Jane Sundmacher said the bulk of the investigation is under the jurisdiction of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, which handles issues related retail food outlets as opposed to the health department which handles issues related to restaurants and catering services.

However Sundmacher said the health department was involved initially because officials were unsure if the illness might have been tied to a restaurant.

Sundmacher said the possible issue with the Murdick's Famous Fudge products came

Boards to mull medical marijuana management

Four Charlevoix-area governmental bodies have scheduled a combined meeting for later this month to discuss how they will regulate medical marijuana businesses in their respective jurisdictions.

The Charlevoix City Council, Charlevoix Planning Commission, Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees and the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission have scheduled a combined meeting for 7 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 22, at the Charlevoix City Council chambers at city hall.

In a memo about the meeting to the city planning commission, city planning director Mike Spencer wrote, "The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the new Michigan Medical Marijuana Act, and options local governments have concerning regulation of this use. The (city's) moratorium on medical marijuana is set to expire in October. We felt a joint meeting would be best to educate our boards and elected officials and seek input in a public setting prior to staff drafting any regulations."

In April the city council voted to extend a moratorium on medical marijuana businesses in the city for another six months to allow city leaders more time to draft regulating ordinances.

Charlevoix Township is also in the midst of a similar moratorium.

Spencer noted that because of the way the city and township are situated, it makes sense for officials to look at the issue together and look for ways to make their ordinances complementary to each other.

At the time the city council extended the moratorium, Spencer said city officials had met with county and Charlevoix Township leaders, the city's legal counsel and other cities dealing with the same issues around the state. He said he is also working with the county's geological information systems department to generate maps that include buffer zones around schools and churches.

Spencer explained that much like sexually-oriented businesses, Michigan law does not allow municipalities to completely ban a legal property use from all locations within its borders and therefore the city needs to come up with the best locations for such businesses.

Spencer said previously he has fielded some calls from people inquiring about starting a medical marijuana business in the city.

CAMPAIGN

per, brushes, tools), purchase and refurbishing of numerous musical brass, woodwind and percussion instruments, and other resources to expand the choral music program into the middle and high schools.

Janik said the idea for the campaign came from Robert Kline, a long-time summer resident who was instrumental in obtaining the initial grant commitments for the program.

"The $120,000 we have collected in donations and pledges allows us to leverage these dollars through matching funds and raise in excess of $200,000 for our schools," Kline said. "Every donation, small or large, matters," he said.

Janik said money collected through the program will be held by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and distributed by the Charlevoix School Foundation.

He said the foundation will distribute the money after evaluating grant requests from staff members that have been approved by building principals and the superintendent. He said in recent years the foundation has had $5,000-$10,000 to distribute annually. If the new program reaches its goal, it could have as much as $70,000 to hand out annually over the next three years.

"This is an exciting time and raising these funds will provide educational enrichment and enhancement opportunities for students in our schools K-12," said Pam Barnes, chair of the Charlevoix Schools Foundation Fund.

Gifts or deferred pledges over three years are accepted. Credit card and on-line giving options are also available. Any contributions should be made out to Charlevoix County Community Foundation and contain the words "Charlevoix Schools Foundation Fund" in the memo line. 'Farmers Market Week' comes to Charlevoix

United States Secretary of Agriculture Tom Vilsack has proclaimed Aug. 7-13, 2011 as National Farmers Market Week and to mark the observance, the Charlevoix Farmers Market will be providing live music, free samples and plenty of farm fresh food for the community to enjoy from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 11 in East Park.

This year marks the 12th annual National Farmers Market Week. Since 2000, the number of farmers markets has grown 150 percent, from 2,863 markets to 7,175 in 2011.

" National Farmers Market Week is a great time for people to try shopping at their local market, shopping local not only gets you the freshest produce and food items for you and your family, but it also helps to stimulate our local economy," Charlevoix Market director Bethany Pearson said. "Michigan is the second most agriculturally diverse state in the U.S. producing more than 125 different food products. Our community should be taking advantage of the bountiful harvest we can get right from our own back yard and the Charlevoix Farmers Market lets you do just that."

The Charlevoix Farmers Market began in 2006, and currently has more than 30 farmers selling a wide variety of products including: meat, cheese, cut flowers, baked goods, fruit, produce, honey, maple syrup, pet treats, bagels, canned goods, beef jerky, and more.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Cakes and babies are delivered when they're ready. I'm getting myself in trouble comparing birthing to baking but, since I like to cook, it's the only comparison that came to mind.

We recently had our daughter with her lovely, round baby belly and her steadfast husband move in with us along with their 3 year-old twin sons, a 1 year-old toddler, a grand dog and a grand puppy. Yep, I think that about sums it up. We welcomed their arrival, especially knowing her delivery time is soon and we were all concerned she might give birth in a Jeep Cherokee while the Charlevoix bridge was up.

Our daughter never likes to be late and usually is early in her arrival to most functions, so it was just natural for us to assume her little one would grace us with an entrance very soon. We waited and then we waited some more seven days and counting. Due date came and went.

Weather-wise we have been under the dome of a heat wave and surely this child yet to be born must be thinking it's living in a sweat lodge. The threatening weather and barometer changes should have brought things on but here we sit... still waiting. I have a feeling our soon to be newest grandson is either strong willed, a very content little boy or maybe he heard us talking about events in Washington D.C., Medicare and the economy in general — something that would make anyone curl up in a fetal position.

On the other hand, it's been entertaining to watch the energy and playfulness of three little boys. Yesterday my husband lifted one out of our pond after his little body toppled and fell in. It was easy for this tousled haired child to lose his balance as he was sporting a Halloween mask at the time. We've watched them master their bikes, complete with training wheels and a bell to warn others of their arrival. We witnessed their excitement when a local police officer stopped in our driveway to give them each a coupon for ice cream. We told these energetic toddlers they received their little gift because they were wearing their bike helmets. We also casually mentioned that police officers regularly check on children's behavior in our neighborhood. Well... it worked for a while. Garbage trucks, city road crews and ambulances found their way down our street. The enthusiasm displayed by three little ones was contagious and we found ourselves getting excited to see the garbage truck and street cleaners ourselves because we loved to hear their giggles and see the joy in their big blue eyes.

After the baby arrives and they will no longer be staying with us, I will miss the pitter patter of their tiny feet when they quickly made their way down the old wooden steps of our one hundred year old home. I'll miss the site of their nimble bodies running into the kitchen to greet me with arms outstretched and a loving hug. Our daughter and son-in-law will be overwhelmed some days with four little boys 3 years-old and under, but they are appreciative of the blessings they've been given. All of them healthy and with a joyous glint in their eye as if they know a secret we have yet to learn.

This summer has been quite the adventure. My husband and I have learned that patience is a virtue and that little boys live life fully and in the moment.

Author Alan Beck wrote a description so fitting of our learning experience: "A boy is truth with dirt on his face, beauty with a cut on his finger, wisdom with bubble gum in his hair and the hope of the future with a frog in his pocket." Now we will just sit back and continue wait as all good boys and things come in time.

UPDATE: Gayle's grandson Karson was born on Monday, Aug. 8.

LETTERS to the editor

Injured cyclist urges drivers to use caution

Editor

Northern Michigan and especially the Charlevoix area has become a mecca for biking. While we have some bike trails, I prefer to bike the back roads with hills and valleys. Most of the drivers respect the equal rights of bikers and slow down and maintain a safe passing distance. But there are small minorities of drivers who make it a point to harass bikers. I have had a number of cars throw trash at me, blast their horn when they pass and yell out the window. Several weeks ago on U.S. 31, I had a truck move over to the rumble strip and blast his horn as he passed. I was riding on the shoulder at least 5 feet from the road. I have even had cars come within inches of my bike. I have multiple strobe flashers on my bike and wear [illegible] easy to see.

Well my luck ran out on Sunday, July 31 when a minivan going at least 55 mph hit me from behind causing serious injuries to my leg, thigh, hip, elbow and shoulder. Another 2 inches farther and I would have been hit directly from behind and I would not be writing this letter. My point here is that bikers have equal access to the roads, the same as cars. Slow down and pass safely and save a life. I almost lost mine, please don't hurt someone else.

Reader questions price increase

Editor

I am an avid reader of both the Petoskey News-Review and the Charlevoix Courier and I have been since I was a kid. I read it word for word — front to back. I am a subscriber of the News-Review and when I picked it up from the mailbox last week I was surprised by the news on the front cover and it had nothing to do with anything making news. It was that the price of the paper went up a quarter. This is not fair. I know that my home subscription didn't go up for now, but it did at the newsstand. I am not sure why, but am frustrated that there was no notice in the paper preparing readers for the change.

I know the response from the paper is going to be our costs are going up. While this may be true why should your customers be the ones responsible for making up for it when you just finished a massive renovation and are paying for an attorney in a dispute with Charlevoix County both of which aren't cheap and probably not necessary to that extent. Raising the price of the News-Review is one thing, but the Courier is another. It is smaller in size and contains news that has or will be in the News-Review and the news is sometimes a week old. The talk is about saving print media, well if this is the case then you should keep the customer in mind before you lose them because I don't want to, but may cancel my subscription and read the headlines online for free until you decide to charge for that too!

Editor's note: Rising costs is the primary reason for our increase in single copy prices. This is our first single copy increase in price in 9 years. Our home delivery prices are remaining unchanged, however.

Upcoming Relay for Life a bright spot

Editor:

At 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 13, I will take part in a very unique experience. I look forward to it every year. It is the American Cancer Society Relay For Life. Like so many families, mine has been affected by cancer. My father-in-law lost his battle just three months ago, and my husband is a six-year survivor. The relay is a fun-filled event, a bright spot along this cancer journey.

Relay For Life is not just about raising money. It is a community event that strengthens our resolve against this cruel disease. If cancer has ever touched your life, then Relay For Life is the place for you.

I would like to invite everyone to attend all or part of this year's Relay For Life of Charlevoix County which takes place on from 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 13 to 10 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 14 at the Community Park in East Jordan. During this exciting event we will celebrate cancer survivors, remembers loved ones lost and fight back against cancer. Teams of community members camp out overnight and take turns walking laps around a track.

We would like to extend a special invitation to all cancer survivors, including those who are currently battling the disease. Cancer survivors are our guests of honor at Relay.

Our goal is a world with less cancer and more birthdays. In addition to raising money and celebrating life, every American Cancer Society Relay for Life also has a wealth of information available about cancer prevention, early detection and free support services found in our community.

LOOKING BACK…

The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair began as a showcase for a small group of local and area artists in 1959. They displayed their creations flat on blankets and sheets or on the East Park grass, propped against sticks or rods shoved into the ground, and arranged on card tables with no protection from wind or sunlight. As the fair grew over the years to draw artists from all over, an added attraction was often an original work by a world famous artist, such as a Degas, loaned from a museum or private collection and displayed in the bandshell. The fair has grown in stature and reputation to become one of the two best open-air art fairs in Michigan, alongside Ann Arbor, and is listed among the top one hundred in the nation. RECALL to light when the health department received a call reporting that a family of five all got sick with norovirus-like symptoms around the same time.

"We began an investigation, interviewing the family members to determine the common foods they'd eaten over the past several days. Caramels from Murdick's were identified as the probable source so we called in the Michigan Department of Agriculture — which has jurisdiction manufacturing and stores--and provided assistance in the investigation. MDA determined the suspected source of the outbreak was employees who were sick," Sundmacher said.

She noted that neither the health department nor the Michigan Department of Agriculture did any laboratory tests as part of the investigation, so there is no way to confirm the source the illness or its source.

"Without laboratory confirmation (from stool samples), no one can say for sure," Sundmacher said.

Sundmacher said so far, she's not aware of anyone else who has reported possibly becoming ill in connection with the products involved in the recall.

"Murdick's is thoroughly cleaning their facility now and is working with MDA to review their production practices and make adjustments as necessary to assure safe foodhandling practices," Sundmacher added.

Jennifer Holton, a spokeswoman from the Michigan Department of Agriculture said she's unaware of any past food safety issues with the well-known Charlevoix candy shop.

Norovirus illness usually begins 24-48 hours after exposure, but can appear as early as 10 hours after exposure. Symptoms usually include nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, and stomach cramping. People may have a low-grade fever, chills, headache, muscle aches, and a general sense of tiredness. The illness is usually brief, with symptoms lasting only one or two days. If unable to drink enough liquids to replace what they lose from vomiting and diarrhea, medical treatment may be needed to prevent dehydration.

Holton said Murdick's is working with local and state officials to evaluate its candy-making process to prevent reoccurrence, including allowing an ill employee to work.

Messages seeking comment from Murdick's Famous Fudge representatives were not returned.

Sundmacher encouraged anyone who suspects he or she may have been exposed to a foodborne illness to report it to the health department.

"One of the core functions of public health is to control foodborne illness outbreaks," she said. "Any time residents or visitors to the area suspect they've become ill due to eating contaminated food or drinking contaminated water, we ask that they report it."

CHS alumnus, long-time Parade editor to speak at library

Larry Smith, New York Times best-selling author, will be the featured speaker at the ninth Margaret Duerr Award program at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 18, at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Smith is a 1958 Charlevoix High School graduate. He was managing editor of Parade Magazine for 19 years. His first book, "The Original," is a classic piece of Americana which takes place in Northern Michigan. His bestsellers include "Beyond Glory – Medal of Honor Heroes in Their Own Words," an oral history published in 2003. This was followed by "The Few and the Proud — Marine Corps Drill Instructors in Their Own Words" and "Iwo Jima — World War II Veterans Remember the Greatest Battle of the Pacific." Smith also collaborated on a one-man play based on "Beyond Glory."

David Miles, co-director of the Charlevoix Historical Society, will be honored as the 2011 Margaret Duerr Award recipient. Each year an individual who has demonstrated an interest in the preservation of the history of Northern Michigan is selected for the award.

David Miles compiled and edited the book "Bob Miles' Charlevoix II" and has contributed to many Charlevoix Historical Society publications and programs. He has been instrumental in the digitizing of the society's photographic collection. David worked with the Michigan Room Committee on the centennial historical photo exhibit which is now a permanent collection of the library.

Smith and Miles were high school classmates and are lifelong friends.

News-Review sues county officials in FOIA battle

HEATHER LOCKWOOD
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix Courier's sister publication the Petoskey News Review filed a lawsuit Tuesday, Aug. 2 against Charlevoix County officials after they failed to turn over information it had requested under the Michigan Freedom of Information Act.

Christensen

Jarema

The lawsuit, filed against Charlevoix County prosecutor John Jarema, county commissioner Chris Christensen, Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners and the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office and consisting of three counts of alleged violations of the Freedom of Information Act, comes after a several-week-long freedom of information fight.

The complaint contends that the three requests the newspaper had made under the Freedom of Information Act were "met with hostility, threats and deliberate delays."

"We didn't file this lawsuit lightly," said attorney Robin Luce Herrmann, who represents The Petoskey News-Review. "We made repeated substantial efforts to try and resolve the issues and get the information we believe we're entitled to."

The newspaper previously said it would file a civil lawsuit in Emmet County if information it requested was not provided by Friday, July 29. The requested information has not been provided to the News-Review.

"It's unfortunate that it has come to this, but this could have been avoided had they provided us with the documents we requested, as required by the Freedom of Information Act," said News-Review editor Jeremy McBain. "We look forward to a speedy resolution of this issue."

The News-Review sought the release of emails between Jarema and Christensen. The newspaper requested the emails to determine whether another commissioner's belief that the two were communicating by email during board meetings was on the mark.

"There's a lot of people out there who would want to know what's in those emails," said Shirlene Tripp, county commissioner.

The issue started when Tripp voted against an iPad purchase request approved May 11 because she said the computerized equipment could be a distraction as officials try to conduct business. She also pointed to Christensen's frequent laptop use during board meetings, prior to the purchase of iPads, and contended he sent emails to Jarema who sat on the other side of the room. Jarema is not only the county's prosecuting attorney, but also the board's civil counsel.

Christensen previously said he used his laptop to take notes during the meeting and any emails he sent to Jarema are allowable because the prosecutor serves as the board's civil counsel.

Tripp said she fears that is a violation of the Michigan Open Meetings Act, though she wondered whether all the electronic communications had to do with county business.

The editorial board at the News-Review wanted to find out if Tripp's suspicions had merit, so McBain filed a Michigan Freedom of Information Act request on May 16 for the emails between Jarema and Christensen for a four-day period, including the May 11 meeting date.

Jarema denied the request on May 23, but identified six emails during the requested time period and the reasons he would not release them.

Jarema said four of the emails were personal in nature, one was "personal to Mr. Jarema, his work product," as well as "pertain(ing) to an ongoing criminal investigation" and the last was attorney-client privileged and subject to the "frank communication" exemption. He did not reveal details about when the emails were sent.

Jarema argued that electronic communications between him and a board member could never violate the Open Meetings Act because it only applies to public bodies and members of the same public bodies. Because Jarema does not sit on the board, yet is the board's civil attorney, the Open Meetings Act does not prohibit him from communications with board members electronically, he contends.

As previously reported, Jarema also threatened to sue the newspaper for libel, should any stories be published about the Open Meetings Act (OMA) concerns.

McBain

In its complaint, the News-Review asserts that Jarema's "position contravenes the First Amendment rights for persons to petition the government for redress of grievances. Morever, FOIA and OMA would be eviscerated if any claim that a violation occurred would subject a party to a suit for defamation."

After the News-Review appealed Jarema's decision on May 27, McBain filed a second FOIA request on June 16 for emails sent between the start and end of the May 11 board meeting. On June 22, the newspaper requested police documents for an unrelated criminal case that involves a local police official in an alleged domestic violence incident.

The Michigan State Police released a redacted version of the requested domestic violence police report on July 19 — the newspaper had sent FOIA requests to both Jarema and the Michigan State Police for these police documents. Redacted information included some names, telephone numbers, addresses, dates of birth, physical characteristics and driver's license numbers. But, Jarema's office refused to release the same information, claiming it's an ongoing investigation with witnesses yet to be interviewed.

"In reviewing it, it's still under investigation and releasing the report at this time would be detrimental to the case," said Shaynee Fanara, chief assistant prosecutor.

The Prosecutor's Office ended up releasing the police report on July 27, soon after the Petoskey News-Review submitted a draft of a complaint, on July 25, to Charlevoix County commissioners and the prosecutor's office that it was planning on sending to the circuit court if these bodies did not provide the requested information the newspaper sought in its various FOIA requests.

Jarema responded in writing on June 23 to the second FOIA request sent by McBain for the emails in question and said he required more time to investigate the issue because he needed to determine if he even had to admit any emails existed.

Later, Jarema requested the News-Review retract some of its stories about this issue.

A letter written by Jarema, dated July 28 and addressed to McBain and News-Review publisher Doug Caldwell, states, "You have made serious allegations that I, in my capacity as the elected prosecutor and civil counsel, have violated the OMA and have published those allegations in your paper, you have published those articles on the PNR's website and disseminated it to the world, you have published those allegations in your FOIA Appeal to Chairperson Evans when you have stated what 'prompted' you to file the original FOIA request, which is not necessary and you have further published those allegations by providing that FOIA Appeal to Ms. (Sherri McWhirter (a News-Review reporter) to read."

Jarema's letter continues, "I am requesting the following: a full and complete retraction in your paper, in the same manner as the above articles have been printed and on the same days of the week as the original articles were printed. I am also requesting that the retraction contain a statement not only from you and Mr. Caldwell, but also from your legal counsel that such an allegation of a violation of the OMA, as you have alleged, is a legal impossibility. The retraction should state that since I, as Charlevoix County's Prosecuting Attorney and Charlevoix County's Civil Counsel, am not part of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners or any other Commission [consistent with the Attorney General's handbook upon which you have relied] any communication simply cannot violate the OMA."

In response to the above mentioned letter, Luce Herrmann wrote, "On behalf of my client, The Petoskey News-Review (PNR), its Publisher, Doug Caldwell, and Editor,

Fear of Losses May Lead to Negative Investment Behavior

Like every other investor, you prefer not to see the value of your investments drop. But at some point they will fall simply because of the ups and downs of the market. And how you respond to short-term losses can help determine if you enjoy long-term investment success. Investors' feelings about losses can be complex. In the field of economics, an area of study is devoted to "loss aversion" — the concept that people dislike losing money so much that, given a choice, they'd prefer to avoid losses rather than take gains. For example, if you have a high degree of loss aversion, then you will find greater dissatisfaction by losing $100 than you'd get satisfaction from taking a $100 profit.

Loss aversion can lead to various forms of negative investment behavior. Here are two of the most common results:

- Seeking "risk-free" investments — When you think of investment losses, the first thing that probably comes to mind is a drop in stock prices. If you're really loss-averse, you might seek to avoid this situation by simply avoiding stocks and placing all your money in other investments. While some of these investments may seem "risk free," you must consider factors such as inflation risk — the possibility that these investments may provide returns that don't keep up with the rate of inflation.
- Holding "losers" too long — From time to time, you will own investments that, for whatever reason, underperform. If you're highly loss-averse, though, you may have a tough time acknowledging the losing nature of these investments, so you may be tempted to hold on to them until they "bounce back." But if the investment's fundamentals change, or if the investment no longer aligns with your goals, it may be time to sell it and look for other opportunities. Conversely, you may want to hold on to quality investments whose price has dropped in the short term, because these investments may well recover.

How can you avoid these types of behavior? For starters, you'll need to recognize the symptoms of loss aversion in yourself — and then resolve to overcome them. Accept the fact that short-term losses are part of investing and that every single investment carries some type of risk.

This doesn't mean, of course, that you should do nothing to reduce your risk. One effective risk-fighting measure you can take is to diversify your holdings by investing in a variety of stocks, bonds, government securities, CDs and other investment vehicles. If you had all your holdings in only stocks or bonds, a downturn primarily affecting one of those assets could lead to a big hit for your portfolio. But by spreading your dollars among a variety of investments, you're also spreading the risk. Keep in mind, though, that diversification by itself can't guarantee a profit or protect against loss.

Investment losses, even short-term ones, aren't much fun. But by not overreacting to these losses, and by diversifying your portfolio in a way that best meets your individual needs, you can look past today's losses toward tomorrow's possibilities.

Irish Boat Shop to host Clean Marina event

Irish Boat Shop will host an open house to showcase the Michigan Clean Marina Program, from 1:15-3:15 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 18.

The open house will feature a tour of Irish Boat Shop, which has been in operation on Lake Charlevoix since 1971 – and has been a Certified Michigan Clean Marina since 2006. The event offers an opportunity to learn more about the voluntary stewardship program, to meet key stakeholders, and to see some of the recommended best management practices in place.

The public is invited to attend to learn more about the program. Representatives from the Michigan Boating Industries Association, Michigan Sea Grant, local government, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, the Michigan Department Environmental Quality and the Office of the Great Lakes, and members of the Michigan Waterways Commission will attend. The event is part of a Waterways Commission meeting.

The Michigan Clean Marina Program is a voluntary program that encourages marinas to adopt environmentally sound and economically feasible marina and boating practices to reduce pollution, enhance fish and wildlife habitat and protect water quality. A 10-step process including the completion of an online training course and a site visit – helps marinas achieve Clean Marina certification. The program is open to all public and private marinas in Michigan. Currently, there are 40 Certified Clean Marinas around the state, and many others that are currently undergoing training to achieve certification.

Man injured in car-bike crash

An Indiana man was injured when a car struck the bicycle he was riding north of Charlevoix Saturday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the injured man as Christopher Susott, 34. Susott was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix Ambulance crews where he was treated for his injuries — which police said included several large abrasions — and released.

Deputies said the crash happened at about 2 p.m. on Waller Road near Whippoorwill Lane in Charlevoix Township. Police said Susott was traveling west on Waller Road when a vehicle driven by Mary Chew, 71, of Charlevoix, struck his bicycle from behind.

LAWSUIT

Jeremy McBain — we are unable to locate anywhere in our coverage where we said that you, John Jarema, in your capacity as Prosecuting Attorney or Civil Counsel to the Board of Commissioners, violated the Open Meeting Act ('OMA'). We believe that our coverage is clear that there was a question as to whether Mr. Christensen was violating the Open Meetings Act by communicating with you during open meetings, prompting the FOIA requests. PNR also reported the fact that, in response to its FOIA request, it was told that the communication between you and Mr. Christensen during the May 11 meeting was 'personal.' Further, the draft Complaint shared both with you and the Commissioners does not allege a violation of the OMA by any party to that suit, including you/your office. In addition, we have reported your assertion that it is an impossibility for you to have violated the OMA. As a result, we are at a loss as to how we can retract something that was not said."

Her letter continues, "It was surely not your intention, but your retraction letter — as well as other communications you authored relating to the FOIA requests — raises the concern that those who pursue their statutory and constitutional rights for redress would be subject to lawsuits for exercising those rights."

Luce Herrmann said "we believe this is an important case."

"We hope that the lawsuit can be resolved speedily and that we will obtain access to the information we believe the public has a right to know," she said.

Caldwell added of the lawsuit, "It's unfortunate that we had to go to this measure. ... It's our intention to represent the people in finding out the truth."

McBain sent Jarema, county commission chair Joel Evans and Charlevoix County Clerk Cheryl Potter Browe another FOIA request Tuesday, Aug. 2 for any emails between Christensen and Jarema from 7-8:45 p.m. March 29 and 9:30-10:30 a.m. April 13.

As of Tuesday morning, an answer to the suit had not yet been filed with the court.

Community foundations seek grant requests

Area community foundations invite nonprofit organizations, educational institutions, and municipalities to submit grant requests to put local charitable dollars to work in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

Grant applications to support arts and culture, education, the environment, community and economic development, health and human services, recreation and youth are available by calling the respective community foundation office. All applicants must call to discuss their proposals in advance. Eligible nonprofit organizations must serve residents of Charlevoix County or Emmet County and work to enrich or improve life for local residents in some way. The deadline for submission is Oct. 3. Applications will be reviewed by adult community members and youth advisory committee members and recommendations will be reviewed by the respective boards of trustees.

"The community foundations accept resources from donors and then use a portion of the income earned from the investment of these gifts to help foster positive change in our area," a joint release from the foundations reads. "In this way, our donors' contributions meet our community needs, now and in the future – for good. Forever."

For more information, contact Charlevoix County Community Foundation at (231) 536-2440 or www.c3f.org and Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation at (231) 348-5820 or www.phsacf.org.

GOLF

Hickory Hundred returns to Belvedere Golf Club

CHARLEVOIX COURIER/FILE

Belvedere Golf Club head professional Marty Joy watches his ball head toward the hole during last year's Hickory Hundred event.

Belvedere Golf Club head professional, Marty Joy is set to again shoot 100 holes in a single day to raise funds for the Charlevoix County Junior Golf program. This will be the third year that Joy has dusted off his niblick, mashie, and blade putter, hickory clubs from decades ago, and played in this fund raiser.

Supporters of the summer youth golf program pledge funds for each hole Joy completes.

Dean Davenport, the director of the Junior Golf Program said the money is crucial to the program's success. He said money brought in from the Hickory Hundred event goes into the Junior Golf operating funds and enables the program to send selected youngsters to the week long golf camp at Ferris State University. In all, 122 young golfers have received these scholarships over the years. The money also supports two college book stipends awarded to graduating seniors that have been junior golfers and provided a good role model for young people in the community. It also helps to purchase season passes at city's Charlevoix Golf Club for selected youngsters.

Joy will start his golfing marathon at 6:30 a.m. on Monday Aug. 22 and he hopes to finish around 4 p.m.

"I'm hoping to shoot somewhere in the 70s for each 18 holes" said Joy, who has shot as low as 74 with hickory clubs during competition and has finished as runner up in six national-events.

"I will be wearing 1920's era garb and only hope it isn't too hot. If it is, that might be the biggest challenge. I will be motivated by the thought that the game I love will be made more available to young people in the Charlevoix area," he added.

Those wishing to make a tax-deductible pledge for Junior Golf make contact Marty at (231) 547-2611 or Dean Davenport, program director at (231) 547-6433.

Charlevoix Rayder football moms learn the game

MORGAN SHERBURNE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix Rayder moms got a dose of football on Tuesday, Aug. 2, during a clinic put on by the Rayder coaching staff aimed at teaching them the basics of the game.

Fourteen women attended the clinic, which was the first of its kind for the Charlevoix coaching staff.

The clinic started with varsity defensive coach Keith Carey explaining the rules of the game, as well as the most commonly incurred penalties and how referees signal those penalties. Varsity head coach Don Jess explained the players' positions on the field, what the players' jersey numbers mean in relation to their position and began explaining a few of the more than 40 plays the Rayder team uses.

"They threw a lot of information at us, but they did a great job," said Nickole Cox, one of the attendees of the clinic and mother of Pop Warner and middle school players. "What great young men we have coaching."

Even a grandmother attended the clinic — Mary Ann Cox heard of the clinic through Nickole Cox and wanted to attend.

"I didn't know the complexity of the plays," said Mary Ann Cox. "There were 40 different plays to learn."

The clinic even had a practical element: after laying the foundation of the game, coaches Jess and Carey led the women onto the football field for a few run-throughs of drills. The moms (and grandmother) were able to experience a few elements of the practice their sons will soon start doing every day.

First, the women practiced the proper way to hand off and receive a football. Then, they tried their hand at passing, kicking and punting the football.

"I think it went well," said Jess. "I was happy with the attendance and the questions the women had. It was fun for us as coaches as well. We never really get that kind of interaction with parents."

The coaches hope to make the clinic a yearly event.

United Way's 'Stuff the Bus' offers help to area students

Summer break ends in a few weeks, with teachers and students returning to the classroom. Many children look forward to arriving on the first day of school with new notebooks, backpacks, pencil boxes, and crayons. However, back to school time can be a burden on many low income families in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties. Some students won't have the school supplies they need, forcing many teachers to buy supplies using their own money.

The cost to families isn't negligible. According to National Retail Federation, the average family with children in grades K-12 will spend an average of $603.63 on school items this year.

To meet this community need, Char-Em United Way started a campaign in 2008 called "Stuff the Bus." You can help relieve the burden for both our youth and our area teachers. The United Way will be collecting school supplies and accepting donations at the Knart Plazas located in Petoskey and Charlevoix from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 13.

Items needed include: pencils, wide-ruled notebook paper, spiral binders, crayons, markers, pens, glue, tissue, hand sanitizer, copy paper, red pens, highlighters, plastic zip bags, staples, paperclips, stickers, construction paper and other arts and craft supplies.

To make it convenient to give, stores throughout Charlevoix and Emmet County will have drop-boxes available from Aug. 1-12.

As an extra incentive to get involved, a raffle drawing for each family that contributes will take place on Aug. 13. The grand prize will be two tickets to Avalanche Bay Indoor Waterpark (one prize for each location).

Char-Em United Way also accepts online donations for education at www.charemunitedway.org.

Volunteers are needed to help staff the event on Aug. 13 and help sort a bus load of school supplies on Aug. 16. To volunteer, contact Lisa or Ben at (231) 487-1006 or info@charemunitedway.org.

'Garden of Eve' author to sign books August 13

Best-selling novelist and long-time Little Traverse Bay cottager Mary Agria will sign and be available to talk about her new novel, "Garden of Eve," from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 13, at Book World, 407 Bridge St., Charlevoix.

The novel is a sequel to Agria's 2006 best-selling "Time in a Garden." Set in a fictional Xenaphon south of Charlevoix, the novel is "about (a widow's) recovery and realizing the myth of small-town American life, being a loyal friend, a good neighbor, valuing family, finding solace in the cultivation of community."

Agria has been a popular speaker on gardening and spirituality as well as community gardening with the Charlevoix and other regional garden clubs and Michigan State University Extension.

Invasive species, water levels topic at Lake Michigan Summit

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Environmental regulatory standards, Great Lakes water levels and wetlands ecology were the focus at the fifth annual Lake Michigan Summit at the Charlevoix Public Library Monday.

Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council hosted the event where state and federal officials spoke about Michigan's environmental climate and various Great Lakes restoration and protection policies. About two dozen people attended the free event.

Frank Ruswick, deputy director of the state Department of Environmental Quality's Office of the Great Lakes, said aquatic invasive species are among the greatest threats to the Great Lakes, including zebra and quagga mussels, as well as the recently much-discussed Asian carp. The mussels are already here and have cost tens of millions of dollars to clean up from water intake pipes alone, he said.

"To a large extent you're never going to get rid of them. It's important to try to keep them out," Ruswick said.

That's where things stand with Asian carp, he said.

Currently the electric barrier on the Des Plaines River in northern Illinois is the primary means to prevent the non-native fish from moving into the Chicago River and Lake Michigan beyond. The Des Plaines and Chicago rivers are not naturally part of the same hydrologic system, but were connected to achieve a viable shipping lane between southern Lake Michigan and the Mississippi River.

"Our position is that the most effective means of preventing Asian carp from entering the Great Lakes system would be to separate this hydrologic connection," Ruswick said.

Beyond invasive species, Ruswick discussed certain industrial developments on the Great Lakes that are gaining ground.

Ruswick said there is a growing interest in offshore wind turbines and it's expected to be a "fairly long, drawn-out process" to determine where to lease Great Lakes bottomlands and then hold auctions for the right to study and potentially build the large-scale windmills on the water. One key difference between Great Lakes offshore wind and similar projects along ocean coastlines is that the states — such as Michigan and Wisconsin — own the Great Lakes' bottomlands, while the federal government controls the ocean floors in U.S. waters.

Ruswick also discussed various pending pieces of state legislation that stand to impact how DEQ officials do their jobs.

Summit participants also learned about fluctuating Great Lakes water levels and how federal officials monitor the changes.

Keith Kompoltowicz, meteorologist and water level forecaster for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Detroit, said there are 5 quadrillion gallons of water in the Great Lakes system and they all are impacted by environmental factors that can shift the liquid around. Most of the variables are directly connected to weather patterns, he said.

"I like to think of the Great Lakes as a large, slow-moving river," Kompoltowicz said.

Natural impacts to water levels include precipitation, groundwater, ice and vegetation, storms, Earth crustal movements and others. Human impacts are diversions, regulations, dredging and consumptive uses.

The City of Chicago creates the largest withdrawal of Great Lakes water, Kompoltowicz said, but two diversions into Lake Superior in Ontario more than make up for that amount.

In the end, it's seasonal factors that are the main cause of water level fluctuations, he said.

Over the last 10 or 12 years, Great Lakes water levels have generally been below normal, save for Lake Ontario. The last system-wide high lake level occurred in 1997, Kompoltowicz said.

This year, Lakes Michigan and Huron are predicted to be near last year's levels or as much as six inches higher, though that remains about a foot below long-term averages.

More information about fluctuating Great Lakes water levels is available online at www.lre.usace.army.mil/glhh, including a place to sign up for monthly updates.

The last speaker at Monday's summit was Anne Hokanson, a state wetlands ecologist, who spoke about the various types of permits and application processes for developments on or near Michigan wetlands.

Ed and Diane Strzelinski, of Boyne City, attended the summit and said they came away with a lot of good information.

"We're environmentalists. We spend our lives giving our volunteer time to environmental causes," Diane Strzelinski said. "This has definitely encouraged me to write to my congressman."

More information is available on the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council's website at www.watershedcouncil.org.

Blood drives — Officials with the American Red Cross are continuing their appeal to help replenish the critically low local supply of certain blood types. Officials said donations in May and June dropped to the lowest levels the Red Cross has seen during this timeframe in more than a dozen years. Red Cross officials said demand is high for all blood type, but particularly for types O negative, which can be used for any patient. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

The couple met in Ann Arbor at the University of Michigan. Dave was a graduate student in the master of business administration program and Pat was an undergraduate. Dave received a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Notre Dame. After graduating in 1958, he served in the Army for 18 months in Korea as a second lieutenant before beginning at U-M.

Pat, is from Portland, Mich. where she attended St. Patrick's Catholic School where she was a cheerleader. After U-M she taught elementary school and later substitute taught when they moved from Muskegon to Greenville, Penn. She was president of the hospital auxiliary, owned a consignment shop, remains an accomplished artist, taught CCD at St. Michael's Catholic church where she also served on the parish council. She later became a travel agent, an art teacher and even taught an aerobics class.

After U-M, Dave became president of Witticomb furniture company in Grand Rapids and Muskegon. After obtaining a position as president and owner of Locke Machine Company in Andover, Ohio, they moved to Greenville, Pa. Upon selling Locke, Dave went to Pyromet in Reynold's, Pa.

Wherever he is, Dave, always, is eager to volunteer and serve his community, including St. Michael's Church and the Lion's club in Greenville, the Elks Club in Greenville, Estero and Charlevoix, and both Meals on Wheels and Junior golf in Charlevoix.

Both remain avid golfers and tennis players and ski during the winter months. Pat has won 15 club championships, eight in Greenville and seven in Estero, Fla. where they bought Pat's parents condo. In Estero, Dave is the treasurer at Country Creek condo association. Pat has maintained jobs with TJ Maxx and Maison Jardin. They both love playing cards, especially bridge. Pat is currently working on new art for a show later this year in Charlevoix.

Parking meters' time expired?

Council considers revenue, space turnover

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

This year's busy summer season may still have a few weeks left in it, but Charlevoix city officials are already thinking ahead to how they will manage parking in the downtown next year.

Earlier this year, a city council discussion about whether the city should charge for parking in its newest parking lot — the DeWitt lot on Park Street between Bridge and State streets — prompted council members to take a look at how parking is managed throughout the downtown.

With an eye to making the community more "visitor friendly" the council specifically wanted to look at the possibility of doing away with some or all of the city's downtown parking meters.

The two primary questions to be answered are how replace the two functions the meters serve: Bringing in revenue for the city's general fund and encouraging turnover in the high-demand downtown parking spaces — especially those on Bridge Street.

At the council's regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, city police chief Gerard Doan, who is charged with overseeing the city's parking system, brought four initial options to the council seeking to get the ball rolling on the discussion. His general options included:

Doan

— Make no changes, leaving meters on Bridge Street and the first half blocks of the adjoining side streets and the parking lot between Mason and Clinton streets and two-hour and 10-minute parking on some other side streets.

– Use parking meters only on the Bridge Street and the first few spaces of the side streets, leaving the rear parking lots open for free parking.

— Use parking meters only on the Bridge Street and the first few spaces of the side streets, and make the rear lots two-hour parking.

— Remove all parking meters and enforce parking spaces downtown in one, two or three hour parking zones.

Among the data Doan provided to the council was a list of the city's revenue for the three previous years from meters and permits and parking citations.

— In 2008 the city (when the East Park project was still being completed for part of the summer) meter revenue was $16,306 and ticket revenue was $12,838 for a total of $29,144.

— In 2009 the city brought in $21,419 in from the meters and $21,549 in fines for a total of $42,962.

— In 2010, when the city tried a "parking warning" system for first-time offenders, meters brought in $25,352 and fines brought in $8,208 for a total of $33,560.

Doan said it costs the city about $6,500 per summer to pay for the downtown parking enforcement officer, who is also responsible for installing meters in the spring. City street crews typically take them down after Labor Day, which is also a cost to the city.

He added that the city does incur some costs in maintaining its crop of 1960s-era meters, but he did not have exact numbers.

"The meters are getting old, and sooner or later we're going to have to replace them," Doan said.

Doan said he doesn't have hard numbers on which meters generate the most revenue, but said it's been his experience that the meters on Bridge Street tend to fill up more quickly than those in the back lots. He

Stiffer swimming sanctions possible

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Swimmers who get caught taking a dip in the Pine River Channel may soon have to dip much deeper into their wallets to pay fines associated with their prohibited actions.

During the council member comments portion of the Charlevoix City Council's Aug. 1 meeting, council member Jill Picha played a tape of a voicemail in which a pilot of the Beaver Island ferry the Emerald Isle said on a recent trip he had to bring the vessel to an emergency stop to avoid hitting a swimmer in the channel. At the meeting Picha said the city needs to do more to dissuade teens from swimming the in the channel, including upping the fine for violating the city's ordinance against the activity.

On Monday, again during the miscellaneous comments portion of the agenda, Picha renewed her call for tougher sanctions, saying she had spoken with other council members who agreed. Picha specif

Child, 9, injured in car-bicycle crash

A 9-year-old boy was injured Thursday, Aug. 11 when he was struck by a van while riding bicycle.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the injured boy as Daniel F. Hosler. Police said Daniel was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by East Jordan Ambulance where he was treated for lower leg fracture, other injuries.

Police said the crash happened at about 3:48 p.m. on Miles Road south of Rogers Road. Deputies said Linda Putnam, 64, of Central Lake was driving a 2003 Dodge minivan north on Miles Road when David exited his driveway and traveled into the path of the oncoming van. Police said Putnam reported that she tried unsuccessfully to avoid hitting the boy.

Police said speed and alcohol were not factors in the crash. The crash remains under investigation.

Charlevoix Mariners offer racks for boat storage

In June, the City of Charlevoix granted request by the Lake Charlevoix Mariners to operate boat storage racks at the north end of Depot Beach. The racks are now completed and available for registration.

The city authorized storage of up to 20 small boats for the project's first year of operation. Currently there are vacancies for 11 kayaks and two small boats. Organizers noted that Harbor Springs has a similar program which has capacity for 50 slips and as of early summer, all 50 spaces were taken and there was a 30-person waiting list.

Storage is $60 for the season, which will end in October, but organizers may offer a pro-rated rate for the remainder of this year's boating season.

Priority for next year will be given to returning storage customers. For more information, contact Tom Barnes at (231) 675-2533 or Tom Ochs at (231) 675-1119.

ically suggested that the fines be increased significantly.

Current city ordinance prohibits swimming or wading in the Pine River, essentially from just east of the Memorial Bridge to the pierheads on the north and south side of the channel. Violators are subject to a civil infraction with the same fee schedule as other city civil infractions, $50 for the first offense, $75 for the second in two years and $100 for the third or subsequent offense in two years.

Picha's proposed to increase the fines to $250 for a first offense, $500 for a second, and $1,000 for a third.

City clerk Carol Ochs said to make such a change to an ordinance, the council would first have to have the matter placed on the agenda and introduced at a meeting, then conduct a public hearing at the following meeting, then it could consider adopting it.

City attorney Jim Young said he would need to investigate what limits state law places on how much municipalities can charge in fines for civil infractions.

However, Young suggested another option that might give law enforcement more options — make the offense an actual crime as a misdemeanor offense.

City police chief Gerard Doan said part of what makes writing an ordinance prohibiting swimming in the channel difficult is that the city doesn't own the two piers from which most swimmers enter the water. The piers are owned by the federal Army Corps of Engineers.

"I don't feel it's going to be a matter of if, it's going to be when is someone going to be seriously injured or killed," Picha said.

She added later that her call for the steeper fines is aimed as much at the parents of the teens who are typically the violators.

"I'm somehow trying to get to the parents, too," she said. "I know there are parents who know their kids are out there swimming in the channel."

The city council enacted the ban on swimming in the channel in 2007 amid concerns about boat traffic and dangerous currents.

Young said he will investigate the options the city has and work with the city manager and police chief and report back to the council with options.

Nature keeps tabs as time flutters by

Roger Knutson

A few days back and about a mile out into Lake Michigan on a nearly windless day, I saw the first of this year's monarch butterflies cruising along, headed southwest. Butterflies of that kind, from as far north as parts of Canada, fly to a particular spot in Mexico, almost 2,000 miles from where they were born. Of course, not all of them make the whole journey. Two thousand miles is a long trip for something as small as a butterfly, and the world is full of dangers. That some monarch butterflies make the whole trip is verified by finding a few that were marked in Canada sitting on a tree in Mexico. That they make the trip at all is interesting enough. But how do they know when to begin flying south, as had the butterfly I saw?

Almost all living things, plant and animal, are aware of the length of day and night. The phenomenon is called "photoperiodism." It serves to explain why plants bloom at a particular season, why animals hibernate in some months, and it explains how monarch butterflies in Canada or Northern Michigan manage to begin a journey of almost 2,000 miles early enough to make it all the way to Mexico before being caught by the early frosts of winter. It is not the cold or heat, it is the length of day.

If organisms know how long days and nights are, they must have some sort of clock that keeps track of elapsed time. The location and mechanism of the built in clock remains something of a mystery, even though people have known about its existence for a couple of centuries. It is easy enough to imagine a clock associated with the brain of an animal. That is, after all, how we keep track of time. But the same sort of clock, one that is accurate to about 10 minutes or less, is found in plants. Surely plants don't have a brain hidden somewhere.

They don't. The same sort of clock, keeping track of elapsed time, how much of it is day and how much night, is to be found in simple, single-celled organisms.

Even without knowing the precise mechanism by which organisms of all kinds keep track of time, there is no doubt at all that they do so.

Back to the monarch butterflies. The one I saw still had about 1,800 miles to go. At a speed of about 25 miles a day (they rest at night), it still has about 70 days of travel ahead of it. That speed should get it to its wintering place in Mexico about mid-October. If it started from here any later than now it would have little chance to outrun winter. It has no calendar. It has no compass that we can detect, but thousands of its companion butterflies make the journey every year.

There are wonders all around us all the time. Look for a monarch butterfly in some windless day and note the direction it is fluttering and be awestruck.

LETTERS to the editor

Confederate flags don't speak for me

I don't like seeing confederate flags on display in our town, especially on main streets. I have heard the argument that the confederate flag simply stands for "southern heritage," but the vast majority would agree that it symbolizes prejudice. When flown on the road into town, any flag speaks for a population larger than the individuals who put it there, which is unfair to those who aren't behind the message it conveys. I think a Confederate flag tells certain outsiders that "you're not welcome here." We depend on tourism, and this expression is at odds with "Charlevoix the Beautiful." I further believe that a confederate flag flying next to Old Glory does not provide justification. In fact, it's a contradiction. One stands for freedom and acceptance, while the other stands for bias and oppression. I also believe in the First Amendment, which is why I write this letter: Let it be it known that your confederate flag does not speak for me.

Lions Club thankful for White Cane drive support

Editor,

Jack Weber, Charlevoix Lions Club president and Bob Grupp, White Cane chairman, extend their sincere gratitude to the Charlevoix Community and its guests for their generous donations to the White Cane fundraiser this past weekend. More than $3,800 was raised.

These funds, along with other funds raised during the year, will go to support various Lions of Michigan programs for the visually impaired as well as help right here in our own community. We also want to thank all of the club members who stood out in the sun Friday and the rain Saturday collecting.

If you have old eyeglasses laying around, and don't know what to do with them, you can drop them off at Dr. Steve Voci's office, 301 Clinton St., or give them to any Lions Club member.

Sincerely,
Jack Weber and Bob Grupp

Police: Man in crash 'severely intoxicated'

Karlskin

EAST JORDAN -- Just before 8 p.m. Wednesday, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to a personal injury accident that occurred on Rogers Road, east of Waterman Road in South Arm Township.

Sheriff's office officials said the driver, Cory Wayne Karlskin, 26, drove his vehicle backwards into a tree off Rogers Road. Alisa Marie Bell, 25, of East Jordan, was also in the vehicle.

According to a sheriff's office press release, Bell was checked out on scene by East Jordan Ambulance crews and transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital with non-life threatening injuries. Karlskin was also checked out on scene and transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was treated for minor injuries and severe intoxication.

Karlskin was arrested for operating while under the influence and was found to be approximately four times over the .08 percent blood alcohol content legal limit, police said.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office was also assisted by the East Jordan Police Department and the East Jordan Fire Department.

METERS

said those meters also seem to create the most parking turnover.

The consensus among the board seemed to lean toward considering an option to do away with the back lot meters first.

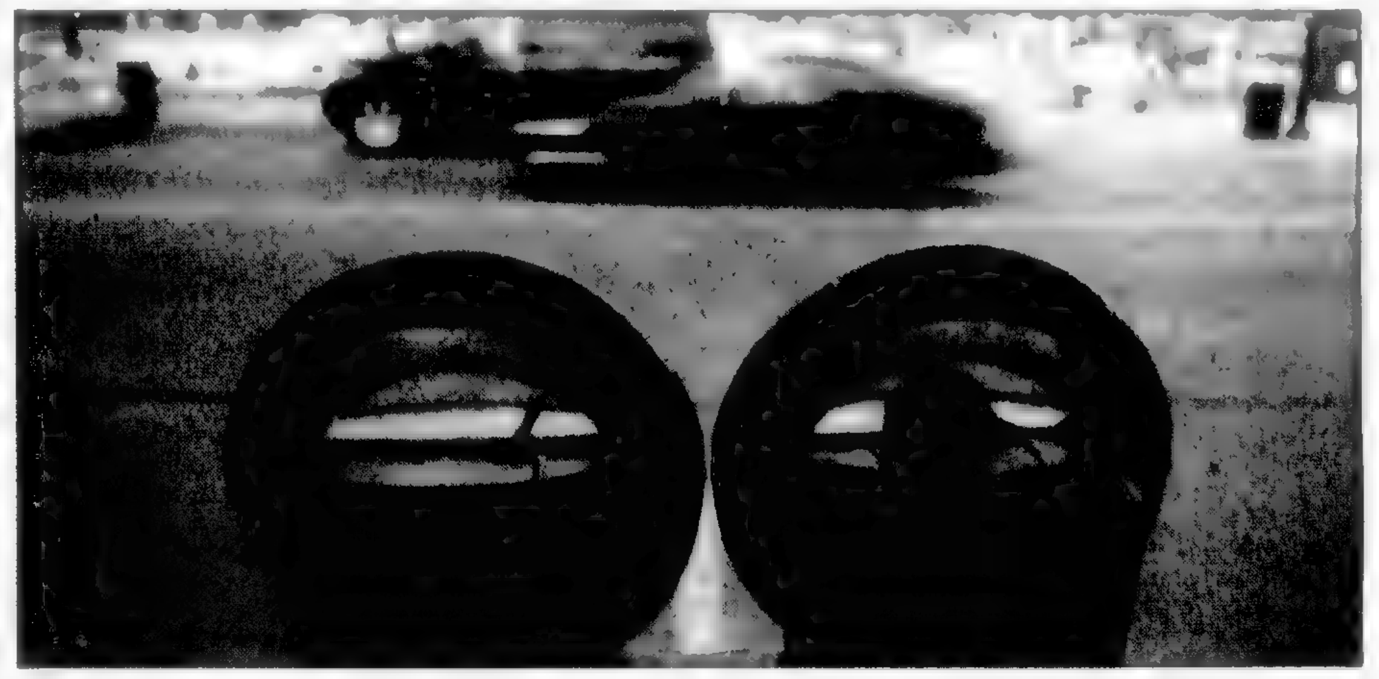
"I think its better to go, right now, with something like option three," council member Lyle Gennett said. "We could try removing (the back lot) parking meters, keep the ones on Bridge and maybe go back and revisit those later."

The council agreed that the decision on the future of the parking meters is one that needs to be made as part of the next budget-making process, which will take place around January.

In the meantime, city manager Rob Straebel said he and Doan would work together to come back to council with a tentative plan for its review. If the council agrees with the tentative plan, they would seek further input from the Downtown Development Authority, Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and other downtown groups before coming back for a final approval during the budget process.

In other business, the city council also approved a minor modification to phase II of a 2005 development plan for Mary Ann's Restaurant, 1530 U.S. 31 South. City planner Mike Spencer said because the phase II portion, which would include indoor seating, was not constructed during the approval period, the owner must now re-apply for a review. Spencer said the revised plan made only minor changes and still falls within all requirements of the zoning ordinance.

The city manager also updated the council on the progress of a utility and road project on Meech Street. Straebel said sanitary sewer work that had impacted traffic at the U.S. 31/Meech Street intersection is nearly complete, but noted that storm sewer work will require crews to do more work in the intersection later this week.



STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlevoix residents and visitors may see fewer parking meters, like this one on Bridge Street, in downtown Charlevoix next summer if city official decide to modify the current parking policies.

LOOKING BACK…

In 1854 Mormons Medad and Phoebe Thompson, with their many children, were lured by the siren call of Mormon renegade King James Strang's settlement on Beaver Island. It had become the largest single populated area in Northern Michigan. But they were quickly disillusioned by the dictatorial, often violent way of life they found. The Thompsons retreated to the mainland where they established a successful farmstead on the shore of Pine Lake (Lake Charlevoix) in the Ferry Beach area. Medad and Phoebe thus became the first permanent settlers of the seasonal fishing colony called Pine River, and two of its most highly respected residents who provided encouragement and support to many who followed to form what later became Charlevoix. Phoebe was a direct descendant of John Alden and Priscilla Mullens of the Plymouth Colony.

This photo is one of 850 images that form the Charlevoix Historical Society's new DVD called "Charlevoix, Michigan — A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades" available at the Society's Harsha House Museum, 103 State St. Monday-Saturday from 1-4 p.m. or at various places downtown and at Castle Farms. Love of words spurs Charlevoix nurse to pen book

RACHEL BROUGHAM

COURTESY PHOTO

Kathleen Jacobsen has always had a love of words.

At the age of 2, Jacobsen recalled describing the teeth of a shark as "trenchant" and a frosty window as "opaque."

Her father, an English professor, encouraged her to keep a diary and write her thoughts down. She even won some writing contests, but admitted she was really shy and found it hard to read her work aloud.

"I've always been writing, people just don't know about it," Jacobsen said.

"My father never dumbed down his vocabulary to anyone, including his children and it showed," she added. "I really liked writing, but I stopped because I was just too shy."

When Jacobsen, who currently works as the health education coordinator for Charlevoix Area Hospital, was in nursing school, writing fell to the wayside. But her father encouraged her to keep up with the art.

She would often write small stories to read her to two children, but two winters ago, for Jacobsen, it just happened — she started writing and couldn't stop. And what resulted is her new book, "The Adventures of Petoskey Stone Malone."

"When I started writing 'Petoskey Stone Malone,' I didn't want to be limited to the words that I used. I wanted it to be a book that could be read over and over and one that both adults and children would enjoy," she said. "So many times I've read a book to one of my children and neither one of us wants to read it again. It's spoon-fed to the child with nothing new to discover with the next read."

The book chronicles the unexpected journey of a little Petoskey stone and includes bright illustrations, including original watercolor paintings done by Jacobsen's mother, Marguerite McPeak, photographs and other illustrations.

It also features some vocabulary that young children may find challenging and does include a glossary to help them learn those words. By using bigger words, Jacobsen feels it will benefit them just as it did her.

"Intellect and learning isn't a precise science, children should be continually exposed to new and descriptive words and let them decide if they're interested," Jacobsen said.

"Children know what we teach them and what we allow them to be exposed to good or bad. I think it's a disgrace when we limit the wonderful language and words they hear early in their lives. Then, later, they are bombarded with copious vocabulary lists to memorize so that they'll perform well on a college entrance exam."

Jacobsen wrote the book under the pen name, Dub McPeak — using her childhood nickname alongside her maiden name.

She dedicated the book to her father, who exposed her to writing, and her brother who died at the age of 25 from a brain tumor.

Jacobsen, who has done many local readings of the book, said it's appropriate for both children and adults.

"I really wrote this book for my children to show them to follow through something to the end. When you start something, you should finish it," she said. "Writing has always been a love of mine and with this book I was able to do something I've loved from the beginning to the end."

Jail garden program grows character

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

SHERI MCWHIRTER/NEWS-REVIEW

Marcus Bundy bent to pluck a yellowed leaf from a tomato plant, cupped it in his hand and then pointed at a nearby row of cantaloupe vines, all in the same movement.

"Every flower there will be a melon," he said.

Bundy, 23, of East Jordan, walked through the 40,000-square-foot garden he helps tend and spoke with the authority of an experienced hobby farmer. The thing is, this is the first summer he's worked in the dirt and he only learned how after a series of mistakes.

Bundy is an inmate at Charlevoix County Jail, set to be released on Sept. 21 at the end of a sentence for failure to appear in court on a marijuana possession charge. But he's not an average inmate. He is a trustee.

Bundy and Todd Bilyeu, 41, of Grayling, are both granted special privileges for good behavior during their sentences for non-violent crimes, among other criteria such as a lack of risk to the community and any pending arrest warrants elsewhere. Among the perks is the right to work outside in the nearby garden without constant direct supervision. They even get gardening tools.

However, they are monitored by the jail's video-recording system.

Bilyeu is sentenced through Sept. 2 for a disturbing the peace conviction.

"It's an absolute privilege and they don't have to do it," said Chuck Vondra, the county's undersheriff and garden program founder.

The jail keeps an active work crew and inmates in orange jumpsuits often clean weeds from Charlevoix's well-known petunia beds, paint Little League dugouts or perform other public service work around the county. The garden grew from that long-established program.

Vondra said the garden allows the two trustees the opportunity to pay their debt to society, as well as learn both useful skills and the responsibility it takes to feed 50 other people. They also understand the value of trust, he said.

"They take something positive away from it and they can see that we are trying to teach them how to be better people," Vondra said.

Inmates also are encouraged to earn their high school diplomas or GEDs, he said.

"I spent 18 days sitting. Then I started picking weeds out of the petunias and was made trustee for the garden," Bilyeu said, smiling behind dark sunglasses. "I'm outside."

"It's much better. In there it's just idle time to think worry about how your family is doing - but out here we stay busy," he said.

The garden is filled with watermelon, green beans, tomatoes, cabbage, lettuce, carrots, cucumbers, potatoes, broccoli and various types of peppers. The bounty supplements the jail's kitchen and last year saved $5,000 from the food budget.

Vondra hopes to shave $10,000 this year.

"We purchase a lot of the stuff we grow. Why buy the high-dollar stuff when we can grow it?" Vondra said. "We use it to feed the inmates and what we don't use we preserve. They are eating their vegetables and they like it because it's fresh."

OBITUARIES

Margaret Forker 'Peggy' Smith:
April 5, 1937 - June 30, 2011

Mrs. Margaret Forker Smith, known to friends and family as "Peggy," died peacefully June 30 at her home in Cincinnati, Ohio after a long illness.

Mrs. Smith was born in Cincinnati on April 5, 1937 to David M. and Elizabeth Nichols "Betty" Forker. She attended the Dobbs School in New York, Pine Manor College and the University of Cincinnati, where she earned a master's degree in education. She later taught in the Head Start program for the Cincinnati Public Schools and was a volunteer art teacher at the Children's Home of Cincinnati.

Charlevoix and the Belvedere Club was Peggy's greatest joy. Over the years, she never missed spending at least a part of every summer in Charlevoix at the Belvedere. The family estimates that she made 50 consecutive summers before illness prevented her from making the trip from Cincinnati in 2008. Her fondest memories were of the many Charlevoix friends she made. During her later years, the Christmas cards and calls she received from her Charlevoix friends always brought a smile and provided an immeasurable benefit. Later in her life, it was the promise of a summer on the Belvedere that helped to keep her spirits up.

She was preceded in death by her husband of 35 years, Charles F. Smith III and her parents. She is survived by her brother, David Forker of Smiths, Ala., her children Chip Smith of Ann Arbor and Margo Smith Lober of Cincinnati, her two beloved grandchildren Jacob Lober and Rory Smith, and her longtime friend and care giver, Pearley Mae Brooks of Cincinnati.

Peggy requested no funeral service take place. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Joseph M. Parsons Sr.: Oct. 30. 1916 - Aug. 14, 2011

Parsons

Joseph M. Parsons Sr., 94, of Kingsford passed away peacefully in his sleep on Sunday, Aug. 14, 2011 at Dickinson County Memorial Hospital. He was born Oct. 30, 1916 in a farmhouse on the Old Dixie Highway, just south of Norwood. He was the grandson of John W., who sailed from Cornwall, England in 1855 and found his way via Canada and southern Wisconsin to the northern Lower Peninsula where he became a pioneer homesteader in Banks Township. Joe's mother, Sadah, as a teenager, came by horse and wagon from Indiana to Northern Michigan in the 1890s and married Joe's father, Albert, in 1898. Joe grew up in a small farmhouse on a hill overlooking the east side of Ellsworth Lake in Ellsworth. As a young man he sometimes would swim home after a day's work at the canning factory on the west side of the lake. Joe was the youngest of four boys in the family and brother to three sisters. As a youth he thought nothing of walking nine miles from Ellsworth to Norwood to visit a favorite aunt. Joe graduated from Ellsworth High School in 1936 (one of seven graduates). After graduation he worked for Bon Ton Bakeries (renamed Michigan Bakeries in the 1940s). Joe was married to Betty Ione Bird on Nov. 14, 1940 in Petoskey. They were happily married for 69 years.

During World War II Joe entered the service from St. Ignace and trained at Soldier Field in Chicago. He served in England (1942-1945) with the Army Airways Communication Squadron as a ground radio operator/direction finder and played a part in, and earned a D-Day Invasion Ribbon.

Joe's working years as a driver route salesman for Michigan Bakeries took him to most of the small restaurants and grocers in the northern part of the Lower Peninsula. Before the Mackinaw Bridge was built, he would often deliver bread, buns, and bakery products on his day off to Mackinaw City restaurants swamped by traffic backups for the car ferries going to the Upper Peninsula.

Joe was an avid fisherman and hunter in his younger years, with brothers and friends gathering at his home in Petoskey for the annual deer hunt. Joe and his wife, Betty, drove their truck camper to Alaska in the early 1970s and spent their later retirement years camping, fishing, and making friends at their favorite camping site, number 14, on Pretty Lake, north of Newberry. Joe stayed active cutting wood, hauling water the old-fashioned way — by hand-pump and celebrating life with good friends over "chimney fires" at their campsite. Joe and Betty moved from their Newberry apartment to Kingsford in 2008 to be closer to their son.

Joe is survived by a son, J. Merle (Elizabeth "Betty") Parsons of Iron Mountain; a granddaughter, Lori (Shawn) Smith of Minneapolis; a grandson, Jeff Parsons, of Salt Lake City, Utah; a great-grandson, Ryan Paul Parsons, of Salt Lake City.

Joe was preceded in death by his wife, Betty, on Aug. 19, 2010; by his parents, Albert and Sadah, by brothers Jack, Lloyd, and Harry and sisters Ruth, Mary, and Jane.

Graveside services will take place at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 10 at the Ellsworth Cemetery. The family requests that flowers be omitted.

Condolences may be expressed to the family of Joseph M. Parsons online at www.ernashfuneralhomes.com. The family has entrusted the Erickson-Rochon and Nash Funeral Home of Iron Mountain and the Hasting Funeral Home of Ellsworth with the arrangements.

County planning commissioners unsure of term lengths

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The county's new planning commission took their seats and elected officers last week.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission met Thursday, Aug. 11 in Charlevoix and re-elected Denny Jason as chairman, Tom Wieland as vice-chairman and Larry Levengood as the board's secretary. The trouble is, none of them know how long they will stay on the planning commission.

The county's board of commissioners last month appointed the new group of planners after it reorganized the group under standards set by the Michigan Planning and Enabling Act of 2008. They did not set term lengths at that time.

At least one county commissioner said at Wednesday's county board of commissioners' meeting that was an error.

"It probably should have been addressed when the appointments were made," said Chris Christensen, of Boyne City.

County commissioners briefly discussed setting the planning commissioners' term lengths this week, but opted to wait until the item had been posted in advance on a meeting agenda. Prosecutor John Jarema, also the board's civil counsel, recommended the board wait until this month's second meeting to set planning commissioners' term lengths, especially because recent planning changes proved controversial among some county residents who may wish to share their input before decisions are made.

Planning commissioners also discussed their unknown term lengths on Thursday. They agreed by consensus to submit a recommendation to the county board based on a suggestion by Larry Sullivan, the county planner.

Christensen attended Thursday's planning commission meeting and said the board doesn't need a recommendation, but the planning commission certainly can submit one.

"I don't think it hurts to send it," said Nancy Ferguson, planning commissioner.

All six previous planning commissioners were re-appointed in July, including Jason, Wieland, Levengood, Ferguson and both Michael Buttigieg and Bob Draves. County leaders also seated Patrick Howard, a planning commission member in Chandler Township.

Sullivan's term length proposal involves re-establishing the appointment expirations for all planning commissioners who previously sat on the public body.

That would put Levengood, Buttigieg and Draves up at this year's end, Wieland and Ferguson up at the end of 2012 and Jason up at the end of 2013. Sullivan will recommend county commissioners set Howard's term length to be identical to Jason's, an effort to continue the overall staggered term lengths.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners is expected to set the planning commissioners' term lengths at its meeting at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 24, at the county's administration building, 203 Antrim St. in Charlevoix.

Regional agency on aging gives report

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County commissioners learned about the financial impact a 10 county regional agency on aging had last year in their community.

Robert Schlueter, executive director of the Area Agency on Aging of Northwest Michigan, reported on Wednesday that his agency spent nearly a half million dollars in Charlevoix County last year. The funds paid for home delivered meals, congregate meals at senior centers, program development, medical care, shared housing and other efforts.

"A lot of caregiver training is going on," Schlueter said.

He explained that a current trend in senior services is to keep clients living in their own homes for as long as it's safe and feasible. The goal is to keep family members together and reduce outgoing expenses to elder care facilities, such as nursing homes.

The average monthly cost to live in a nursing home is about $6,500, while in home care often runs about $1,500 per month or less, Schlueter said.

Caregiver training is intended to support that mission of encouraging in home care over often expensive residential care.

"If we can help them take care of their family at home, then they don't have to go into a high-cost facility," Schlueter said.

The program is among the agency's biggest, he said.

Overall, the agency spent about 6 percent of its total 2010 budget in Charlevoix County — specifically $471,672. Of that, more than $126,800 went to the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging for congregate and home-delivered meals.

Jack Messer, executive director of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, said the regional agency provides valuable supplemental programs for seniors that the county program can't pay for.

Many of the regional agency's programs are operated through the local and state health departments, he said.

The Area Agency on Aging in Northwest Michigan serves Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford counties. Its total 2010 budget was nearly $8 million spread across the region according to senior population, Schlueter said.

Visit www.aaanm.org online for more information about the regional agency.

Memorial Bridge facelift

Deadline nears for leadership applications

COURTESY PHOTO

The deadline for application to the first-ever Leadership Charlevoix County class is fast approaching.

The continuing education program which is intended for professionals of all ages, and designed to benefit the participant, his or her employer and the community, is a combined effort among the county's four chambers of commerce.

Organizers said participants in the program should expect to graduate with increased leadership skills and a better understanding of the strengths and needs of Charlevoix County. The sessions are set up as mostly hands-on learning, and allow the participants to visit and understand how various sectors of the community relate and interact with each other. They will graduate with a personal plan of how they anticipate to implement those skills for the benefit of their employer and community, ultimately becoming an integral part of Charlevoix County.

An important aspect to the program includes a mentorship that allows participants to connect with current county leaders.

"The mentorship will prove to be a useful tool in promoting personal and professional growth as participants observe the traits of a proven leader. It will allow them to network with other business professionals and leaders, as well as to expand their learning," organizers wrote in a press release about the program.

The one-day-a-month sessions start in September and continue until May 2012 and will encompass various topics that comprise our community. The sessions will cover government, health and human services, economic development, education, arts culture and philanthropy, environmental and natural resources, and various other leadership skills such as creativity, communications, business ethics and media relations. In addition to the monthly sessions, the course will kick off with an orientation and overnight retreat to Beaver Island. The program culminates with a graduation ceremony in May 2012.

Applications are available online at www.leadershipcharlevoixcounty.com and are due by 5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 19. Applications can also be picked up at the Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan and Beaver Island Chambers of Commerce or by calling 231.547.2101. The program is made possible by a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

For more information contact Mishelle Shooks at shooks@charlevoix.org or 231-547-2101. Questions can also be directed to the Boyne City, East Jordan, Charlevoix and Beaver Island Chambers of Commerce.

The Peacock boutique, salon opens downtown

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Peacock, a unique new retailer in downtown Charlevoix, opened this summer.

The Peacock offers men's and women's accessories from costume jewelry to scarves, as well as being a full service salon.

"We really have two businesses," said Zac Sanger, owner of the business along with his wife, Kimberly. "We have a boutique in the front, and a salon in the rear."

As a Paul Mitchell Focus Salon, The Peacock offers their products exclusively.

"My wife, Kim, has traveled around the country extensively for training with Paul Mitchell," Sanger noted.

Kim has attended training with Paul Mitchell in Chicago, California and Florida.

Paul Mitchell offers its products exclusively through salons such as The Peacock. According to the website, they provide the salons with up-to-date education so they can pass their expertise on to clients. The site says, "Whether you need a product recommendation or want to update your look with the latest cut and color trends, Paul Mitchell Salons are equipped with the passion and knowledge to help you achieve any style you crave."

Kim Sanger is one of the business's two cosmetologists, along with Sussanah Tank, who has been working in the field for more than five years. Zac Sanger is currently attending school in the area to become the salon's third cosmetologist on staff.

Zac and Kim Sanger have been married 11 years and have three children in the Charlevoix school system. The couple relocated to Charlevoix about seven years ago for business reasons from Minnesota.

"We really wanted to raise our children in this area," Sanger said. "When my business afforded us the chance to live in Charlevoix we decided to move."

Both of the Sangers have been active in volunteering at the area schools and events. Sanger has worked with school coaches in soccer and other sports. The couple are also both members of the Charlevoix Elks.

The Peacock also offers a full line of Mirabella makeup, as well as makeup application.

"We do a lot with the makeup line," Sanger said. "We offer application of the Mirabella line, including training on how to do it yourself."

Sanger also noted that they offer complete makeovers as well for those interested in a change.

The location for the new business required the Sangers to remodel and outfit it for the change.

"We did our best to install all of the best, state-of-the art equipment for the salon," Sanger said. "I think we offer something unique to the area that customers will appreciate."

"Our goal for the business now is to continually raise the bar in quality," Sanger added. "Not just products and services, but overall. We strive to offer an overall experience that our clients will look forward to each time."

The Peacock is located at 204 Bridge St. in Charlevoix. Business hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and additional hours by appointment, including evenings.

The website is under construction, but will be located at www.thepeacockspage.com.

JENNIFER RICHARDSON
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

If a neighborhood kid hits a baseball through a window, clients of insurance agent Mike Epping can contact him to file a claim.

Epping, who has a background as a professional baseball player, also might be able to provide the wayward batter with some coaching.

After spending two years with the San Diego Padres and two years in Traverse City playing outfield with the Beach Bums, Epping, 27, has decided to call Northern Michigan his home.

Epping says that his commitment to community and desire to work with people are what led him to the insurance field, and State Farm's reputation and stability are what attracted him to that particular business.

"We're all about the customer. Our sole job is to help you," Epping said.

In addition to insurance, State Farms offers a variety of financial services, including vehicle loans, investment management, and traditional banking features such as checking and savings accounts.

"We offer so much more than what people think of, beyond car and home insurance," Epping said.

For example, State Farm agents can assist with rolling over individual retirement accounts (IRAs) when clients change jobs, and help clients to determine their investment needs to provide for their plans for the future.

Epping received a bachelor of science in management from the University of New Orleans, and is a fully-licensed insurance agent. He is also a member of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Epping and his wife, Kristi, currently live in Elk Rapids, and are expecting their first child this month.

"We're happy to be here, in such a great community," Epping said.

Business hours for Epping's agency are 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and also by appointment.

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix City Council may be looking for ways to charge less for parking in the city's downtown, but for two of its parking spaces, it is hoping it can charge a lot more — electric vehicles, that is.

At its regular semi monthly meeting Monday, the council unanimously approved a motion allowing city manager Rob Straebel to apply for a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to pay for a two-station electric vehicle charging unit.

In his memo to the council, Straebel said the city would apply for a grant for the estimated $8,000 $10,000 the unit would cost and the city would use its own manpower, equipment and materials at an estimated cost of about $3,800, to install the system.

Tentative plans call for the charging station to be located in the White Parking lot (the dirt lot located behind the city's fire station).

Straebel said the idea for looking into installing one of the charging units came from council member Greg Stevens. He said the unit could serve as yet another marketing tool for the city as the popularity of electric vehicles continues to grow, noting that users could spend time patronizing downtown businesses in the four to six hours many such vehicles typically take to re-charge.

"We'd also like to work with other municipalities to make this region a hub of locations that offer this service."

Stevens said he brought the idea up after some visitors approached him and asked where they could charge a vehicle.

Straebel noted that the city charter does not allow the city to give away city utilities so the units will use a credit card system for customers to pay for their charge-ups. He said the cost for most such systems is typically a few dollars per charge.

EVENT REMINDERS

Special medical marijuana meeting

The Charlevoix City Council and planning commission along with the Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees and planning commission will meet in a special combined session at 7 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 22, at Charlevoix City Hall to discuss how the two municipalities will regulate medical marijuana businesses in their respective jurisdictions. Both the township and the city have enacted moratoriums on the businesses to allow time to craft ordinances to regulate them. Leaders from both governments are looking for ways to make their ordinances complimentary to each other.

Special school board meeting

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education has rescheduled its August meeting to 6 p.m. Monday, Aug. 22, in the large meeting room at Charlevoix Middle School. District officials pushed the meeting date back a week to allow the districts annual audit to be completed before the meeting, also so that the date would be closer to the start of the school year, should any last minute changes be necessary. The agenda for the meeting was not yet complete at press time.

Hickory Hundred Monday

There is still time for those who wish to pledge money toward Belvedere Golf Club head professional Marty Joy's annual Hickory Hundred fundraising event for the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program. On Monday, Aug. 22 Joy will play 100 holes of golf using throwback style hickory shafted clubs. Those wishing to make a tax deductible pledge for Junior Golf make contact Marty at (231) 547 2611 or Dean Davenport, program director at (231) 547 6433.

EJ cyclist sees success on elite racing circuit

Brennan

EAST JORDAN — So far, so good for Mac Brennan.

Brennan, a 2008 East Jordan High School graduate, is in his first season as a part of Team Panther - an elite amateur cycling team that travels throughout the Midwest and Ontario - and has already found the victory podium.

Competing in the Le Champion Pave Criterium in Flint in late July, Brennan earned his first career Elite Pro/1/2 victory as he joined a breakaway group near the halfway point and held off a number of attacking riders to take the road circuit style win.

Brennan and his Team Panther teammates will look for more success this weekend when they compete in the fourth annual Cherry-Roubaix Old Town Crit and Road Race Aug. 13 14 in Traverse City.

Brennan, 21, said he plans on taking part in both the criterium on Saturday, and the Road Race - which this year doubles as the Michigan State Road Race Championship - on Sunday.

"This is my first year racing with Team Panther and it's been a great experience," Brennan said. "It's been a real step forward as far as competition level. It's a step forward from last year and the support that the team and I get from racing with other guys really takes racing to the next level."

Brennan, who began competitive cycling as a sophomore in high school in various Michigan Bicycle Racing Association events, rode for Priority Health of Grand Rapids last season before joining Ohio based Team Panther, for the 2011 season.

"They come to Michigan races once in a while and they do a lot of bigger races as well," Brennan said. "I was looking to get into (bigger races). ... I wanted to take the next step and they were really responsive."

Brennan and his teammates have spent the summer competing in national competitions in Georgia, Missouri, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Ohio and Michigan.

Now in its fourth year, Team Panther is looking to make a commanding presence in the elite amateur peloton with high-profile riders under age 25. Among Brennan's teammates are former professionals Paul Martin and Kirk Albers.

"Mostly it's been the same type of training," Brennan said. "I'm slowly progressing as I get older. The biggest difference has been in racing. The bigger races we go to have such a higher competitive level, it's harder and there's more depth in the field.

"It's really re learning how to race."

Brennan, a former cross country and ski standout at East Jordan High School and triathlon runner, caught the cycling bug years ago while watching the Tour de France on television with his father, Pat.

"I've always done a lot of endurance sports and it's just something I wanted to try so my dad and I looked into it," Brennan said. "I started out with junior racing and Michigan has a cycling organization (MBRA) that organizes a calendar of races and I just found races to enter."

Brennan eventually worked his way up the cycling category ladder to his now Elite Pro 1/2 status, where he's currently third in points on the 2011 Michigan Challenge Leaders board.

Brennan said he typically rides 2-4 hours a day during the week and races nearly every weekend. Some bigger races may last a week, some four days.

Brennan said his riding style is that of an all-arounder, much like that of 2011 Tour de France winner Cadel Evans of Australia.

"It's a little bit of everything," Brennan said. "I'm still learning where I'm at and what I really excel at. Until you get to that pro level, it's hard to know your one niche. I'm still progressing, hopefully I'll get to that top level."

Brennan, who attends Michigan Technological University, said he'd eventually like to race professionally for a U.S. domestic team.

"That's what I'm trying to work for," he said. "This year, I'm learning to race at a bigger level. Next year, it's getting results to get noticed."

Grant funds laptop for historical society project

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation presented a grant to the Charlevoix Historical Society for a new laptop onto which was loaded the society's "PastPerfect" program of 9,450 digitized images that provide a comprehensive overview of Charlevoix's history.

"This new computer is for the benefit of the public and allows anyone with a curiosity about any phase of the town's 16 decades of existence, or a need to do research about Charlevoix and the immediate area, to explore for themselves," museum co-director David Miles said.

The Charlevoix Historical Society began to digitize its collection in 2004. The two-stage project first scans the photos into master files. These files are on a discrete computer which is not connected to the internet to prevent the chance of virus contamination. The files are saved on external hard drives both at the Harsha House Museum and in a bank vault.

Then the photos are individually copied into the museum-oriented "Past Perfect" program along with supporting data, descriptive texts and people identification, and search term entry. This latter capability allows almost instant access to images of any person by last name, or any topic stored in the computer (houses, streets, hotels, schools, school classes by year, businesses and industries, vessels, the channel bridges, railroad history, churches, piers and lighthouses, Earl Young structures, etc.)

About 98 percent of the digitized images are available for reproduction.

Anyone who would like a demonstration of how to research a name or topic, or an explanation of how the Charlevoix Historical Society is both preserving its photo history and putting it to digital use through publications, exhibits, and programs is welcome to stop by the Harsha House Museum, 103 State St., from 1-4 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

Hospital completes first Smart Commute week

The staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital recently completed their first-ever Smart Commute Week which encouraged motorists to leave their cars at home and explore healthy, low impact alternatives to get to work.

From Aug. 1-5, 63 Charlevoix Area Hospital employee's (including the satellite offices in Boyne City and East Jordan) took part in the Smart Commute Week. A Charlevoix Area Hospital Employee Wellness Committee initiative, Smart Commute Week encouraged employees to decrease their carbon footprint, reduce roadway congestion and take a step towards healthier living. Employees chose to walk, bike, or carpool. Each participant received daily fresh gourmet breakfast treats by Kacy Hoaglund (a local Grand Valley State University student majoring in hospitality management) of "Nibbles and Noshes," a Commuter Week T-shirt, and a catered celebration lunch on Friday by Andy's Market. Additionally, participants could enter a 'Commuter Cup Challenge' making them eligible for many prizes including a $100 gift certificate from Revolution Bike as the grand prize. All prizes used for the event were purchased locally or donated by Charlevoix Area Hospital administration and gift shop, Cherry Republic, Cliff's Shoes, and Esperance.

Organizers said participating in the Smart Commute Week program reported that they enjoyed the event. Many liked the idea that the hospital was encouraging healthy lifestyle choices as well as carbon emission reduction.

W. Bruce Cameron to speak at library

W. Bruce Cameron will be the featured speaker to complete the Tuesday evening summer lecture series at the Charlevoix Public Library, 6:30 p.m., Aug. 23

Cameron, the best selling author of A Dog's Purpose, will be discussing his newest book, Emory's Gift, to be released Aug. 30, as well as his life's lessons that he shares in his columns, blogs, and books. Although well known for his best selling book about exploring the life and purpose of dogs, here is just a local boy. Born and raised in Petoskey, Cameron enjoys relating his child hood in Northern Michigan to the life of his children. His talk and books are appropriate for middle school grades and up.

Cameron will also be honored this year as the 2011 Columnist of the Year by the National Society of Newspaper Columnists. Event organizers said Cameron not only knows how to tell a story and bring life's lessons to print, he does so with humour and empathy that all can relate. "W. Bruce Cameron is the Dave Barry of modern family life," states John Temple, Editor & President Rocky Mountain News

Blood drives — Officials with the American Red Cross are continuing their appeal to help replenish the critically low local supply of certain blood types. Officials said donations in May and June dropped to the lowest levels the Red Cross has seen during this timeframe in more than a dozen years. Red Cross officials said demand is high for all blood types, but particularly for types O negative, which can be used for any patient. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Residents in the Charlevoix area aren't likely to see medical marijuana storefronts cropping up in their community anytime soon, but they could eventually have a producer living next door and never know it.

That was the "lesser-of-the-two-evils" direction elected officials from both the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township gave to their respective planning boards Monday at a four-board combined meeting at city hall.

The purpose of the meeting was for officials from both municipalities to get a direction on how they want to regulate medical marijuana provider operations in their respective jurisdictions. Both municipalities have instituted moratoriums on medical marijuana operations to allow time to craft zoning ordinances to regulate them.

On Monday, city legal counsel Bryan Graham gave the boards a primer on the legislation, approved by Michigan voters in November of 2008, that allows for medical marijuana to be used and dispensed in the state.

Graham

First the law allows "qualifying patients and primary caregivers" to possess (and, for patients, use) marijuana for therapeutic and pain-relieving purposes. It allows patients to posses up to 2.5 ounces of usable marijuana and to cultivate up to 12 marijuana plants and allows primary caregivers to possess the same quantities for each of up to five patients to whom they are connected through the state's registration system.

Graham explained that any zoning ordinance that would control medical marijuana would apply only to primary care providers and not to individual patients. He also explained that a municipality cannot exclude a legally permitted land use.

He said there are three options available to municipalities.

The most litigious route would be to follow the lead of a handful of downstate municipalities which have outlawed the operations based upon the argument that possession and use of marijuana is still illegal under federal law, which, they hold, trumps state law. Graham recommended against that route citing the high cost of a legal battle that would likely result.

Graham said the two more viable options that most municipalities have or are considering are the concentrated or dispersed philosophy. Both, he said, have their pros and cons.

– Under the concentrated approach, all medical marijuana provider operations would be allowed only in a certain area of the city or township — such as a commercial or industrial district. The drawback to this approach, Graham said, is the operation would likely be very visible as it would be allowed to advertise itself just like any other business. This could make the establishment and patients coming to and from it likely targets for break-ins and robberies. Also neighboring property owners could have concerns that their property value could suffer. The upside to the concentrated approach, Graham said, is everyone — especially the police — knows where the providers are located and patrols can target those areas for patrols.

— The dispersed approach is exactly the opposite, Graham said. Under that approach, the provider operations would be allowed only in single-family homes. He said such an ordinance could be drafted with language that would limit how many providers could be oper-

Review of 40-year-old ballot language calls fire department millage into question

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

EAST JORDAN — The East Jordan tax man took too much — maybe.

City officials recently discovered, it's possible they charged taxpayers a higher levy than they should have for the last 40 years. The worst-case scenario may leave the city with a bill for up to $1.12 million in tax refunds.

It's also unknown whether the state will issue any sanctions.

"We have believed for a number of years we had a 0.5-mill levy dedicated to fire department equipment," said Bob Anderson, city manager.

City leaders recently inquired about what it would take to bump that rate back up after years of Headlee rollbacks. That's when city attorney Scott Beatty found the discrepancy.

This is the first time city officials attempted a Headlee rollback restoration on the tax that generates about $28,000 a year, Anderson said.

"He looked at the original ballot language from 1969 and he discovered what he believes is some question that there might be a problem with the original ballot language," he said.

Beatty, a Charlevoix-based lawyer, could not be reached for comment.

City commissioners discussed the issue in closed session during their Tuesday meeting, then shared the discovery with the public after they returned to open session.

The 1969 ballot language reads as if city officials should have set aside that 0.5-mills out of their general fund millage, rather than establish and bill for an additional 0.5 mill levy, Anderson said.

"We're going to stop collecting it immediately," he said.

Now comes the investigation into what comes next.

"It's going to take some time," Anderson said. "We're going to have to get some outside advice."

Jim and Marie Shepard, of South Arm Township, said they own and pay taxes on property within East Jordan city limits. They agreed the mistake likely wasn't intentional, just an error that current taxpayers ultimately will pay for.

"You always hate to pay more taxes than you should, but we'd end up paying it anyway," Jim Shepard said.

Beyond the question of whether the city must make tax refunds comes the matter of how much would be sent back and to whom. Municipalities are permitted to levy up to 20 mills without voter approval, but typically don't because their elected officials must answer to voters.

What that means is East Jordan may legally be required to refund only the taxes collected above the 20-mill mark. City officials also may have to track down all taxpayers from 1970 until now, including estates for any deceased city landowners.

Whatever is determined, Anderson said officials want to sort out the confusion and remedy the situation.

Trouble is, if it comes to more than $1 million in tax refunds, city coffers can't cover that in one year. The city's annual budget is less than $2 million.

But the city manager remains confident.

"This does not put the city in jeopardy of bankruptcy," Anderson said.

It does mean the city's already slim budget will be reduced by at least that special millage rate. East Jordan taxpayers can expect continued public updates about the situation, Anderson said.

Bands coming to East Park

Two big bands will grace the stage for free concerts at the Odmark Performance Pavillion in Charlevoix's East Park Sunday, Aug. 23.

The Ransom Street Big Band, which is affiliated with the West Michigan New Horizons Music Ensembles will take the stage at 3 p.m. followed by the Gaylord-based Northern Michigan Brass Band at 5 p.m.

The Ransom Street Big Band has a traditional swing band instrumentation from the Big Band era. As such, we play music from the 30's, 40's and 50's, as well as some more contemporary settings of familiar pieces for the instrumentation.

The 19 members enjoy sharing the Big Band music with outreach to various organizations ranging from Camp Bluebird to local retirement communities.

The all-volunteer Northern Michigan Brass Band includes adult and youth brass players from across Northern Michigan from Alpena in the east to Traverse City in the west.

Fly-overs net more than 300 marijuana plants

Charlevoix County Sheriff's officials seized more than 300 marijuana plants, guns and various drug paraphernalia from a Boyne City residence. Officials arrested the home's occupant on multiple felony drug charges, including manufacture of 45 kilograms of marijuana, two marijuana delivery charges, two delivery of Xanax charges, possession of narcotics and maintaining a drug house.

Authorities withheld the suspect's name until after arraignment. More arrests in the case are possible, said Don Schneider, county sheriff.

Additionally, the Charlevoix County Drug Team completed helicopter fly-overs last week and found 364 marijuana plants at 18 different sites, including some medical marijuana operations. Law enforcement officers confiscated the plants from the illegal grow sites, Schneider said.

The sheriff also said authorities want to ensure medical marijuana growers meet all requirements of the law and used the state grant-funded helicopter fly-over to check.

OPINIONS yours & ours

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

This past week I spent the day interacting with an energized group of teens whose blindness slowed their pace by less than a minute. Most could maneuver the wooded campground very quickly with the assistance of a white cane. I found myself trying to keep up. These wonderful teenagers were attending a program sponsored by the Michigan Commission for the Blind. For this warm and wonderful week of summer they enjoyed all the nature and beauty of Camp Daggett and pristine waters of Walloon Lake.

The morning I arrived, I soon realized most, if not all of them had never ridden a horse or had the chance to be close to 1,200 pounds of equine. To witness the excitement firsthand of how a child sees a horse gives you a better appreciation of the beauty this wondrous animal beholds. Their first touch was the mane. To most it felt more like strips of nylon similar to fishing line, then their hands slowly moved down the ominous large neck, along the saddle and finally to a tail already swishing flies away. The volunteer described parts of the horse with candor but these youth described it with their inner senses. Most of the riders shared their thoughts openly: "I can feel his strength when I lay my hand on his neck" and "His breath warms me, his heart consoles me."

Hooves gently paw the ground in anticipation, knowing this rider is special. A volunteer's hand carefully supports the youth to reassure them they would be by their side. A foot slides into the stirrup, a leg over the back of the horse and now sitting up tall feeling nothing but the cool Northern Michigan breeze and hearing the exchange of two cardinals curious about the riders on horseback about to come their way.

All is quiet except for the sounds of nature and the horse's hooves as they clip clop from black top to dirt road to a quiet shuffle on the shaded trail. There is a dramatic change of temperature from the sun reflecting off the road to the coolness of walking on the soft wooded floor of the shaded trail. The smell of leather begins to mix with horses sweat but we are refreshed by the aroma of fresh pine and the feel of a cool breeze coming off the lake. Everything comes to life when seeing it through the eyes of a child who can't see clearly beyond the reach of his arm. Every wildflower, every glimmer of a leaf blowing in the breeze is appreciated when walking side by side with a child who can only visualize things in his mind.

This heartfelt program could not have taken place without the help of adventurous volunteers. I am so grateful for their assistance. There were savvy sides walkers who made certain the rider felt secure and alerted the students of branches that occasionally dipped into the trail. Helpful horse leaders who guided the horse around pot holes and away from tree limbs that may brush against a youthful inexperienced rider.

Other activities were taking place for our students at the same time which included a ride on the zip line which ran very close to the trail we were on. So, occasionally you would here the high shrill of child as he or she raced through the air. It was a trapeze of sorts, creating the look of wood nymphs flying through the trees. There was complete excitement and delight written across their faces. Both of these activities were followed by a boat ride on a pristine lake — an opportunity to feel both the sun and a spray of water at the same time again heightening the welcome of Mother Nature. The night ended with a prom complete with dinner, music and photos, turning this woodsy setting into a fairy tale setting.

Although it was obvious these children could not see, I think I saw a glimmer in one little girl's eyes when she nuzzled close to her horse's beautifully carved head and whispered, "Thank you." She then briskly reached out for her cane and with a carefree lilt in her walk made her way back to the main cabin. It was a day full of fun she'll never forget and neither will I. There were enough memories created that week to reflect upon during the many quiet days of winter.

Relay for Life organizers thankful for support

Editor:

As the staff partner for the American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Charlevoix County event, I would like to thank the residents of Charlevoix County for their generosity and support. In all, 17 teams participated in this year's event, held Aug. 13-14, and raised more than $40,000 (and money is still coming in) to help the society's fight for every birthday, threatened by every cancer, in our community and throughout the world. This outstanding show of support proves that the people of Charlevoix County stand shoulder to shoulder with the American Cancer Society to achieve its mission of saving lives by helping people stay well, by helping people get well, by finding cures, and fighting back.

We were honored to be joined by 42 survivors who walked the Survivors Lap, these survivors are the reason we continue the [illegible]. [illegible] participation in [illegible] those currently battling cancer.

A special thanks to the Relay For Life Committee members and many volunteers who worked to make this event a success, celebrating the lives of those who have battled cancer, remembering loved ones lost, and pledging to fight back against the disease. The Relay For Life committee did an outstanding job of putting the event together and demonstrating leadership in the fight against cancer in our community.

We also appreciate the generosity of this year's corporate sponsors: East Jordan Community Park, Sommerset Pointe, 9&10 News, 106 KHQ/Lite 96, Charlevoix Publishing, Evangelical Lutheran Church of East Jordan, East Jordan Iron Works, Glens Markets, Farm Bureau Insurance, Preferred Waste LLC, At Your Service Plus, Jordan Valley Rental Inc., Fraternal Order of Eagles No. 1583 Boyne City, BC Pizza, Maple Ridge Dental Group, TrueValue, Great Lakes Energy, Red Mesa Grill, Atlas Electric, Insurance Shop, Signs Letters & Graphics, East Jordan Plastics, Melvindale Police Department, East Jordan Elementary School, Phoenix Trailers, Subway-Boyne City, 5th/3rd Bank, McDonald's, Pinney's Logging, Paga Family Dentistry, Cancer Crusaders, Lighthouse Missionary Church, Marty's Cones & Carry Out, Rotary Club of Boyne City as well as the many community donors. Relay For Life would not be possible without them. Also thank you to the many day of volunteers, activity coordinators and entertainers.

Art teacher grateful for fundraiser support

Editor:

On Sunday Aug. 14 the community again came together to support our Charlevoix Public Schools art programs. The annual fundraising event at Esperance Market and Cafe was a great success thanks to the support from so many. As an art teacher in this community, I feel so privileged to be a part of this event and on behalf of the Charlevoix Public Schools Art Department, wish to truly thank all who contributed; the parents and school staff volunteers, the artists and businesses who contributed goods and services, the event patrons and their continued generosity, the Charlevoix Council for the arts, the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, and of course Suzanne and Pram Acharya and their wonderful staff at Esperance. I would also like to thank the Charlevoix Public Schools' administration and board of education for supporting our art students by keeping the art program strong and intact K-12, even when they are faced with tough budget cutbacks. Finally, I also need to thank the students who come into our art rooms every day with their promise, enthusiasm and amazing creativity. The students are the reason we all come together and make it work.

Entertainers grateful for chance to perform downtown

Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to thank someone we feel has been a special gift to the city of Charlevoix.

Cindy Flora is the manager/buyer and creative genius behind the shop, Halfway To The Top. She took it upon herself to host a summer series of sidewalk entertainment.

Her desire was to add to the fun downtown, so she enlisted our help to do just that. We began by setting up our music outside her store, and one day each weekend we became ambassadors of Charlevoix. It felt good to be in a position of encouragement to those who come to our town from all over the world. At the same time, via the microphone, were able to boost the names of local businesses. Whether the business was on the same block as Halfway To The Top, or driving by with their name on the side of the vehicle, they all got a little free plug from us.

It was especially fun for us to entertain the folks who were waiting for the bridge to go back down. Talk about a captive audience.

But, most of all we were grateful for the opportunity to thank our town, "Charlevoix The Beautiful," for providing such a wonderful backdrop for those who visit, and for those who live here.

Honorable mention also goes out to Todd Warner Gallery, Subway, Revolution Bike and Board and Cherry Republic for supporting our efforts. And kudos to the friendly, hardworking staff at Halfway To The Top. But for us, the superstar of this summer is Cindy Flora, for acting on her inspiration and generously including the rest of us.

Thanks for your wonderful gift.

Your friends and local entertainers,
Maggie and Jeff Dickson

ate one house, that could prohibit any sort of signs or any indication medical marijuana's presence there; and could also require that the marijuana be delivered to patients instead of being picked up. He said buffer zones could also be written into the language that would establish distances from places such as school, churches, parks, or other provider locations. However, Graham cautioned that the restrictions cannot be so limiting as to effectively eliminate all properties in the township or city.

Graham said municipalities that choose to allow the suppliers to operate in homes regulate the use through an administrative permit process, rather than through a special use permit. That's because a provision of the medical marijuana law makes it a felony for a government employee to disclose personally identifiable information about registered patients or providers a misdemeanor offense. Therefore, a public hearing (and the accompanying notices to neighboring property owners) that would be required for a special use permit, would by default violate the non-disclosure portion of the law.

When asked directly by Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr., which option they recommend, both Graham and city planner Mike Spencer gave the nod to the dispersed, in-home option.

Graham estimated that 80-90 percent of municipalities are going with the in home option, but imposing restrictions aimed at making their presence as invisible as possible.

"The way I look at it (the law) really legalized (medical marijuana) in a private setting," Spencer said. "I try to go back to the intent of the state law."

Graham added: "The statute was never intended to create an industry."

Both men agreed that the legislation is poorly constructed and vague and fraught with pitfalls, especially for police.

Spencer agreed noting that many police officials are concerned about how the law could impact their drug enforcement efforts.

"They could go bust a legal grow operation," Spencer said. "If that happens, who pays for the busted down door?"

But Graham said that's a problem for the police to work out.

"This is a land-use issue only," he said. "We're not going to fix the medical marijuana law."

After some discussion, the clear consensus among both township and city officials was in favor of the in-home regulatory option and both boards charged their respective planning commissions to begin drafting zoning ordinance amendments in that vein.

Graham also suggested to the board members that as they set to work hammering out details of the restrictions — such as buffer zones around certain properties, how many providers should be allowed per dwelling, and so on, that the more restrictive the ordinance is, the greater the chance that it could be challenged in court. Secondly, he suggested considering the 2008 vote totals on the proposals in their respective jurisdictions as a barometer for the community's support for medical marijuana.

Charlevoix County Clerk records show that 60 percent of voters in the township and 63 percent in the city voted in favor of the proposal — which approximately mirrored the state-wide vote.

In the coming weeks, both the city and township planning commissions will work on the details of their respective ordinances, which will then come back to the council or township board of trustees for final approval.

Cadillac carjacking incident under investigation

A four-day investigation into the incident involved assistance from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, Boyne City Police Department and officials from the U.S. Coast Guard Air Station Traverse City.

The case remains under investigation, authorities said.

Commissioners question proposed trail document

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

A document about the right-of-way along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road and the non motorized trail proposed to be built there is on center stage among county leaders.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' personnel and internal government committee met on Wednesday, Aug. 17 in Charlevoix to discuss the document circulated at previous bike trail informational meetings. The form was not available at the meeting that took place on Tuesday, Aug. 16 in Boyne City.

County planner Larry Sullivan said he drafted the letter for the county's parks committee to be used in an advisory way, a method to track which roadside residents are willing to have the trail built within the public right-of-way that crosses their land. Sullivan did not attend Wednesday's committee meeting.

"I think we need to address the situation. I think we need to confront the situation," board chairman Joel Evans said.

The document allows residents along Boyne City Charlevoix Road to sign off on the trail to be designed within the existing right of way. Neither the county board nor Charlevoix County Road Commission officials approved the form before it found its way into public hands.

At least two county commissioners said the form is inappropriate.

Evans and commissioner Rich Gillespie agreed the form appears to be legally binding and approved by county officials. Neither is true.

"I think it's a misrepresentation," Gillespie said.

Commissioner Ron Reinhardt said he always believed the form's intent to be advisory.

Sullivan said he modeled the form after the road commission's existing grading easement document and gave it to county commissioner Shirlene Tripp who is also the parks committee chairwoman.

"I did not circulate it to anyone in the public. It was intended to be used by the parks committee, if they chose to do so," Sullivan said.

Tripp said she made the form publicly available at the trail meetings which took place this spring at Evangeline Township Hall, not Sullivan. She intended it to be used to track resident support, nothing else.

Tripp did not attend Wednesday's committee meeting.

John Jarema, county prosecutor and board civil counsel, said his concern is how the form looks like a legal document. He suggested Sullivan be summoned and questioned at a coming board committee of the whole meeting.

"Larry probably needs to be brought in and spoken to or have something put in his file," Jarema said.

The personnel committee chose not to call Sullivan into Wednesday's meeting, but to instead wait for a time when commissioner Chris Christensen could attend. Gillespie filled in for the absent Christensen at Wednesday's meeting.

Sullivan will be questioned at a committee of the whole meeting at 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 24, in advance of the full board meeting at 7 p.m. that day. The meetings will take place at Charlevoix County's administration building in Charlevoix.

Meanwhile, Charlevoix County Road Commission Manager Pat Harmon said that agency's attorney will draft a right-of-way release form when the county's parks committee requests it. That document will be legally binding and will usurp the unofficial form available in the past.

Ultimately, both documents may not legally matter in terms of releasing right-of-way use.

Citing a recent state Michigan Attorney General's opinion on the matter, county officials and Michigan State University Extension educator Dean Solomon said at Tuesday's informational trail meeting that a non-motorized recreational trail can be built within the public right-of-way, regardless of landowner preferences. They also said trail proponents are determined to work with each property owner to design a trail that meets everyone's needs, even though it's not required.

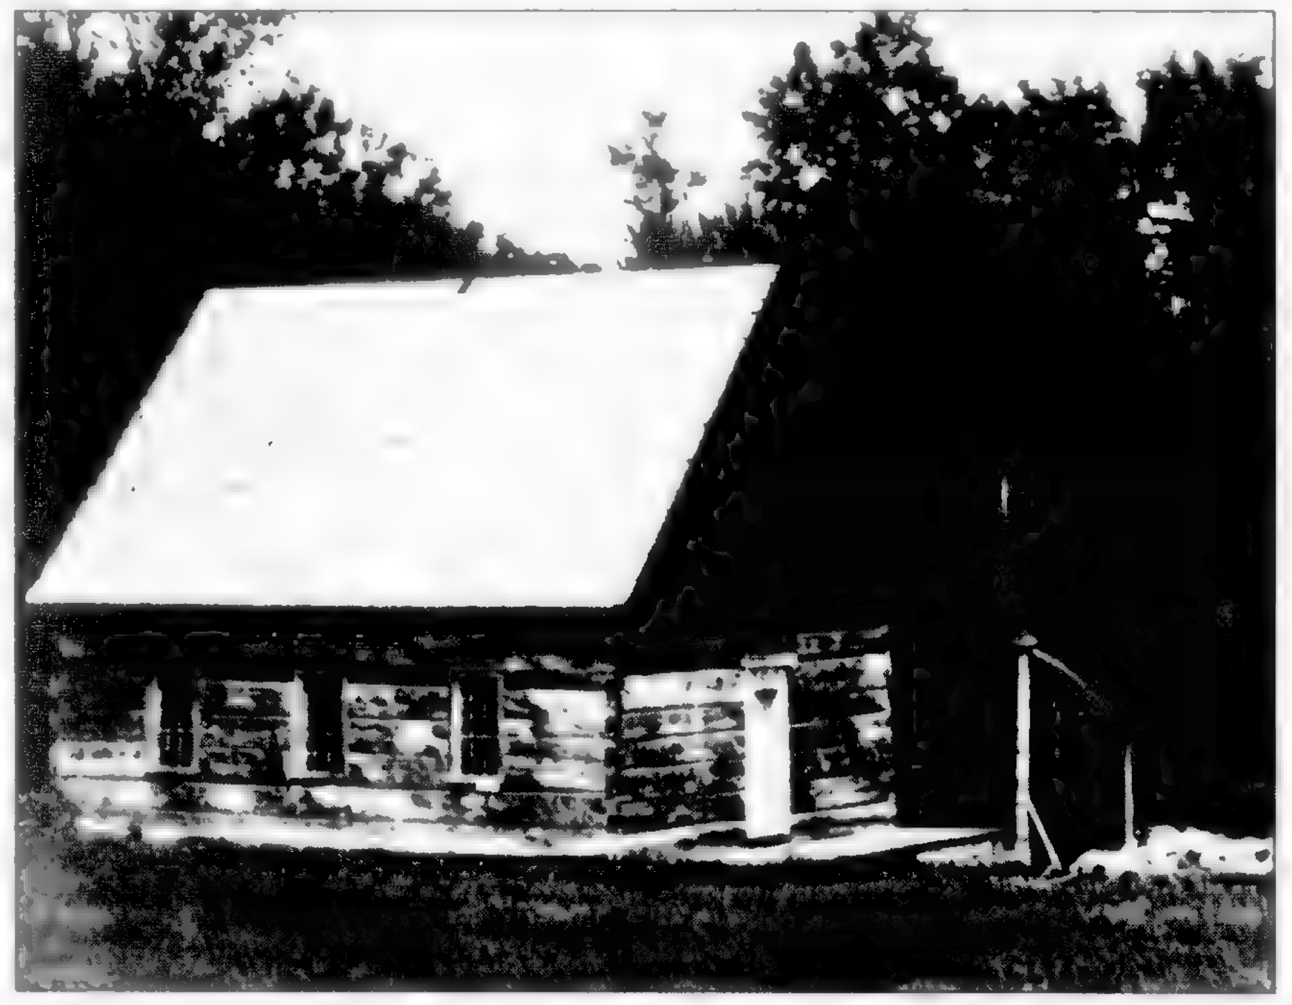
Tripp said this controversy about the trail document is nothing more than retribution for an earlier discussion that she started about emails that prompted a Freedom of Information Act lawsuit against the county from the Petoskey News-Review.

In that matter, Tripp publicly criticized Jarema and Christensen for sending emails to each other during board meetings as they sat across the room from each other, and the newspaper subsequently sued for copies of those emails after Jarema denied multiple Freedom of Information act requests for the materials.

"Don't you think the commissioners have something better to discuss right now? How about the budget we have to have done at the end of the month? Instead we're dealing with this piddly stuff," Tripp said.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

LOOKING BACK…



COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Native-American Peter Greensky of the Grand Traverse region was converted to Chrisitianity in the early 19th century. Around 1839 he founded a church about three miles northeast of the area that later became Charlevoix. It was called a "Wag-nog-ang" a small bark structure with a dirt floor. A growing congregation needed a larger church, so in 1851, it is believed, this wood structure was begun. It was formed over a decade entirely of skillfully-crafted hand-hewn logs fitted together with no metal, and thought to be finished 150 years ago in 1861. Several years later, different windows and frames were installed, and a porch extension with bell tower added. Long affiliated with the Methodist Church, Greensky Church has held services here ever since, with hymns sometimes sung in the Ojibwe/Odawa language. The little treasure in the woods remains a beacon of the faith.

Family affair at the library

Public library to host Oral History and Genealogy Fair Saturday

The Charlevoix Public Library will host the Oral History and Genealogy Fair, from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 27. The event is free, and open to the public, with activities for all ages.

Local organizations whose focus is oral history and genealogy have seen a surge in interest, spurred in part by the NBC television program, "Who Do You Think You Are?" in which stars such as Ashley Judd and Gwyneth Paltrow uncover the stories of their ancestry. An interest in oral history, the stories and recollections of ordinary people, has been sparked in part by the StoryCorps project, which records conversations among people all over the country and preserves them in the National Archives.

The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society and the Charlevoix Public Library are sponsoring the fair for adults and youth curious about local history, interested in recording their own oral histories or those of family members and neighbors, or considering researching their family genealogy. Seven other area organizations will also be participating.

A complete schedule of events and list of exhibitors is available on the society's website, www.cchps.info. Participating organizations include:

— Raven Hill Discovery Center which will bring its "History To Go!" program, featuring hands-on history activities from pioneer times. Adults and youth can experience life in the 1800s with a variety of interactive memorabilia. Families will actively explore pioneer life – food, clothing, toys, and school.

— Real People Media was founded to help the residents of northern lower Michigan and the eastern Upper Peninsula tell their stories through video. The organization will show several films from its Digital Arts Storytelling program, including a recording of a story told by Odawa elder, Veronica Medicine, with stop-motion animation by local teens. The exhibit will also have information about the group's Folklore to Film project, which seeks to preserve local history and culture. At 11 a.m., executive director and filmmaker Rebecca Glotfelty will give a 30-minute talk entitled "Move from Information Gathering to Storytelling Establish a Connection."

— The Norwood Area Historical Society will have photos, books, and other historical materials about Norwood, the small community with a fascinating history. The organization will sell raffle tickets for its 2011 quilt "Norwood Nines," and offer various items for sale, including Nancy Ritema's book Norwood: A Legacy of North Woods Living.

— Job Winslow Chapter, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution will show short videos about the Daughters of the American Revolution and the DAR Library in Washington, D.C., offer materials about the Constitution, provide its family bible preservation service (digitize and preserve the family information in your Bible), and have a drawing for 10 hours of free genealogical research.

— The Charlevoix County Genealogical Society will provide free resources and assistance for those embarking upon family genealogy projects. They'll also be offering original and area history publications and a number of original vintage photographic prints for sale, and fee-based one-on-one genealogy research on the day of the fair.

Emmet County Genealogy Society will provide various resources and talk with people interested in genealogy. They'll also be selling its cookbooks and digital and printed copies of past newsletters.

— The Charlevoix Public Library exhibit will showcase library resources and will feature Charlevoix Oral Traditions, a set of 20 DVD recordings of local patrons telling their stories of Charlevoix. Ancestry.com will be available on library computers.

— The Charlevoix Historical Society will showcase various services and resources available to those researching local families and history, including a collection of 15,000 historic photos, their oral history collection, reference materials, and several publications. They'll also offer various items for sale.

— The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society will have two teams of interviewers recording the oral histories of long-time area residents during the fair. They'll be available to talk with you about recording your oral history, and will schedule an interview if you are interested. The organization will also display information about its Undine project, the subject of its year-long exhibit at the Charlevoix Historical Society's Harsha House Museum. Visitors will be invited to help society members identify people from the lost lumber settlement in historic photos, and share their family stories about Undine. Local history gift items, including Undine souvenir postcards and the recently-published Park Avenue Prowl, will be offered for sale.

The health expo is a free event, though lunch will cost seniors $5 and everyone else $8.

Big turnout for trail talk

SHERI MCWHITER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

BOYNE CITY — A large crowd of concerned citizens gathered to hear the latest information about the development process for a non-motorized recreational trail proposed alongside Boyne City Charlevoix Road on Tuesday, Aug. 16.

About 60 area residents gathered at Boyne City City Hall to listen to key players discuss progress to date on the creation of the trail, as well as ask questions about the trail's potential impacts. Another informational meeting may be scheduled in the fall, as more details become known.

Dean Solomon, Michigan State University Extension educator, discussed the trail's steering committee and the results of its study. The committee found there is common ground between those in favor of the trail and those opposed.

"There are a lot of creative ways to make it work for everyone," he said.

The group reached the general consensus that a partially detached trail, with some areas attached to the county highway, is the most likely way the trail will be built. The public right-of-way in some areas stretches quite close to homes and buildings along the stretch, where funneling the trail to the highway's edge will be the likely design.

Some residents expressed safety concerns for those who live along the road.

Bob Taylor, Bay Township resident, said he worries how safe the trail will be if fast-moving cyclists are there when residents walk to their mailboxes or take their dogs for a walk.

Yolande Waldie asked about stop signs along the trail and whether they would be placed at every driveway and street crossing. More than 100 driveways exist along the stretch on both sides of the highway.

Pat Harmon, Charlevoix County Road Commission manager, said he's unsure about driveway crossings, but is confident trail stop signs will be placed at all road crossings, at the very least.

Bruce Wood, vice-president of the Michigan Snowmobile Association and president of the Jordan Valley Trails Council, said his concern with the proposed, non-motorized trail involves whether snowmobile riders will lose access to the right-of-ways. High-power sleds are permitted in the right-of-ways along county highways, but this effort is pitched as a non-motorized function, he said.

"I'm for a bike path, but I don't want to lose what we have," Wood said.

Harmon said that's another issue he will have to investigate.

Panelists at the meeting also included Ross Maxwell, county parks and recreation director; Larry Sullivan, county planning director; and Shirlene Tripp, county commissioner. They discussed how two grants are pending with state officials for funds from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund and federal Transportation Enhancement dollars through the state Department of Transportation.

Funds won't likely be available until at least 2013, if any grant dollars are awarded, Sullivan said. That leaves plenty of time to work with individual property owners about trail design, he said.

More information about the trail and the progress on its development is available online www.charlevoixcounty.org/trailcommittee.asp.

Charlevoix County resident Bob Waldie speaks at the Tuesday, Aug. 16 informational meeting about the non-motorized recreational trail proposed along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. He said a Petoskey-based law firm gathered information from landowners along the trail route that differs from the data collected last year by the trail's steering committee.

Pretty Woman opens in Charlevoix, Petoskey

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

On July 3, an unusual grand opening occurred in Charlevoix and Petoskey.

"Opening in both towns just six hours apart was a little stressful," Mehney said.

Originally planning to open a single store in Petoskey, delays in remodeling afforded Mehney the chance to work on the Charlevoix store simultaneously.

"We offer some very affordable stylish products and also try to stock some very high end for those looking for it," Mehney noted.

They carry a variety of styles and offer ladies handbags up to $1,500.

Mehney is originally from Shelby Township and relocated here with her family about nine years ago.

"We have seven children, and decided to change careers and open a business in Petoskey," she said.

In 2003 she and her husband, Ed, moved to Petoskey and opened Serenity, A Bed & Breakfast. In addition to that, Mehney managed Items and worked at Pappagallo's downtown.

Over the past three years Mehney and her staff have assisted with the fashion shows for Zonta, 96.3 Odawa Casino and downtown Petoskey spring fashion shows.

"My merchandise manager, Lisa, has been a huge help and I wouldn't want to do it without her," Mehney said. The two stores created jobs for six people, including management.

The Petoskey boutique was a five month complete remodeling project for Mehney.

"We even got a grant to replace the store windows, which was remarkable and a good thing for the city," she noted.

The Charlevoix store also received a partial remodel, which took several weeks.

The store has its own private designer, Alona Kelly. Kelly designs clothing and handbags of exotic skins and other materials.

"We offer high-end design, quality and comfort in our products," Mehney noted. "Trading style for comfort is no longer, and the stores' collections are for the fashion conscious woman."

Another fixture in the new store is Mehney's dog, Spencer. He is a well-known dog clothing model for Bearcub Outfitters in Petoskey, and appears in its advertising.

"We have people stopping in all the time just to see Spencer," Mehney said, adding that the stores are dog friendly.

The shops will host a grand opening event and PEcado trunk show in the near future.

The Petoskey Pretty Woman is located at 309 Howard St. and the Charlevoix Pretty Woman is located at 212 Bridge St.

The stores' hours are 10 a.m.-7 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Sunday, with some extended hours in Petoskey.

The website is currently under development. For more information, call the Petoskey store at (231) 487-1190 or the Charlevoix store at (231) 547-3050.

School district adds kindergarten section

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

An apparent slight uptick in enrollment and a desire to help struggling students has prompted Charlevoix School officials to add two staff positions, just two weeks before the first school bell of the year is set to ring.

At its rescheduled regular monthly meeting Monday, the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education approved hiring a half time kindergarten teacher and adding a part-time student success coordinator at the high school.

District superintendent Chet Janik said the addition at the elementary school was prompted by higher than expected kindergarten enrollment pushing class sizes in the originally planned three sections of traditional, all-day kindergarten to around 26 per class.

The change, as approved by the board Monday will move Stephanie Carey, who had been slated to teach the district beginning kindergarten class, to the fourth section a standard kindergarten class and a half-day teaching position will be added for the beginning kindergarten section. The remainder of the day will be staffed using an aide through the district's "Bright Beginnings" program. The total cost to add the section is about $64,000. But through transfers accomplished through some of the district's Title funding accounts, the net impact on the general fund will be about $29,000.

Janik said the added numbers, especially at the kindergarten level are a blessing, but if the district didn't take action to reduce the growing class sizes, could prompt parents to look elsewhere to enroll their students.

As the numbers stood at press time Tuesday, the change would put the kindergarten class sizes at about 19 each.

The other staffing addition, a four-hour per day, student success coordinator grew out of a desire by school officials to provide extra help for struggling students. The addition will cost about $15,871.

Although enrollment numbers for the school year vary from day to day, Janik said he is optimistic that numbers will be at or above the 1,060 students used in calculating the budget passed at the end of June.

The board also voted Monday to approve a lunch price increase of 25 cents for the upcoming school year to $2.50 per paid lunch. District officials said the increase was needed to comply with a federal law requiring paid lunch prices to meet the amount reimbursed by the federal government for free and reduced lunches.

Mary Agria to speak at library

Agria

Garden novelist and longtime Little Traverse Bay cottager Mary Agria will talk about her new novel and the art of "Growing a Friendship Garden," at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 30, at the Charlevoix Public Library. The theme of Agria's new novel, "Garden of Eve" — a sequel to her 2006 best selling "Time in a Garden" — revolves around gardening as a resource for spiritual renewal and healing.

"Garden of Eve" has won rave reviews from book critics such as Joan Baum, NPR columnist and reviewer with the prestigious Hampton's magazine, Dan's Papers. Baum called the novel "An intelligent, well-written, sharply observed exploration of the human condition, particularly as it focuses on those who for various reasons find themselves to be alone ... This is a lovely book, it is also a no nonsense inspirational one."

Set in tiny fictional Xenaphon south of Charlevoix, the novel is "about (a widow's) recovery and realizing the myth of small town American life, being a loyal friend, a good neighbor, valuing family, finding solace in the cultivation of community." Reviewer for the North Fork Patch praises it for its "inspired language ... and beautiful characters as remarkable and truthful as her setting."

Health officials: Have kids' vaccinations updated before the school year starts

RACHEL BROUGHAM
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

With the start of the new school year less than a month away, parents throughout Michigan are being urged to have their children vaccinated before they head off to the classroom.

"Parents will do anything to help get their kids ready to head back to school," said Michigan Academy of Family Physicians president, Peter Graham. "Getting them immunized against preventable diseases is every bit as simple and important a choice as buckling their seat belts on the drive to school, stocking their backpacks with the necessary school supplies and feeding them a balanced breakfast."

Immunizations help stop the spread of preventable infectious diseases and have never been more important for Michigan children, health officials said.

In 2006, 6,000 cases of mumps were reported nationwide, with 85 of them occurring in Michigan.

Also, instances of pertussis, or whooping cough, a preventable disease that can be particularly dangerous for infants, quadrupled last year from the rate only two years earlier according to the health department.

Jane Sundmacher, public information officer for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, said in 2010, there were more than 40 cases of pertussis in the department's four-county area — half of which were in Emmet county. She said there are usually about four cases reported in the department's region each year.

As of last year, meningitis immunization is also required statewide for ages 11 through 18. Adolescents, who received their first dose at age 13-15, should get a one-time booster, preferable at 16-18. That way, they will be protected from disease when they are at greatest risk of contracting meningitis.

Some colleges and universities also require students be vaccinated against meningitis.

"Most parents get their children immunized to keep them safe from dangerous infectious diseases like the measles and the mumps and to prevent them from catching or spreading them around the schoolyard," Graham said. "Parents can also explore having their children vaccinated for meningitis, seasonal flu and other diseases. Vaccinations continue to save lives and keeping their children's vaccines up to date will help stop the spread of preventable diseases."

To make an appointment for immunizations or for more information, call the Health Department of Northwest Michigan at (800) 432-4121. Medicaid and private insurance is accepted; no one is turned away for inability to pay.

Rayders roll to season-opening tournament victory

PELLSTON — Charlevoix defeated Pellston, 25-19, 22-25, 15-10, in the championship match Saturday to win the season opening Pellston Volleyball Invitational.

The Rayders went 7-0 on the day and did not drop a game until the final against Pellston.

Charlevoix won its pool with victories over Fife Lake Forest Area, 25-18, 25-12, Suttons Bay, 25-18, 25-17; Harbor Springs, 25-19, 25-16; and Inland Lakes, 27-25, 25-17. The Rayders then downed East Jordan, 25-16, 25-12, in a quarterfinal, and topped Onaway, 25-15, 26-24, in a semifinal.

"I think we definitely got better as the day went on," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "We've only had four full practices, so we're just starting to get to know each other on the court. I do have eight returnees, but we're just kind of getting used to playing together. Some of them are playing different positions and getting used to the quicker offense. I think we started jelling toward the end of the day."

Allison Hankins led the Rayders with 39 kills and nine blocks, while Jenna Way finished with 32 kills, 10 aces, 102 assists, 34 digs and five blocks.

Also for the Rayders, Kelsey Way had 22 kills, 42 digs; Kelly Greyerbiehl had 68 digs; Megan Peters added 14 kills and four blocks; Chelsie Hoffman had 30 digs; Maddie Zimmerman finished with 26 digs; and Karley Pearsall added seven digs.

Boyne City finished 3-2 on the day. In pool play, the Ramblers defeated Central Lake, 25-16, 25-17; Mio, 25-17, 25-17; and Cheboygan, 25-18, 25-18; and lost to Pellston, 17-25, 26-27. Boyne bowed to Onaway, 25-23, 22-25, 10-15, in a quarterfinal match.

Kylie Hicks led the Ramblers with 30 kills, six blocks and 32 digs, while setter Heather Nichols finished with 67 assists and 30 digs. Also for Boyne, Ketrin Hoequard had 56 digs, Erin Baker added 21, and Allie Cain finished with seven blocks.

Becca Morse led the Rams with 26 kills, while Jenna Lechowicz added 14. Marissa Halfacer finished with nine blocks, while Harbor setters Mackenzie Sylvain and Abi Coulter combined to set at 100 percent and finished with 102 assists.

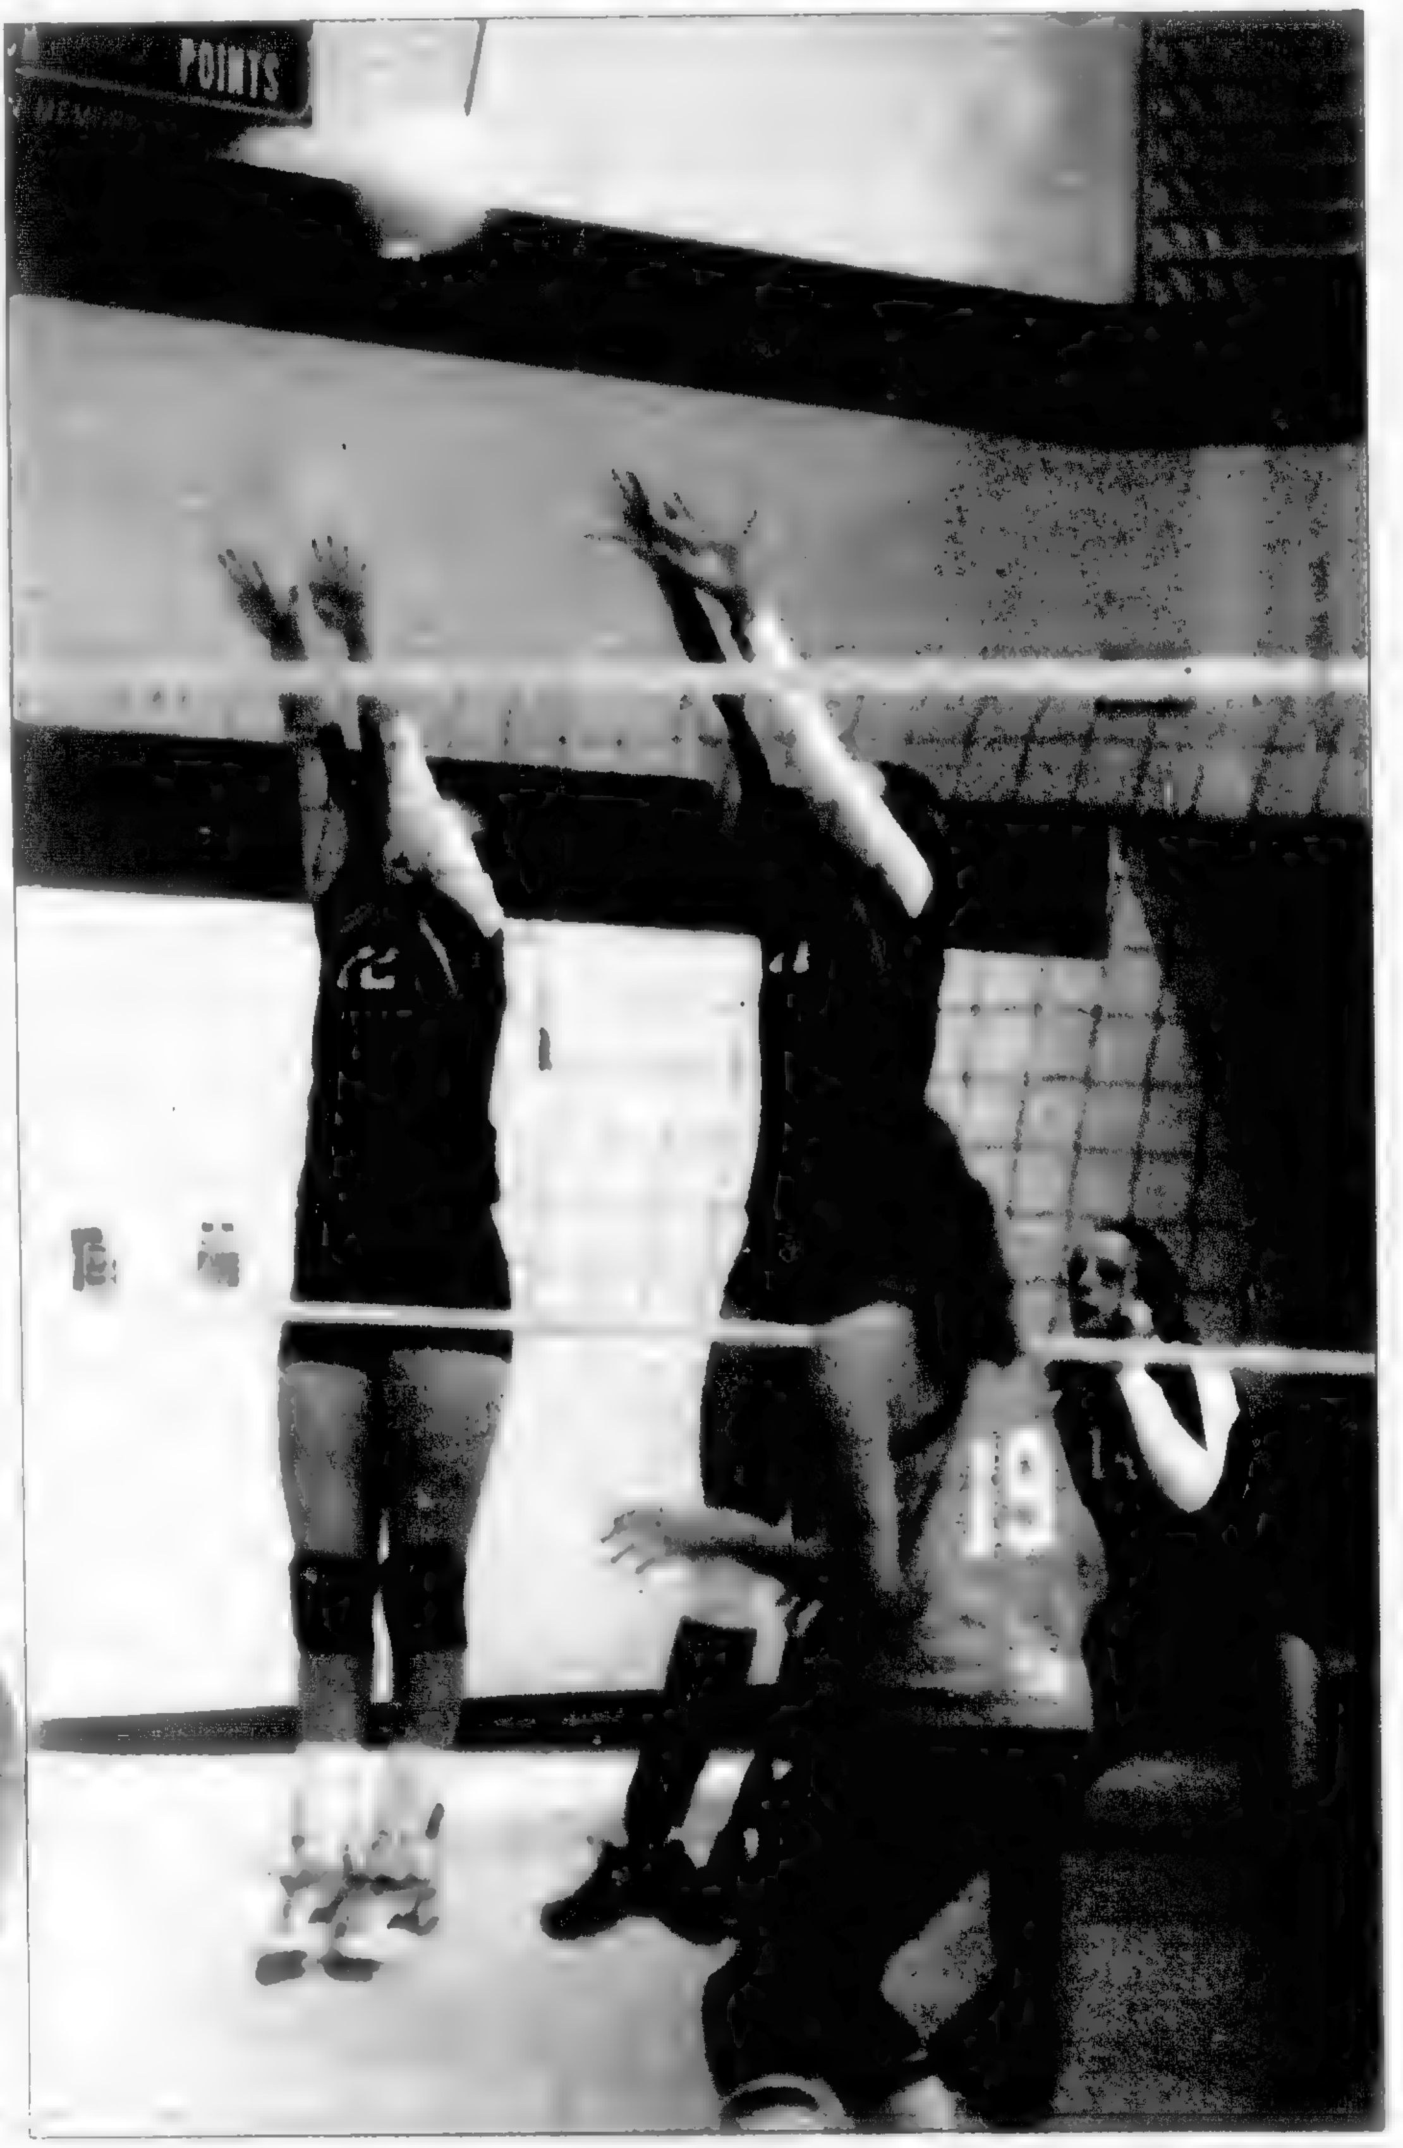
The Rams served at 93 percent and passed at 90 percent on the day.

Pellston opened pool play by splitting with Cheboygan, 24-26, 25-10, then downed Mio, 25-16, 25-12; split with Central Lake, 20-25, 25-21; and defeated Boyne City, 25-17, 27-26.

The Hornets defeated Forest Area, 25-23, 25-12, in a quarterfinal, and topped Kingsley, 25-20, 22-25, 15-6, in the semifinals. The Hornets finished 4-1-2 on the day.



MORGAN SHERBURNE/NEWS-REVIEW

Season Preview

Experience could factor large in Rayders' season

How close?

They won the first two games in the regional final against Leroy Pine River, dropped the next two by two and three points, respectively, then fell in the fifth and deciding game. Pine River went on to the state semifinals.

"It was a heart breaker," said 11th year coach Liz Shaw. "I think (my players) feel that loss in the back of their minds still."

But the fact that Shaw returns nine letter winners including seven seniors means that a potential run to a regional title is well within the Rayders' grasp.

Those seniors include first-team All-State setter Jenna Way, All-State honorable mention middle hitter Allison Hankins, all-region libero Kelly Greyerbiehl, outside hitter Kelsey Way, right side hitter Megan Peters, and defensive specialists Maddie Zimmerman and Chelsie Hoffman. Outside hitter Anna Way along with Karley Pearsall should also play key roles.

That experience is already starting to pay off as the Rayders swept the season opening Pellston Invitational Tournament Saturday. (See story on this page.) The Rayders will next be in action at a tournament in Leland on Saturday, Aug. 27.

"They have the desire, but they also have the experience, and they're just great athletes," Shaw said. "I just want them to have fun and enjoy the season — both the wins and the losses."

JV FOOTBALL

After sending a large portion last year's 8-1 team up to the varsity this year, Rayder junior varsity head football coach Dough Waha will have to rely heavily on incoming freshmen to shoulder much of the work this season.

Waha said among those returning players, he's expecting Luke Klinger will start at quarterback, Taylor Seese at running back and Andrew Mitchell at center will be the team's only returning lineman.

"We have a 13 freshmen that will need to play a lot on both sides of the ball," Waha said. "So based on that we are going to be a young team. But, if we can improve each week we could have another good season."

Waha pointed to several freshmen who are showing promise including Nate Moon, Brian Noirot, Will Telgenhof, Devin Largent and Sam Hovie.

"Time will tell how the season goes and it may be tough to live up to last years success."

The Rayder JV will open their season at home at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 25 against St. Ignance.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix Rayder varsity football team is hanging its hopes for this season on a combination of, experience, hard work and carry-over success from last year.

Head coach Don Jess said the Rayders, who finished last year at 3-6 overall, 2-5 in the Lake Michigan Conference, have a a strong senior class returning this fall including John Boss, Jake McLean, and Coby Herriman who are entering their third season on the varsity.

Other returning senior starters include 6-foot-6, 200-pound Josh Hogan, Clay Heise, Mark Duke, River Gauthier, Travis Rainey, Morgan Stewart, and quarterback Andrew Potter.

"We've had a good summer and our kids have really been working hard. We're not that big this year, but I think we'll make up for that with our overall team speed and toughness."

Jess is also hoping that the success this year's juniors saw on the junior varsity, which went 8-1 last year, will spill over into this year's season.

"Our Junior class is coming off a successful year on JV and a lot of those players will play big roles this fall," Jess said. "We have a tough test right away at St. Ignace."

Kickoff for Friday's non-conference season opener in St. Ignace is set for 7 p.m. The Rayders' first home game will be against Glen Lake at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 1 at Kipke Field.

Runners hope hard work will pay off

Does hard work have a pay off?

Ken and Mary Plude have made it their theme for the summer, and going into the season, are hoping the season displays the results.

Even though both coaches have high expectations for their girls' and boys' teams, the experience factor may add to the result.

"We have 20 girls this year, three more than last year," Mary Plude said. "We have seven that are returning from last year's state qualifying team, and they are running well coming into the fall."

Seniors Molly Jeakle, Anne Dipert, Hillary Way and Jane Valasz lead the returnees, while junior Olivia Certa and sophomores Carolyn Boss and Lexie Barnes will add quality experience.

"These seven girls have had a good summer, doing their running, and staying motivated," Mary Plude said.

However, the Rayders will have some strong competition within their ranks from seniors Stirling Whittoft and Lauren Bartling, sophomore Anna Voci and freshman Amber Way.

"Our strength is the senior leadership that has bought into the program," Mary Plude said. "They will provide motivation for the younger girls, by knowing the expectations."

The Rayder boys' program will have to fill some big shoes, All-Stater Eric Buday has graduated.

"Eric (Buday) has graduated, but we have 17 boys that have worked hard over the summer," Ken Plude said. "They have good attitudes and entering the season strong."

The Rayders top spot could be filled one of four seniors that include Andrew Plude, Alex Gooch, Will Jeakle, or Vinny Von Lau. There is a fifth senior, a wild card that did not compete last year due to injury.

"Kirk Acharya was hurt all last year, but he put up some pretty good times as a sophomore, and we are excited to have him back this year," Ken Plude said.

The boys' have depth in junior Chris Young and sophomore Jackson Buday.

"We have five quality schools in our conference, and we will need some others to stand up," Ken said.

The others will include, sophomores C.J. Rice, and Tristan Rudolph. The freshman class of Nick Plude, Noah Jeakle, and Lucas Gooch have roots in the program as they have learning experiences from older and successful siblings.

Hickory Hundred on hold

An unexpected, last-minute personal matter has prompted Belvedere Golf Club Head Professional Marty Joy to postpone his annual Hickory Hundred annual fundraising event for the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program.

The event, in which Joy uses throwback-style hickory-shafted clubs and wears garb of the era while he plays 100 holes of golf in one day, had been slated for Monday, Aug. 22. The event had not yet been rescheduled at press time, Tuesday. Tax-deductible pledges for the Junior Golf program can still be made by contacting Joy at (231) 547-2611 or Dean Davenport, Junior Golf program director at (231) 547-6433.

Junior golf thanks you

Officials with the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program recently honored the volunteers who helped mentor 110 participants in this year's Charlevoix Junior Golf Program. In its 16 years, more than 2,400 youth have participated in the program. The National Association of Junior Golf highlighted the program in its national publication and ranked the program among the top 13 in the national several years ago. These mentors assist the program by helping the teaching professionals teach fundamentals, walking with groups as they play, and helping with skill testing and tournaments. Pictured are front (from left), program director Dean Davenport, Jim Grant, Jen Sabsook, Joan Waha, teaching professional, Mary Bradley, Wendy Sloan, Joyce Davenport; and back (from left) Tom Kirinovic, Bob Heath, Mike Moon, Sam Washburn, Stewart Goldblatt, Dave Immonen, Jill Washburn, Scott Blechel. Missing are Ron Agnello, Dick Doty, Bruce Herbert, Charles Kohs, Mary Jo McFalls, Kathy Rivard, Bob Sell, and Penny and Pete Szafran.

SOCCER

Graduation rough on soccer roster

It's the cyclical nature of high school sports.

And the Charlevoix soccer program is feeling it in 2011.

The Rayders graduated 13 players, including All-Stater Ben Myers who is now playing at Clemson, from last year's team that shared the Lake Michigan Conference championship with Elk Rapids. That group was the nucleus of the best teams Charlevoix has ever produced.

"It's a rebuilding season," said Jon Boss, who took over the program midway through last season. "We have a lot of work ahead of us."

"We just want to improve from game to game and increase our soccer ability," Boss said. "We're just getting back to the basics and getting their skill level up and going over the concepts of the game. We're a very young team.

"We just want to go out and do our best. From what I've seen our numbers will increase in years to come. In a couple years we'll be right back up there."

"He has strong hands and can hold onto the ball very well," Boss said.

TENNIS

Tennis coach looks to veterans for leadership

Veteran Rayder coach Erik Lundteigen returns a half-dozen letter winners among his 12 varsity candidates, including senior Blake Schulman, who is entering his fourth year on the varsity.

Schulman split last season between No. 1 and No. 2 singles, and figures to be the Rayders' top player in 2011.

Also back are senior veterans Trent Bradley, Kevin Coen and Brandon Arp, each of whom started last season.

Sophomores Matt MacKenzie and Zach Hankins are also back.

"We've got some upperclassmen who have some experience," Lundteigen said. "That's a good thing. It's all about how quickly (the younger players) catch on."

I lived in Midland MI 32 years, really missed the Midland Daily News, until....I became addicted to the Petoskey-News Review! I am so proud to live in the area and enjoy the people and activities that you and others write so positively about

This latest addition to the PNR family of publications is bound to be an award winner, at least in my book.

Congratulations, Julie, its a good mix!

Fundraiser slated for kidney donor, recipient September 6

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix's Christian "Buff" Vrondran has likely received many nice birthday gifts over the first 31 years of his life, but the gift he'll receive from his best friend on his 32nd birthday next week will probably top them all. A kidney.

Vrondran, who has been living with kidney failure brought on by high blood pressure and diabetes for about two years is scheduled for a kidney transplant at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor on his 32nd birthday, Friday, Sept. 9.

And while many people on donor waiting lists can wait for a long time for a match, Vrondran didn't have to go far or wait long to find a donor — or more accurately, for a donor to find him.

About two months ago, shortly after Vrondran first became eligible to be placed on the donor waiting list, his friend since high school and fellow Charlevoix resident, David Wilks, learned he was the same blood type as Vrondran and went to be tested to see if he was a match.

"I told (Vrondran) when he went on dialysis that I'd get tested," Wilks, 34, said. "I didn't think twice about it then, and I'm not thinking twice about it now."

As the day of the transplant draws near, there's one more thing that Vrondran's friends and family have planned to help him — a spaghetti fundraiser dinner.

The fundraiser is scheduled to take place from 5-7 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 6, at the First Baptist Church 06781 North M-66 (across from the post office). Dinner will by free will donation and proceeds of the event will help Vrondran defray costs associated with the transplant.

Vrondran said the surgery itself will be covered by insurance, but there will be many other expenses, especially once-a-week visits to Ann Arbor for the first six months following the transplant and less-frequent trips thereafter.

Donations can also be made at Charlevoix State Bank branches in care of Caytee Scott-Vrondran.

City opts out of pending employee health care bill

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

What's it worth to send a message of "butt out" to the state legislature and one of appreciation to your employees all in one action?

For the Charlevoix City Council, about $12,000.

That's the estimated difference between what the city expects to pay for its employees' health benefits next year and the reduced amount it would pay under a bill currently awaiting the governor's signature that would set limits on how much local units of government can pay for their employees' health benefits.

At a special meeting Monday, the council voted 5-0 (council member Bryan Vollmer was absent) to take advantage of an "opt-out" option contained in the bill, should the governor sign it into law.

Senate Bill 7, which the governor is expected to sign, gives local units of government three options:

- Do nothing and automatically the local unit may not spend more annually than $5,500 for a single person, $11,000 for a person and his or her spouse or $15,000 for a family.

— By a 2/3 vote, opt for a different limit of 80 percent of the cost of an employee's insurance.

— By a 2/3 vote, opt out of the state-mandated limits all together.

The second and third options would have to be renewed annually.

Although the bill as not yet been signed, the council scheduled the special meeting for Monday at the behest of city manager Rob Straebel who was seeking the council's feelings on the matter as open enrollment for health care plans is set to begin this week for city staff.

Straebel said he wanted staff to be aware of the council's intentions so they could make informed decisions about which coverage options they select.

OPT OUT

A large number of the city's 37 full time employees were on hand at the meeting asking the council to opt out for this year.

City employee Kelly Bradley, who serves on the city's health care committee, said employees are already looking at an increase of about $150 per month for health coverage, and the caps in the legislation would more than double those amounts.

"We are here as a group asking you to opt out, to maybe work with the unions and employees so we don't take such a hard hit," Bradley said.

Bradley went on to say the city, which has balanced its budget — in part by working with its employees to reduce health care costs, shouldn't allow itself to be told what to do by officials in Lansing who haven't been able to balance their budget.

Ultimately, all council members present and mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. said they support the measure to opt out in hopes that the city and its employees can continue to work together to control costs, noting that the matter can be revisited annually if those cost cutting efforts fall short.

Two teens injured in South Arm crash

Two Central Lake teens were injured in a one-vehicle traffic crash in Charlvoix County's South Arm Township Saturday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the injured as the driver, Melanie Bishaw, 16, and her passenger Taylor Priest, 18. Both were transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital. Melanie complained of chest pain and head an neck soreness while Priest was checked for a possible head injury, police said.

Deputies said the crash happened at about 6:20 p.m. on Belliare Road south of Rogers Road.

Police said Melanie reported that she lost control after a vehicle passed her traveling southbound. She said the vehicle slid into the some trees on the west side of the roadway when she was unable to stop.

Police said Priest reported that Melanie lost control of vehicle lost when she swerved to avoid another vehicle.

Deputies said both Melanie and Priest were wearing their seatbelts at the time of the crash. Airbags were also deployed for both the driver and passenger.

Three elected to Great Lakes Energy board

Monshor is an engineer and accountant with four years of director experience. Scott is a retired social worker and farmer who has served six years on the board. Evans is an energy auditor, instructor and owner of Paradigm Energy Services.

Six candidates vied for three open board positions. All are three-year terms. Other candidates were Chris Dandeneau of Elmira, Benjamin Harris of Bitely and Paul Schemanski of Petoskey.

Votes received were Scott, 2,662; Evans, 2,117; Monshor, 1,831; Schemanski, 1,442; Harris, 1,295 and Dandeneau, 1,000.

Evans will fill the seat previously held by Edwin Estelle of Elmira, who retired from the board after serving over 29 years.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Roger Knutson

Teachers and scientists sometimes lament that "No one understands science." They mostly mean that few members of the general public understand how science works. Such understanding, if widely available, would probably remove the political power of "believing in" evolution or global warming. Believing has nothing to do with it.

Important as not understanding science might be, there is another problem that, to me, is more troubling. We focus on literacy — the capacity to read and write a language — as a sign of some education. We might better focus on what has been called "numeracy," which is defined as the capacity to use and understand numbers. Literacy and numeracy are not the same thing and people who are wonderfully literate may very well lack a sense of numeracy. There is, for example, a considerable difference between 6,000 years and 12 billion years as the age of the Earth. If both those numbers seem mostly like "a long, long time ago" you may need a numeracy upgrade.

Case in point: A recent newspaper story about a doctor in California who had been writing large numbers of prescriptions for hydrocodone, a narcotic painkiller commonly sold with the brand name Vicodin. The story, as reported by the Associated Press said the doctor had written 920,000 prescriptions for the drug last year. The story concluded that the average was 35 prescriptions a day for about 100 pills each. The story was well written and had no grammatical errors. It was obviously written by someone who would qualify as literate. But, whoever wrote the story was sorely lacking in numeracy. 920,000 prescriptions in one year is a little more than 2,520 prescriptions per day. That is one very busy doctor writing more than 105 prescriptions per hour, even if he doesn't sleep or take a vacation. Such obvious arithmetical errors cast at least some doubt on the rest of the story. Makes you wonder what the doctor actually did.

If such examples were rare, they would be little cause for concern. What they suggest is that many people have little sense of what numbers mean. The common confusions among million, billion and trillion offer further evidence of a lack of numeracy. A billion is not just larger than a million, it is 1,000 times larger. And a trillion is 1,000 times more than a billion.

I am not certain how to instruct people in numeracy, but I would like those who make our laws to have some numerical sense. Ask the next politician with whom you speak to explain how large a number is 10 raised to the 24 power. Or "How many prescriptions per day would a doctor have to write to total 920,000 for the year?" He or she had better be able to answer or they may not be able to comprehend the national debt.

Numeracy may finally be more important than literacy for living in the 21st century.

To The Community of Charlevoix –

Due to a series of unfortunate events, the American Legion Pancake Breakfast has had to be rescheduled several times during the last month. I must apologize to all of you faithful customers and supporters who have helped us over the years.

I can now say with certainty that the next pancake breakfast is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 18. After that our regular schedule shall resume. As a gesture of gratitude, the first 15 customers at the next breakfast will receive free meals.

The proceeds from this breakfast will be used to defray the cost of the new plaque for the Veterans Memorial. We are hoping that it may be back in time for the Patriots Day observance on Sept. 9

Thank you

Flagpole a source of pride

Editor:

If you have not been to Michigan Beach recently you should go see our new 70 foot flag pole and 20' by 30' parade flag. It welcomes beach goers and boaters and makes one proud, humble and grateful to our country. It flew at the Big Rock site for many years and was donated to the city by them and serves as a reminder of the decades they provided many good-paying jobs to our community. This project was completed by the following who donated their time, money and materials: Big Rock Point Memorial Fund, represented by Tim Petrosky, Doug and Douglas Bergmann of Bergmann Marine, Pat Elliott and the City of Charlevoix Street Department employees, Emmet Brick and Block, Larry Hilldore of Pathfinder Systems, MDC Contracting, Inc., Matt Ivester, Tim Maxwell, Doug Simpson of Simpson Electric and William Trubilowicz. If you see any of these volunteers, please thank them for their support of Beautiful Charlevoix.

Emergency food and shelter grants awarded

Char-Em United Way and the Local Board of the federal Emergency Food and Shelter Program recently completed distribution of over $44,073 in federal funds to support local food and shelter programs in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. United Way is the local administrator of the federal Emergency Food and Shelter Program.

The Local Emergency Food and Shelter Program board met recently to review requests for funds and award grants. Emmet County agencies received a total of $26, 348 which will be distributed to the Women's Resource Center, Salvation Army, Manna Food Project, Brother Dan's Food Pantry, and St. Francis Church. In Charlevoix County $17,725 has been awarded to the Women's Resource Center, Salvation Army, Manna Food Project, Good Samaritan Family Services, and East Jordan Care and Share.

"Unfortunately the funding was cut 40 percent from last year, despite the increased need in our community," said Martha Lancaster of United Way and chair of the Local Emergency Food and Shelter Program Board. "This made the decision of the local board very difficult."

The awards were made by a Local Board that is chaired by United Way and includes representatives from the Salvation Army, American Red Cross, Temple B'Nai Israel, Catholic Human Services, Emmanuel Episcopal Church, the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians, both County Commissions, the Department of Human Services, both Community Foundations, and the Nehemiah Project.

"These funds will be used to expand the capacities of these local agencies to meet emergency needs for food and shelter," Lancaster added. "Demand on local pantries and agencies providing rent and utility assistance have continued to increase over the past year. The Emergency Food and Shelter Program helps meet that need, and United Way is pleased make this possible by administering the program."

This evening recognizes the volunteers and museum docents who have donated countless hours to the society during the previous year. Music will be provided by the country group The Tagalongs. The public is invited to attend. There will be no admission charge. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

Consumers Energy seeks renewable energy applications

Consumers Energy had previously contracted to purchase 2,000 kilowatts of power from customers that installed photovoltaic solar panels at their homes or businesses. The utility's current solicitation is seeking applications for an additional 250 kilowatts of photovoltaic solar installations located at commercial or industrial customers' businesses.

Applications will be due on or before Sept. 28, 2011. Applications and instructions are available at: www.consumersenergy.com/EARP. Additional solicitations for photovoltaic solar installations from both residential and business customers are planned for the next three years.

Consumers Energy, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy, provides natural gas and electricity to 6.8 million of Michigan's 10 million residents in all 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

Board sets planners' office terms

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission members now have term lengths.

The county's board of commissioners on Wednesday, Aug. 24 voted unanimously to set the terms lengths for the recently-appointed planning commissioners, following the adoption of new planning guidelines that comply with the state's Planning and Enabling Act of 2008. The six previously-seated planning commissioners had terms set that match their prior terms and the new commissioner received a nearly three-year appointment.

Terms for planning commissioners Michael Buttigieg, Robert Draves and Larry Levengood will expire at the end of December this year. Terms for Nancy Ferguson and Tom Wieland will expire at the end of December 2012, while terms for Dennis Jason and newcomer Patrick Howard will expire at the end of December 2013.

County commissioners have yet to assign each planning commissioner a specific segment of the community to represent, as required by state law. Those decisions are expected to be made next month, board chairman Joel Evans said.

Evans said he will seek a recommendation from the planning commission about the assignment of roles. For example, one planning commissioner will be dedicated to represent the interests of farmers and foresters, while others will represent education, business or industry.

However, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission is an advisory board to other local officials. The real zoning teeth are held by township planning commissions because there is no county-wide zoning ordinance in Charlevoix County.

Real People Media hosting open house September 8

Real People Media will host an open house for the Community Media Center from 5-7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 8. Real People Media is a tax exempt, nonprofit organization whose mission is to help people tell the stories of their communities through video. The Media Center, located at 12555 Taylor Road in Charlevoix, offers a video production studio, editing and animation suites, and a film screening room in which a weekly film series takes place in the fall and winter. Real People Media's outreach programs provide services to people of all ages in Northern Lower Michigan and the Upper Peninsula.

The open house will include refreshments, film and animation showings for children and adults, stop-motion animation fun and a final chance to view "Faces of Northern Michigan," a juried photography exhibit featuring Northern Michigan people at work and play. Real People Media board members and volunteers will be available to answer questions about community-produced television and their services.

During the open house, the East Jordan Shoe Club will premier its short video, "On the Jordan: Where River, Lake and Friendly People Meet." Real People Media director, Rebecca Glotfelty, guided five eighth-graders from the Shoe Club in the production of this video, which is an introduction to the Jordan River and the Friends of the Jordan's Watershed Center. The program was funded by a grant from the Lynne and Mason Rosenthal Fund through the Charlevoix Community Foundation and in-kind support provided by the Friends of the Jordan. The Shoe Club is an after-school club for middle school students, led by Matt Hamilton. The purpose of the Shoe Club is to inspire and motivate students to invest in themselves and others.

Artist/illustrator Kim Left will show visitors how to use clay, paper and pen to create animated stories on video. Real People Media will be offering an after-school animation program for students in fifth-12th grades. Animation Station allows kids to express themselves through the art of stop motion animation. The open house is an opportunity to visit the Animation Station and meet the instructors. Real People Media will also offer a documentary filmmaking program for high school students. Learn more about this program at the open house.

At 6 p.m., there will be the showing of "The Uncommon Loon," a 60-minute documentary by Jeff Lange of Alanson. The film follows a loon family through the nesting season. The setting is Round Lake, just outside of Petoskey. The film features other species, including sandhill cranes, snapping turtles and herons. The filmmaker will be available to answer questions following the presentation.

WATCH Honors MacArthur for service

At its Aug. 24, 2011 board meeting, WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix) presented long-time supporter and retiring board member Bruce MacArthur with a framed certificate recognizing his many years of outstanding environmental stewardship.

WATCH officials said MacArthur was an early climate change activist and proponent of alternative energy sources, and was instrumental in the creation of CARE, WATCH's Conservation and Renewable Energy Committee. CARE has helped to raise awareness of energy issues in Charlevoix County through its CARE Energy Fair, and projects such as the Lake to the Lake Trail and Idle Free Charlevoix. Recently it has introduced the Michigan Environmental Education Curriculum in area schools by providing materials, workshops, and support for local teachers.

MacArthur was accompanied at the meeting by his son-in-law, philanthropist Bill Schuiling. Schuiling surprised MacArthur and the board by announcing that his foundation would be making a 10-year grant totaling $50,000 in MacArthur's honor, to continue the work of WATCH and CARE.

For more than 25 years, WATCH has worked to protect the water and air resources of Charlevoix County. For more information, visit the organization's website at www.watchinc.org

Day of Caring volunteers still needed

This September marks the 10th anniversary of the 9/11 attacks, as well as the federally recognized National Day of Service and Remembrance. In observance of this important and historic milestone, community members are invited to participate Char-Em United Way's Day of Caring along with thousands of other groups, and millions of people nationwide who plan to pay tribute as part of the single-largest charitable service effort in U.S. history.

The goal of the annual September National Day of Service and Remembrance is to bring Americans together in the same spirit of compassion, unity, and service that existed after the attacks. Day of Caring for Charlevoix and Emmet County non-profit organizations, schools, and government agencies still need volunteers to complete service projects on Thursday, September 15. Day of Caring is an annual event for people in the community to get involved and volunteer their time to help local organizations with projects that they don't have the staff, time, or funds to complete without help. Volunteers can assist with a variety of projects from painting and landscaping to stocking a food pantry and sorting at a resale shop.

All available projects are listed online through Char-Em United Way's Volunteer Connections at http://volunteer.truist.com/charemunitedway/volunteer/home or visit the United Way's website at www.charemunitedway.org and follow the links to volunteer. Once you register as a volunteer, search keywords "Day of Caring" to find a project you want to complete. Click on "I'm interested in this opportunity" to send a message to Char-Em United Way and you will be contacted by United Way staff with details to complete your volunteer match. Or you can call the Char-Em United Way office at (231) 487-1006 to register as a volunteer.

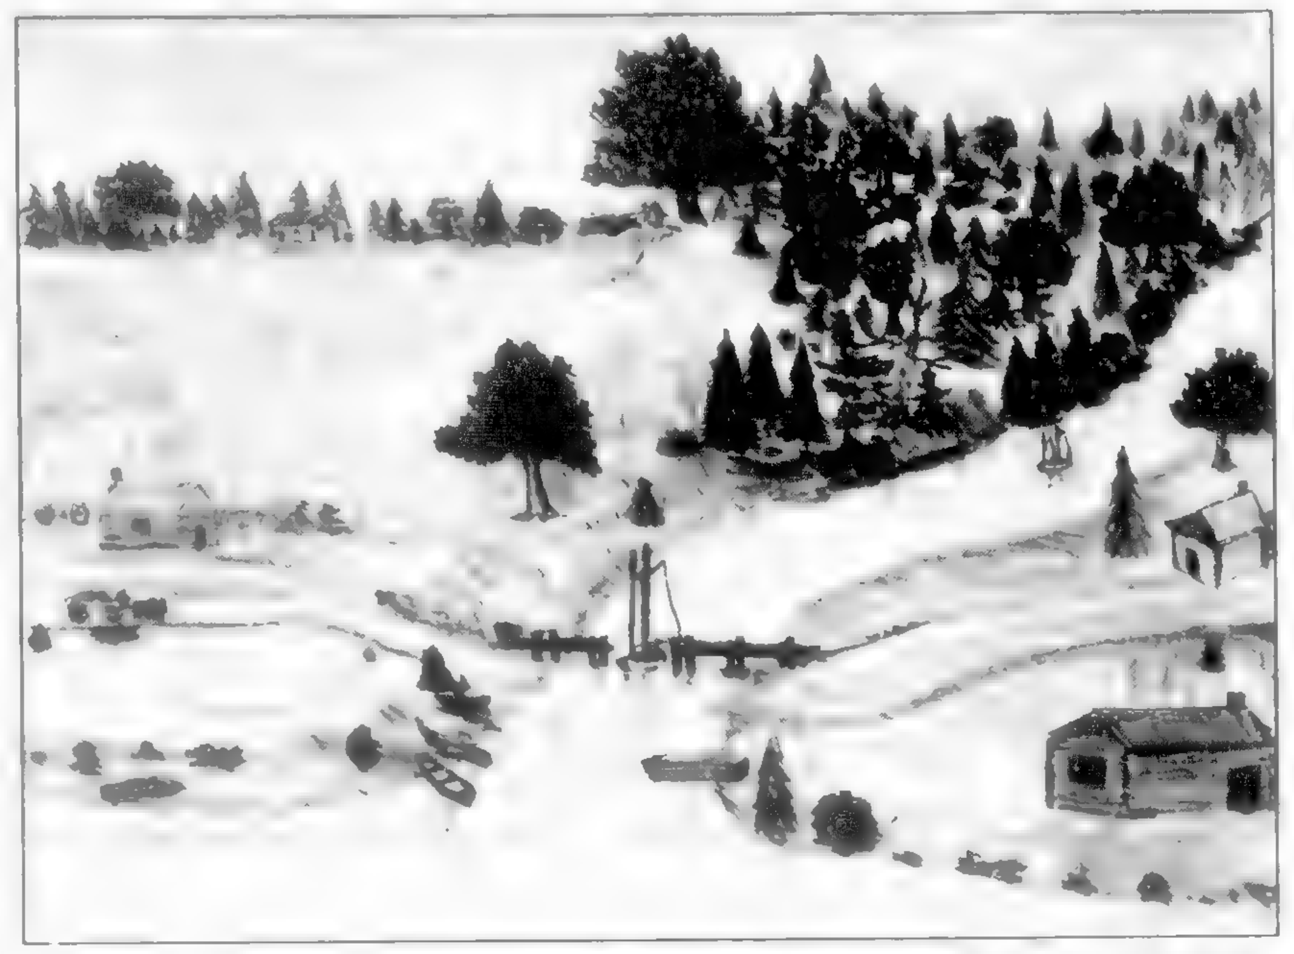
LOOKING BACK...



COURTESY IMAGE/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The first bridge across the outlet from Round Lake to Lake Michigan, called Pine River, was constructed about 165 feet east of the site of the current bridge, it is believed; in 1859. It was a simple device for foot traffic only — piles driven in by hand, stringers that connected them, and boards laid across these except in the center. The boards were about four feet wide and stood two feet above the water. The central portion was made of larger planks that spanned the gap through which vessels sailed into and from Round Lake. Sometimes mariners shoved the planks aside and replaced them once they passed through, or, as shown in the drawing, a considerate bystander might do the job for them. All vehicular traffic, such as the ox-drawn wagon approaching at left, passed through the shallow water next to the bridge. Some pedestrians just hitched up their trousers and waded across. The first bridge lasted until 1864. The origins of the above drawing and how it made its way into the historical society's collection are unknown.

This image is one of 850 in the Charlevoix Historical Society's new DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan--A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades," and is also in the Society's new historical booklet "Charlevoix's Channel Bridges." Both are available at the Harsha House Museum located at 103 State St. one block west of Bridge Street from 1-4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

OBITUARY

Thomas Michael Phillips: Nov. 25, 1940 - Aug. 22, 2011

Phillips

Tom passed away peacefully in the loving arms of his family at the Greenfield, Wis. home of his daughter, Robin Leigh Phillips, following a two-year battle with cancer.

Tom suffered a stroke in 1998 which left him with aphasia. In response to this challenge, he developed the website www.ghosters.com to help others while he overcame this communication obstacle. It was Tom's philosophy that "our brain thinks in words.... our soul thinks in music."

In addition to his daughter Robin, Tom is survived by his daughter Lorelei and son-in law Daniel Moosbrugger; grandson Alexander; daughter Ann and son-in-law Shelby Toepke; grandchildren Mackenzie, Colter and Paige; sister Deborah Little; first wife Kathleen (Sturino) Brainard, former wife Dianna Phillips and in-laws Steve and Carol Agnew of Charlevoix.

Tom was born in Kenosha, Wis., the son of Segna and Lloyd Phillips. There he began his career in the automotive industry as a proud member of the United Auto Workers Union, AFL-CIO, at American Motors in 1958. Tom's studies at the University of Wisconsin, Parkside, and his brotherhood in the Masons, prepared him well for his life as a successful manufacturing professional. His employment included manager of corporate quality, Jeep Corporation in Toledo in 1983; lead quality manager, Sheller-Globe Corporation in Iowa City until 1986; director of quality assurance, The Becker Group, Troy in 1988; chief operating officer, Signet Industries, Fraser in 1992; and finally Charlevoix's LexaLite International Corporation where he retired as president in 1997.

Tom also served on numerous boards and industrial associations, including as president of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce in 1996, a position he especially enjoyed.

Tom enjoyed spending time with his family and grandchildren whenever possible. He loved cars, magic, music and Pepsi. His best times always included dancing. He will be missed.

A private family service has already taken place.

Tip of the Mitt needs stream monitor volunteers

Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is seeking residents to take part in the Volunteer Stream Monitoring program. The program combines the knowledge and commitment of interested citizens with the technical expertise of the Watershed Council staff to monitor the health of streams and rivers in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, and Emmet counties.

Currently, volunteer teams monitor 29 sites on streams flowing into Black Lake, Lake Charlevoix, Mullett Lake, Torch Lake, and Little Traverse Bay. Recenly, the Watershed Council was awarded a grant from the Michigan Clean Water Corps to increase their Volunteer Stream Monitoring Program. The addition of the Maple and Sturgeon rivers will raise the number of sites monitored to 37. As a result additional Volunteer Stream Monitors are needed to help monitor these well-known blue-ribbon trout streams.

Brian Kozminski, the local chapter president of the Miller VanWinkle Chapter of Trout Unlimited comments "It's great to see the Watershed Council's program expand, especially to jewels like the Maple and Sturgeon Rivers. These rivers are extremely important to Trout Unlimited members and we'll be giving it our all to provide volunteer support to help protect them."

"We would love to expand the program to include even more of the 2,500-plus miles of streams that crisscross Northern Michigan" said Kevin Cronk, the Watershed Council's Monitoring and Research Coordinator. "However, additional volunteers are needed to make this happen. Without volunteer stream monitors, water quality issues could go undetected and over time have a negative impact on the overall environment."

Two times per year, in the spring and in the fall, volunteers collect aquatic macroinvertebrates from area streams to assess water quality. More commonly known as "critters", these macroinvertebrates paint a picture of stream water quality: the greater the diversity, the higher the water quality. Of particular importance are the sensitive critters, such as mayflies and stoneflies, which are usually quite common in Northern Michigan streams. "Our stoneflies and mayflies are the canaries in the coal mine" said Cronk. "If we don't find them at a site, it usually raises an alarm." During the course of our monitoring, the lack of these pollution-sensitive critters raised an alarm in Stover Creek in Charlevoix and Tannery Creek in Petoskey allowing us to address the issues negatively impacting these streams. "Our Volunteer Stream Monitors played a key role in protecting those water resources, as well as other in Northern Michigan."

The Watershed Council plans to coordinate volunteer monitoring at all 37 sites starting at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 17. For those interested in learning the ropes of the program prior to monitoring, Cronk will be providing a training session the week before on Saturday, Sept. 10, at the Watershed Council office in downtown Petoskey, at 426 Bay Street (across from the Perry Hotel). The program's fall activities wrap up with a critter sorting and identification session at the science building on the North Central Michigan College campus fron noon-3 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 2.

Anyone interested in signing up for these free events or seeking more information regarding the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council Volunteer Stream Monitoring program may contact Kevin Cronk at (231) 347-1181 or via email at kevin@watershedcouncil.org. Additional information about the program is also available at www.watershedcouncil.org/events.

Tension lingers over trail document

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Last week county commissioners hashed out all details of a mystery document about highway right-of-way along Boyne City Charlevoix Road and put the matter to bed — maybe.

A document created by county planner Larry Sullivan became publicly available at past informational meetings about a proposed, non-motorized trail along that county highway. The form never received approval from the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, road commission or John Jarema, county prosecutor and civil counsel.

The issue prompted a sometimes-heated discussion during the county board's committee of the whole meeting on Wednesday, Aug. 24 prior to board's regularly scheduled semi-monthly meeting.

"As far as I'm concerned, people have stepped out of bounds with this document," board chairman Joel Evans said.

Commissioner Shirlene Tripp said she made the form available in an advisory capacity at public meetings held in late May at Evangeline Township Hall, as a way to gauge support for the proposed trail among residents along the road. Those who agreed to have the trail built within the right-of-way that crosses their land could sign off and be done with it.

Sullivan said he wrote the document after the county's parks committee requested it, but did not hand it out at the trail meetings.

"I did not put it there and I did not attend those meetings," Sullivan said.

Commissioner Ron Reinhardt said he did not understand the document to be an official and legally binding form, but commissioner Rich Gillespie said he thought the exact opposite.

"If it's not meant to be more than a show of hands, there's something wrong with my thinking," Gillespie said.

Commissioner Chris Christensen said his primary concern revolved around how the document appeared to be official, even if it was never intended to be.

"It just doesn't have the air of an advisory document," Christensen said.

The form included a place to list property tax identification numbers and to be signed in the presence of witnesses.

Eventually, Evans questioned Tripp about why she didn't have the form approved by the full board, Jarema or even county clerk Cheryl Potter Browe, whose office address is listed on the document at issue.

"Did any of that ever come to mind?" Evans asked.

The conversation frequently degraded into a shouting match, a conflict between Tripp's attempts to defend herself and Evans' attempts to silence her. At one point, Evans said that if Tripp interrupted him again he would ask her to leave the meeting.

The board members also discussed various newspaper articles published in recent days about the trail form and Tripp's published comments took center stage, including her opinion that the drama that surrounds the document is retribution for a pending Freedom of Information lawsuit the Petoskey News-Review filed against the county.

In that case, Tripp publicly criticized Jarema and Christensen for sending emails to each other during board meetings as they sat across the room from each other, and the newspaper subsequently sued for copies of those emails after Jarema denied multiple Freedom of Information Act requests for the materials.

"I'm disappointed in the accusations that continue to pop up in your quotes," Evans said to Tripp.

Evans then read from a code of conduct created by an Iowa-based consulting group that states board members will not "be critical, in or outside of the board meeting, of fellow board members or their opinions." The Charlevoix County board has no such code of conduct on the books.

"We want all commissioners to work together and if you understand what I read there, there's some things in the code of ethics that's been violated," Evans said. "We want you to work together with this board and you have to work together with this board. If you decide you are not going to work with our civil counsel, if you're not going to work with this board or the clerk's office, I would hope you would take it upon yourself to terminate your job as a commissioner. But that's up to you. I'm not asking that you leave this job. I'm not telling you to leave this job, but we cannot have this kind of stuff going on and these name-callings out in the public papers."

Tripp said some clearer direction for the parks committee from the full board would benefit the whole process, so those committee members can avoid this type of controversy in the future.

"The parks committee voted for what we're doing and now we're getting the bull," Tripp said.

Evans said now this situation is in the past and it's time to move forward. Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt agreed.

"This is behind us and let's work together as a team. That's what we're elected to do for the whole county," Drebenstedt said.

Despite that sentiment, Evans agreed with county resident Bob Taylor, who said during public comments that he wanted Jarema's recommendation about what sanctions should be taken against Tripp and Sullivan after this ordeal. That's when Jarema said he doesn't make recommendations, just describes options.

However, in comments made one week earlier at an internal government committee Jarema said he thought Sullivan ought to be "spoken to or have something put in his file." Jarema since claimed he was "short quoted" by a reporter.

Jarema said he'd received multiple phone calls during the last week from county residents who questioned whether he has a vendetta against Sullivan.

Meanwhile, road commission officials said they will have their attorney draft a right-of-way release form to be used in place of the document that caused such a raucous debate.

Regardless, the form may not be necessary.

Citing a recent Michigan Attorney General's opinion, various public officials have said a trail can be installed within the highway's regular 66-foot right-of-way. However, road commission officials said they want a release form from any property owners willing to allow the trail to be built within a 16-foot extended right-of-way the county acquired decades ago in some places along the road.

Stonehedge Gardens offers home decor and more

JENNIFER RICHARDSON
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

IRONTON — Cynthia Keller and Paul Vermeesch have spent the last two years weeding, planting, rebuilding and refurbishing.

The couple purchased Stonehedge Gardens in East Jordan in 2009. They have restored the gardens and established a specialty store featuring shabby chic home décor, antique furniture, stained glass, jewelry, garden art, and many other items.

Keller said she and Vermeesch spotted the property, which formerly housed Trimper Antiques, while on vacation in Northern Michigan. She left her job in West Bloomfield at Planterra Interior Landscape, where she was the director of horticulture, and moved north.

"This is a dream come true for me," Keller said.

The gardens feature several pergolas, farm buildings of aged wood, hand-made birdhouses and birdbaths created by casting large leaves in concrete. The flower beds are planted with blooms of a traditional country garden, some of which have been part of the property for many years.

While the gardens contain yard art that is for sale, the plants are not. They are there for people to enjoy.

Keller says that while working on the gardens, many interesting items have been discovered, including a Prohibition-era Hiram Walker bottle.

An interest in things from the past has also influenced Keller's choices for her home interiors inventory. It's the history of the items that often inspires Keller to purchase pieces from estate sales and auctions for sale in her store, or to take pieces on consignment.

In addition to furniture and home décor, the store offers jams, candies and syrups that are all locally made. Much of the yard art is also made by Michigan craftsmen.

Keller says that already, people have begun to stop by to investigate, intrigued by the silhouettes by the road, advertising the gardens and store. One couple even asked if they could have their wedding in the gardens, and will be getting married there in September.

Stonehedge Gardens is located at 02195 N. M-66, less than a mile south of the Ironton Ferry. For more information, go to www.stonehedgegardens.net, or call (231) 350-2246.

Brown Bag Campaign highlights foster care needs

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Child and Family Services of Northwestern Michigan is hosting it's 22nd annual Brown Bag Campaign, spotlighting children in foster care.

Officials with the organization said children who have been abused or neglected often come into foster care with little but the clothing they wear, or very few belongings. The Brown Bag Campaign is a reminder of the their need for stable and disciplined parenting as well as for clothing, school supplies, transportation, and for opportunities such as music or dance lessons or summer camp.

The campaign has previously raised more than $200,000 for these needs. During the Brown Bag Campaign, readers of Northern Michigan newspapers will find a small brown paper bag imprinted with a message from Child and Family Services. The brown bag insert doubles as a mailer for those who would like to mail in a donation.

"The Brown Bag Campaign not only raises money for kids in need right here in our community," Child and Family Services Chief Executive Officer Jim Scherrer said. "It helps us reach people that have the room in their hearts and homes to become foster and adoptive parents. We are grateful to everyone who has helped make this effort successful these 21 years, and we're hoping for a stellar 22nd year."

Child and Family Services averages about 140 children a day in out-of-home placement. Children are placed in foster care because of abuse, neglect, or delinquency, and range in age from newly born to 18 years, organization officials said.

Child and Family Services of Northwestern Michigan began life as a branch of the Michigan Children's Aid Society. In 1891, Dr. Amos Barlow founded Michigan's first organization of the Federation of Aid Societies in 1893.

"The need for families interested in foster care now is as great as ever," organization public relations director Gina Araki said. "CFS encourages people form all walks of life and most familial situations to inquire if they have an interest in being a foster family."

When children are abused or neglected they may be removed from their homes on a temporary basis by the state to protect them from further harm. Child and Family Services works with state agencies to find homes for children, to provide treatment and support to them and their birth families, and to resolve issues that have made their homes unsafe.

While organization leaders said while family reunification in a safe home is always the goal of foster care, Child and Family Services offers foster care, treatment foster care, respite, and independent living skills building for teens in foster care.

The Elements program is a program that emphasizes/teaches Independent Living Skills for youth who are transitioning out of foster care. Child and Family Services begins to work with the child in foster care around the age of 14 with the goal of teaching them important life skills they will require when they reach adulthood–including academic/vocational goals, parenting, employment, financial literacy, housing and household needs, etc.

CFS also hosts special events which provide vital revenue to programs offered to clients who cannot pay for services or are under insured. Certain programs for children and youth are entirely grant or community funded.

Child and Family Services donations may be made through credit cards donations via Paypal, or by phone at (231) 946-8975. For more information on the Brown Bag Campaign, or on how to become a licensed foster or adoptive parent, call Child and Family Services at (231) 946-8975.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Rayder comeback falls short

Varsity falls to St. Ignace 26-21 in season opener, Glen Lake up next

ST. IGNACE — They expected a good game, and that's exactly how it played out.

Unfortunately, the Rayders couldn't completely overcome a 20-0 halftime deficit and came up short against the Saints, 26-21, in both team's season opener Friday.

"I was really happy with the way we responded in the second half," Charlevoix coach Don Jess said. "We could have folded things up and went away, but we didn't do that. We got off to a bad start and against good teams like St. Ignace, you can't afford to do that."

The Saints took a 20-0 lead just before halftime as they took advantage of a mishandled snap on a punt attempt and scored a short time later.

"We struggled offensively in the first half and we put ourselves in a bad position right away," Jess said. "They (St. Ignace) just came out more physical than we did and they banged us around."

For the Rayders, Jake McLean scored on a 39-yard touchdown run, while John Boss added a 4-yard TD run and Charlie Hamilton hauled in a 35-yard TD pass from Andrew Potter. Hamilton also added all three extra points for the Rayders.

Defensively, Andrew Robarge led Charlevoix with 12 tackles.

"This is something we can learn from," Jess said. "We knew it was going to be a battle coming up here and St. Ignace is a good team. We have to be able to make those key plays on third down."

The Rayders host Maple City Glen Lake for their home opener at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 1, at Kipke Field. The Lakers defeated East Jordan 27-3 in their season opener last week.

Rayder stats

Passing
Potter: 6 for 11, for 151 yards, 1 TD (30 yards to Hamilton)

Rushing
McLean: 9 for 63 yards, 1 TD (35 yards)
Boss: 8 for 39 yards, 1 TD (4 yards)

Receiving
Hamilton: 3 for 84 yards, 1 TD (30 yards)
Hogan: 3 for 51 yards

Defense
Robarge: 12 tackles, 1 sack
Spegele: 12 tackles
Boss: 9 tackles
Potter: 8 Tackles

FLAG FOOTBALL

Flag football deadline Sept. 9

A partnership between the Rayder Gridiron Club and the City of Charlevoix Recreation Department will offer a new youth football program in Charlevoix beginning this fall. Organizers are currently seeking girls and boys entering grades 1-4 wishing to participate in the inaugural season of Charlevoix's new flag football program.

"We're very pleased to be working with the Rayder Gridiron Club to offer a great opportunity for area youngsters to learn an exciting team sport," said Charlevoix Recreation Department Director Teresa Hart.

Organizers expect to offer a five-week season featuring two four-team leagues with first and second graders making up one league and third and fourth graders participating in the other. Teams are slated to include seven players with five players from each team on the field at one time. Practices are scheduled for Tuesday evenings with games slated to be played on Wednesday evenings at Kipke Field.

"It's logical for the Rayder Gridiron Club and our football program to partner with the recreation department to create this new league," added Charlevoix high school head varsity football coach Don Jess. "We're also seeking parents who wish to coach and I'd encourage anyone interested in serving as a coach to contact me."

The league's registration deadline is Friday, Sept. 9 with first practices scheduled to start on Monday, Sept. 12.

More information and registration forms may be obtained by calling either the Charlevoix Recreation Department at (231) 547-3253 or Jess at (231) 881-1471. Registration forms may also be picked up from the Recreation Department at Charlevoix City Hall, 210 State Street, or downloaded at www.rayderfootball.com.

JV FOOTBALL

A solid start

Rayder JV opens season with 30-12 win

Taylor Seese ran for 130 yards on only 13 carries and scored three touchdowns to lead the Charlevoix junior varsity football team to a 30-12 victory over St. Ignace in the team's season opening game at Kipke Field Thursday.

The Rayders jumped out to a quick lead, scoring on their first drive and then capitalizing on a Saints fumble on an early possession leaving the score 16-0 with 5:33 left in the first.

The Saints then answered with a touchdown. After the 2-point conversion failed, the score was 16-6 at the end of the first quarter. The teams traded scores in the second quarter leaving the score 24-12 at the half.

In the second half, the Rayder defense shut down the Saints, and added one more score in the third quarter.

Seese's touchdowns came on runs of 37, 26, 8 yards. Luke Klinger also ran for a touchdown and Sam Hovie ran in three 2-point conversions.

Jamie Kelly led the Charlevoix defense with 11 tackles with Andrew Mitchell chipping in with 8 tackles and Taylor Seese 7 tackles. Will Telgenhof had a fumble recovery and an interception, while Nate Moon had a sack and dominated from his defensive end position, the coaching staff said.

"This was a great team win", JV head coach Doug Waha said. "We made some mental mistakes in the first half, but I was pleased with how the team responded in the second half after we challenged them at halftime, especially because we have a young team with a lot of kids playing new positions."

TENNIS

Tennis team wins one, ties one

Last week the Charleviox boys varsity tennis team had two matches last week earning a win in one and a tie in the other.

On Tuesday, Aug. 23, the Rayders tied Boyne City 3-3 before rain stopped play. Then on Thursday the Rayders defeated Traverse City Central Gold team 7-4.

"Our team is working hard to improve. We have some experienced players and some very inexperienced players who are learning the game. I really like the effort they give," team coach Erik Lundteigen said.

Rayders earn second trophy

It was the second invitational title of the season for the Rayders, 13-0, who opened the season by winning the Pellston Invitational one week earlier.

In pool play, the Rayders defeated Frankfort, 25-13, 25-10; Central Lake, 25-10, 25-17; and Traverse City St. Francis, 25-7, 22-25, 15-5. Charlevoix defeated Central Lake, 25-4, 25-16, in a semifinal match, then downed the host Comets, 25-10, 25-18, in the final.

Also for the Rayders, Kelsey Way had 16 kills, 22 digs; Anna Way finished with 14 kills; Megan Peters added 14 kills, seven blocks; Karley Pearsall had 10 kills, six blocks; and Kelly Greyerbiehl finished with a team-high 56 digs. Maddie Zimmerman and Chelsie Hoffman added 19 and 13 digs, respectively.

GOLF

Golfing for a patriotic cause

MORGAN SHERBURNE
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

This Labor Day, Patriot Golf Day gives golfers an excuse to get out on the course — for a cause.

Established in 2007 by Maj. Dan Rooney, an F-16 pilot, PGA professional and member of the USGA, the day benefits children and spouses of military men and women who have been disabled or killed on duty.

"It's a fantastic program," said Dave Mocini, owner of Charlevoix Golf and Country Club. "I think the dollars go to where they're supposed to go and they're helping families each and every day of every year."

Patriot Golf Day is the flagship fundraiser for the Folds of Honor Foundation, a nonprofit that provides scholarship and other assistance to children and spouses of military service members who have been disabled or killed while on duty.

Since 2007, more than $5.3 million has benefitted 2,000 recipients, and the Folds of Honor Foundation hopes to only increase those numbers.

Typically, the fundraiser goes like this: Golfers at participating golf courses pay an extra dollar for their greens fees. The proceeds are donated to the foundation.

But Mocini and Charlevoix Golf and Country Club are doing things a little differently.

Instead of limiting the fundraiser to one day and one dollar, Mocini will run the event all weekend long. On Friday-Sunday, Sept. 2-4, golfers can donate whatever amount of money they would like on top of the typical golf course fees.

But on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 5, golfers can play for free.

"Golfers can play for free, if they write a donation for $25 or more to Folds of Honor," said Mocini. "A dollar is not enough, in my opinion. If we get 40-50 people to play, that will help a lot."

Mocini has been involved in the program since it began in 2007, though at that point he was at True North Golf Club in Harbor Springs.

"My brother served in the military for 30 years, and he was lucky to not get injured. Others are not so lucky," said Mocini. "We're just trying to do what we can to help."

The 36-hole tournament was scheduled to conclude today, Tuesday.

State PGA

EAST LANSING — Eric Dovre of Royal Oak shot a 6-under 66 Monday to take the opening-round lead in the Michigan PGA Championship at Hawk Hollow.

Dovre, a 27-year-old assistant professional from Detroit Golf Club, stands two shots ahead of four-time PGA champion Scott Hebert of the Grand Traverse Resort, Aaron Busch of Lake Forest Country Club in Ann Arbor, and Charles Pasco of Plum Hollow in Southfield.

Pasco won the 2010 Michigan Senior PGA Championship at Charlevoix Golf and Country Club.

The tournament is being conducted on the Hawk Hollow and Eagle Eye courses. Dovre fired his round on Eagle Eye.

The field is comprised of 162 state PGA professionals vying for a $48,000 purse. The winner takes home a check for $7,000. The field will be cut to the low 70 plus ties after the second round, which is scheduled for today, Tuesday. The final round of the 54-hole event is scheduled for Wednesday.

Harry Dixon of Walloon Lake Country Club was the top area player after Monday's opening round. Dixon shot an even-par 72 and is among a group tied for 17th.

Joe Brown of St. Ignace, who plays out of Boyne Highlands, is at 1-over and tied for 29th, while Barry Redmond of Boyne is tied for 39th at 2-over.

Jerry Roman of Hidden River Golf and Casting Club in Brutus shot a 4-over 76 on Monday and is among a group tied for 63rd.

Shaun Bezilla of Harbor Point and Keith Grunch of Charlevoix Golf and Country Club both shot 6-over 78, as did Steven Good of Boyne Highlands.

CROSS COUNTRY

BENZONIA — The Charlevoix High School girls' cross country team placed third in the large-school division Saturday in the Pete Moss Invitational, hosted by Benzie Central.

Freshman Amber Way finished 10th in 19 minutes, 52.48 seconds to lead Charlevoix. Also for the Rayders, Olivia Certa was 12th, Annie Dipert placed 15th, Molly Jeakle was 27th, and Hilary Way placed 40th.

"The girls really had a nice beginning as a team. They ran a very controlled and planned race," girls' coach Mary Plude said. "They were the smallest size in the large division and they handled themselves very well."

Sophomore Jackson Buday was the Rayders' top finisher as he came in 28th. Teammate Kirk Achayra was 38th.

"Jackson, Kirk and Will ran really nice races. It is good to see them start the season off so well. It's nice to have Kirk back after losing him to injury all last year," boys' coach Ken Plude said.

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

After having to cancel two early season games, and nearly the whole season because of low roster numbers, all systems now appear to be a go for the Charlevoix Rayder boys soccer team — for now.

Rayder head coach Jon Boss, who starting his first full season at the team's helm, said the team, which lost nearly all of its starters to graduation, was forced to cancel games against Petoskey on Thursday, Aug. 25 and at Leland on Saturday.

The Rayders graduated 13 players, including All-Stater Ben Myers who is now playing at Clemson, from last year's team that shared the Lake Michigan Conference championship with Elk Rapids.

Boss said Monday that roster numbers dipped recently when several players who had initially come out for the team had decided not to play. He said some injuries also played into the situation as well.

Since then, Boss said he's made personal appeals to players to help keep the program alive. Boss even called Myers to make some player-nudging calls for him.

Those efforts have paid off and players have returned and a couple new ones have signed up.

Boss said several players had schedule conflicts early on with jobs and other commitments. He expects those conflicts to resolve once school is in session.

"This is such a young team, we really are working on getting back to basics and rebuilding for the future."

As of Monday, Boss said he's got 16 on his roster and the game with Elk Rapids scheduled for 5 p.m. Tuesday at home was on. The Rayders will then travel to Boyne City on Tuesday, Sept. 6.

District athletic director Brian Certa said he, too, is optimistic that the soccer program's roster will remain strong, but said if numbers dip again as in the coming weeks, he could still be forced to cancel the season.

Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again.
In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. As an added incentive for donors, every person who attempts to donate in September will have a chance to win a $250 Meijer gift card and a $125 Meijer gas card. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Ruling unlikely to affect medical marijuana zoning plans

COURIER EDITOR

A recent Michigan Court of Appeals ruling that prompted numerous medical marijuana dispensaries around the state to close down will likely have little or no effect on how Charlevoix area governments are planning to regulate medical marijuana in this area.

On Aug. 23 the Michigan Court of Appeals issued an opinion in a case out of Isabella County in which it held that the Michigan Medical Marijuana Act, which was approved by a ballot initiative in 2008, does not allow for the sale of medical marijuana, even by those who are registered to use it, or grow or otherwise prepare it for others.

The ruling, which will likely be appealed to the Michigan Supreme Court, was issued just two days after city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township officials met in one combined meeting to discuss how they might regulate medical marijuana in their respective jurisdictions through their zoning ordinances.

In a nutshell the court opinion found that provisions of the Michigan Medical Marijuana Act that provide protection from prosecution

Strong season

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

As the busy tourist season draws to a close and schools re-open their doors this week, representatives from several sectors of Charlevoix's business community that rely heavily on tourism are reporting a strong summer despite the nation's lagging economic recovery.

The reports were offered during the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce's September First Friday Breakfast at the Belvedere Club Casino Friday.

— City of Charlevoix Harbormaster Hal Evans reported that the marina saw its best summer in history, bringing in about $70,000 in revenue. He said the marina's occupancy rate was 70-80 boats per night for about seven weeks of the summer. Evans cited Michigan Department of Natural Resources data that estimates that each night of boat slip rental translates into about $250 of spending by boaters in the community.

— Jeff Sprecksell of the Weathervane Restaurant reported a "record year" for the well-known restaurant on the Pine River Channel and said he's heard similar reports from other restaurant operators in town.

He said "Venetian Saturday" alone broke records for sales and for July overall sales were up 5 percent.

— Randi Hunter of the AmericInn said occupancy rates were up at her establishment over the summer, including an increase in the number of bus tours.

— Patrice Stieglitz of downtown clothing retailer J. Phillips agreed that the summer — especially July was particularly busy.

Hunter, Sprecksell and Stieglitz all agreed that June, was somewhat slower than normal, likely attributed to some cooler weather, July was very busy (even by Charlevoix summer standards) and then after the first week or two or August there seemed to be a sharp drop off.

All three also agreed that much of the summer business seemed to by boosted by a tourism trifecta of the Keweenaw Star, Castle Farms and the Earl Young home tours.

Sprecksell, added he's seen evidence that the state's "Pure Michigan" advertising campaign is paying off noting that several people from other states have commented to him that the television ads played a part in their decision to visit the area.

Sept. 11 observances

Two groups are planning downtown Charlevoix community commemorations of the 10th anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on the U.S.

— At 8:46 a.m. on Friday, Sept. 9, in Veterans Park, the Charlevoix American Legion Post will host a ceremony to include a firing party, wreath laying, the playing of Taps and some brief comments. Organizers are also hoping that a new plaque for the memorial will be ready in time for the ceremony.

— A second ceremony, organized by several community members and church leaders will take place at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 11, at the Odmark Performance Pavilion in East Park.

Domestic violence charges against Hague dropped

SHERI MCWHIRTER

Criminal charges against former Boyne Falls police chief David Hague have been dropped for lack of evidence.

Hague, 53, of rural Charlevoix County, faced a domestic violence misdemeanor charge after an altercation with his estranged wife in June at his home on M-66 near East Jordan. Charlevoix County's assistant prosecutor Kerry Zahner filed a motion on Tuesday to dismiss the case because of insufficient evidence to meet the burden of proof, according to court records.

Judge Richard May signed the motion, Thursday, Sept. 1.

Charlevoix attorney Chris Turkelson, Hague's defense attorney, could not be reached for comment, nor could Zahner. The motion calls for the case to be dismissed without prejudice.

Debra Taylor, village clerk, said Boyne Falls' leaders terminated Hague's employment as the village's sole police officer at their meeting on Aug. 9.

"They decided to stop the police department for a while here, but it doesn't have anything to do with David being off," Taylor said.

Hague took a leave of absence from his law enforcement job after his arrest on June 21, she said.

Michigan State Police records show the dispute arose when Hague's wife returned to the home to collect clothing for their youngest child. The police report also shows she saw and took notes Hague kept about her comings and goings at the house, but he struggled to retrieve them and allegedly pushed her against a wall.

Reports also show the incident continued when she attempted to take things from a child's bedroom, but Hague blocked her. Finally, police documents show Hague's wife took and kept for several weeks a backpack with his personal paperwork and his village-issued mobile phone for his police job.

Taylor said that's why she shut off service to the taxpayer-funded phone.

Later in the day, hours after the physical altercation, Charlevoix County Sheriff's deputies returned to the home after Hague's wife crashed her vehicle into the house. Authorities said the crash was not intentional.

Motorcyclist injured in crash

A motorcycle rider was injured when he hit a dog while riding in Marion Township Wednesday, Aug. 31.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials said Steven Curtis, 51, of Charlevoix, was riding his motorcycle west on Novotny Road around 6:45 p.m. when a dog ran across the road. Curtis struck the dog near Loeb Road, fell from the motorcycle and slid about 50 feet before he stopped, deputies said.

Curtis was transported to Northern Michigan Regional Hospital by Charlevoix Ambulance, where he was treated for multiple broken ribs and a broken scapula (shoulder blade).

The dog died from its injuries.

Vollbach bench trial scheduled

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Former East Jordan Public Schools teacher Paula Vollbach will have a bench trial for an alleged assault on a student.

Judge Richard May, of Charlevoix County's 90th District Court, OK'd the bench trial request on Thursday.

Vollbach's bench trial is set to begin Oct. 20 in district court.

The alleged victim's parents reported the incident to police and East Jordan Public Schools officials quickly placed Vollbach on a leave of absence from her elementary art teacher job. School officials then launched an internal investigation into allegations of other instances of verbal and physical abuse against students.

Vollbach

Petoskey-based attorney Mary Beth Kur, who will defend Vollbach, said her client maintains her innocence and wants her day in court.

"She doesn't feel she did anything criminal and she doesn't want to be labeled as a criminal," Kur said.

Charlevoix County's chief assistant prosecutor Shaynee Fanara could not be reached for comments. Fanara is assigned to prosecute the Vollbach case.

In recent weeks, the prosecution filed a motion to submit a school district report generated through its internal investigation into Vollbach as evidence in the assault trial. Court officials canceled the hearing to address that request and it's unknown whether the prosecution still intends to submit the district's investigation report as evidence.

In total, the district's investigation uncovered no fewer than 15 specific instances of alleged physical abuse against students and violations of the district's policies. The Petoskey News-Review acquired that report under the Michigan Freedom of Information Act.

The prosecution's witness list includes police and school administration officials, as well as the child victim and other students in Vollbach's classroom that day.

The defense's witness list also includes police and school administration officials, as well as a private investigator, teachers and all 24 students in Vollbach's classroom when the alleged assault occurred. Kur said she may call every one of those students to testify.

"I want to know what they saw or didn't see," Kur said.

An East Jordan Police report, also obtained under the Freedom of Information Act, alleges the student victim in the March 3 incident asked Vollbach for help with an assignment before she, in turn, asked him whether he needed to be in a class for students who require "special help." This verbal exchange happened prior to the alleged assault with a ruler, according to the report.

Vollbach worked as a longtime art teacher in the district and became extensively involved in the community's youth theater program, the E.J. Thespians. Her personnel file shows more than 20 years of positive performance evaluations as the district's elementary art teacher.

Community foundation in top tier

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently received notification that it has met the nation's highest philanthropic standards for operational quality, integrity and accountability.

The notice comes from the Community Foundations National Standards Board, a national accreditation organization based in Arlington, Va.

"This is similar to the Good Housekeeping Seal for community foundations," said Diane Miller, manager, Community Foundations National Standards board. "It says that the Charlevoix County Community Foundation has demonstrated a commitment to operational quality, integrity and accountability."

The U.S. Community Foundations' program requires foundations to document their policies for donor services, investments, grantmaking and administration. With more than 200 foundations already compliant nationwide, the program is designed to provide quality assurance to donors, as well as to their legal and financial advisors.

"This is critically important to our donors," said Chip Hansen, president of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. "When people make a charitable bequest, establish a fund or contribute to an existing fund, they're placing their trust in us. They're counting on us to manage the investment wisely and honor their charitable intentions. The National Standards confirmation says our house is in order."

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation offers a broad range of charitable funds, allowing donors to advance causes such as education or the environment, support an individual organization, provide flexible assistance for community needs or recommend individual grants. The confirmation also validates the Foundation's grantmaking practices for the nonprofit community.

"That's important too," said Jeff Rogers, chairman of the Community Foundation's board of trustees. "Grantmaking is a lot like investing ... we assess risk, weigh potential gains, monitor performance and operate in a fair and impartial manner. When you see the National Standards Seal, you can be assured that we're committed to meeting the highest standards for grantmaking as well."

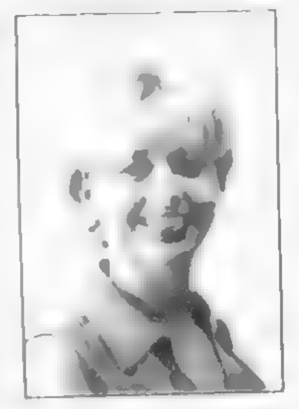
Fall cleaning brings order to the house and mind



A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Every fall when school begins I get into an OCD mode of cleaning closets, drawers and organizing myself for the school year — a habit developed since my first teaching job in 1971. After 30 years of teaching, it's a hard one to break. I have totally surprised my siblings with the clean machine concept. I was the kid growing up who used a dresser top for collecting most of the clothes I had already worn but decided were not dirty enough to be put in the laundry and I was too lazy to hang up or fold. It was my bedroom that no one ventured into without caution because if I suddenly felt like painting a picture in oils, the easel was set up and you never knew if you would venture accidently into wet paint. A trick learned early in life was the discovery that the shampoos Prell and Breck (remember them?) could take oil paint out of clothing. Hmm, one can only wonder what it did for my scalp.

Once I'm in this mode it continues into the kitchen cupboards. I forget how many things have an expiration date and begin tossing items that have names I can't pronounce. Food accessories needed for the creative baker but only used once. But let's hike it up a notch and now I am reviewing our will and last testament. It's no wonder my husband gets a glazed look in his baby blue eyes when I start reviewing bills, finances, life insurance, and social security. All the stuff I get fired up about but forget he may be more interested in the day to day, need-to-know information like what's for dinner. I like a forecast for the future that may never transpire. I love to plan, preview, organize, troubleshoot and find a better solution to everything because, "Isn't there always a better way of doing something?"

Wanting fewer dental problems I spoke with a friend recently who suggested a Water Pic as an added cleaning device for my teeth. She felt that flossing was easy to forget and really not much fun at all. So, of course, there must be a better way to clean so I was right on it. First time out of the package and turning it on with anticipation I was like a kid with a new toy. Bam, swish, I washed the bathroom windows in record time. Read the directions….. keep mouth closed so water doesn't spray. Second try … gurgle… I am drowning and doing it on purpose … how do I turn this off? Noooo … it's still running. Guess I'll clean the tiles in the bathroom while I'm at it. Voila! I have found multiple uses for a product that cleans.

Next up is the walk-in closet. Dust grows with every month and I had no idea what things I would find. Good thing I held off on vacuuming first. While on all fours, I found earring backs, rings, a comb and a hearing aide. September doesn't come soon enough. Guess I should do this fall cleaning in the spring as well or at least make it part of some New Year's activity.

In my mom's era, Heloise inspired women to find multiple uses for household items and really knew her stuff when it came to cleaning and sorting. I can still hear my mom's voice in my head occasionally saying, "I wonder what Heloise would do?" I had an "A-ha!" moment: Maybe a new bracelet to market-WWHD. You don't need to be a current, former or retired teacher to want to join me in this venture. It feels good to empty that one kitchen drawer that collects everything from rubber bands to old receipts. Sorting brings a little sense of order in your own little world and a sense of accomplishment that you completed something. I am not a huge fan of cleaning but enjoy the mindless doing that brings a little order in an ever changing world. More importantly, knowing I have things to clean and items to sort reminds me I have a home and family to care for and knowing that makes it a very good thing.

Ferry Beach launch needs improvement

I am writing to express my disdain for the condition of the public boat launch next to Irish Boat Shop. Charlevoix County as well as the city receives many dollars of benefit from boaters and fishermen who use that facility. While recently taking a 20 foot boat out of the water, it was hard work for two people to simply keep the boat from slamming into the dock while waiting for the trailer to be put into the water. Large waves on [illegible] the paltry, inadequate break wall. It is an embarrassment, and a situation which will perhaps someday cause injury to someone.

Charlevoix County continues to consider spending taxpayer dollars for a second bike trail, from Boyne City to U.S. 31. Yearly maintenance alone would cost about $5,500, while this path is estimated to cost over $600,000, mostly from government grants, using our taxpayer dollars.

Have we no money to improve our launch facility for boaters and fishermen? Several years ago, I gave notice [illegible] that I would donate $1,000 to the city for purchase of bumpers to be placed along the docks, but I heard nothing from the city accepting my offer. How long will boaters continue to come here to experience a poor launch facility? I truly don't see how we should be spending tax payer dollars for any recreational improvements in this economy, but that doesn't stop the government from doing so. Isn't it time to get a Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund grant to improve the launch ramp?

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Gregory

The murder trial for a Charlevoix area woman accused of killing her elderly mother earlier this year has been postponed while her defense seeks a second evaluation of her mental status.

Sandra Gregory, 74, had been scheduled to face a three-day jury trial beginning on Sept. 26 on a charge of open murder in connection with the March 27 death of her 94-year-old mother Amelia Patricia Gregory.

But on Aug. 19, the date that had originally been set as the cutoff for a plea agreement in the case, Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas put the trial on hold to allow the defense to seek an independent evaluation of Gregory's mental status.

Gregory has already been evaluated by staff from the state's Michigan Center for Forensic Psychiatry. The state's evaluation looked both at her competency to stand trial (whether she understands the proceedings against her and can assist in her own defense) and whether Gregory has some mental defect that would prevent a jury from finding her guilty of the charge offense.

In earlier filings, defense attorney Kraag Leiberman has conceded that Gregory caused the death of her mother and indicated his intent to assert an insanity defense.

Leiberman has already agreed to accept a finding by the center that Gregory is competent to stand trial, but he is now seeking an independent evaluation of her understanding of the events that led to her mother's death.

Although specifics of the state's evaluation have not been released, it's unlikely that the prosecution would move forward with the case if the report had supported the insanity defense assertion.

Regardless of finding of the mental evaluations, ultimately it will be up to a jury to decide if Gregory "as a result of mental illness ... lacks substantial capacity either to appreciate the nature and quality or the wrongfulness of her conduct or to conform his or her conduct to the requirements of the law."

Court officials expect the independent mental evaluation to be completed by Oct. 1. The prosecution, defense and the judge are set to meet for a scheduling conference on Oct. 7 to set a new trial date.

Gregory has been out of jail on a $100,000 bond since early July. A condition of that bond is that she is to live with her sister and her sister's husband in Greenville, that she wear an electronic tether device and that she attend weekly mental health counseling sessions. Her bond was posted on July 8 by Norice Rasmussen.

Rasmussen is the same person who, acting as the representative of the estate of Amelia Gregory, in early August filed a lawsuit asking Judge Pajtas to bar Sandra Gregory from receiving any proceeds from a life insurance policy and annuity of her mother's to which she had been named as a beneficiary and to block her from mortgaging or selling the home in which she and her mother lived and jointly owned.

In his answer to the suit on behalf of Sandra Gregory, Leiberman does not object to the injunction, but rather asks the court to "enter an order that is in accordance with equity and good conscience.

Emergency crews were called to the Gregory residence south of Charlevoix around 8 p.m. on March 27 to a report of a deceased elderly woman in the residence.

According to court documents, Gregory told police that earlier in the day her mother had told her she would rather be with her dead husband than be admitted to a nursing home and that sometime after that conversation she attempted to smother her mother with a pillow and then hit her on the head with a lamp.

If convicted on the murder charge, Gregory could face up to life in prison.

RULING

under state law for possession, delivery, and transfer of marijuana do not provide the same protections for the sale of marijuana — even between patients or from patient to caregivers. The court reasoned that "delivery" and "transfer" are not the same as "sale" because they do not contain a compensation element. The court also noted that it cannot ignore the fact the word "sale" was not included in the list of protected acts. Finally the court said a provision of the act that allows a registered primary caregiver to receive compensation for costs associated with assisting a registered qualifying patient in the medical use of marijuana does not provide protection for sales because it includes a entry that reads "Any such compensation shall not constitute the sale of controlled substances." The court reasoned that the quoted sentence would not be needed if the definition of the "medical use" of marijuana included the "sale" of marijuana.

While on its face the ruling might seem to make the city and township plans to address medical marijuana in their zoning ordinances moot, that's not the case, Charlevoix City legal counsel Bryan Graham said.

In explaining the act to the combined meeting of the boards two days before the court ruling was released, Graham said — and the court of appeals appears to agree — that the Michigan Medical Marijuana Act does not allow for medical marijuana to be part of a commercial business operation.

Rather, he said, it's meant to offer people who are suffering from certain conditions an means of growing, possessing and using marijuana as a treatment for the qualifying condition; and for those patients who are not able to grow or prepare their own medical marijuana to have a designated person to grow it and/or prepare it for them.

"It's intended as a means of compassion, not a business." Graham said.

For those reasons he advised, and representatives of both the city and the township followed, that both municipalities regulate the production of medical marijuana in their jurisdictions through modifications to their zoning ordinances that allow it's production — under the requirements of the act — in residential areas only. He went on to suggest that the respective boards consider implementing further restrictions that would require deliveries to take place away from the location where the marijuana is being produced and that the producer take steps to ensure that the operation is as invisible as possible to the community.

Charlevoix Circle of Arts welcomes Übermensch

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts has partnered with the Rotary Club of Charlevoix and the city of Charlevoix to commission nationally known Michigan artist John Sauvé to erect one of his sculptures.

Kristyn Balog, executive director for the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, acted as liaison with the Circle, the city of Charlevoix and other community supporters to bring the work of Sauvé to Charlevoix.

Funding was secured from Charlevoix Rotary for the installation of the 11-foot tall steel sculpture titled Übermensch at the Circle of Arts, located at 109 Clinton St. The city of Charlevoix assisted with the preparation and installation of Sauvé's sculpture, which is on loan by Bay Harbor resident Steve Prue.

"This is a big step for us, but with momentum on our side in this highly visible location, we owe it to ourselves to take this giant leap into our future," Balog said. "Following the strategic plan of the board of directors, this is just the beginning to promoting the importance of public art projects, education programs and events. Public art programming enriches the lives of everyone and has a direct economic impact on the communities that embrace these projects."

The Übermensch sculpture represents an interest to continue the mission of expanding art in the city parks to make Charlevoix a public art destination. This sculpture is the second in a series of public sculptures that Sauvé is exhibiting in Michigan; the first is located in Garden City, with the next one to be installed this fall at the Anton Art Center in Macomb.

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts is also working with City of Charlevoix officials about a proposed project in conjunction with the Sauvé Art Foundation to place up to 10 sculptures in public places in Charlevoix for a two-year period. The matter was slated to be discussed by the Charlevoix City Council at its Sept. 6 meeting.

"Charlevoix Circle of Arts provides opportunities for people to give back to the community, through art representation in the gallery and gift shop, sharing talents teaching art classes offered at the facility, and as volunteers in coordinating year-round activities," said Circle of Arts board president Laurie Lesser Hodgson.

Several workshops are being offered this month at Circle of Arts, including five-color palette oil painting, wildflower brush and palette knife painting, clay sculpting, intermediate watercolor, furniture painting, hook rug instruction, acting classes and majhong.

For more information, visit www.charlevoixcircle.org or call Balog at (231) 547-3554.

Charlevoix Democrats to host meeting

The Charlevoix Democratic Party has called a meeting to "set goals and establish an action plan" for 6-8 p.m. on Monday, for Sept. 19 at the Charlevoix Public Library. The meeting is open to all.

Part of a series of meetings entitled "Toward a Common Ground," the Sept. 19 event will focus on the most effective ways to impact the political process and give voice to progressive concerns, according to Democratic Party chairman Bill Lovett.

In a June Common Ground meeting, Lyn Jenks, an expert facilitator from Petoskey, led about 40 people in discussions of values and issues. She will also lead the Sept. 19 meeting.

"Now is the time for action, building on those shared values," Jenks said, re-stating the basic statement that came out of the June gathering:

"We believe in our Democracy as the preferred form of government to provide equality, inclusiveness, fairness, a spirit of cooperation, the common good and civil liberties for all. While we value freedom of speech and information, we also believe in civility in our speech and behavior. We value moral and ethical behavior, honesty, integrity and justice, making decisions that are fact-based.

"In dealing with each other and reaching out to help those less fortunate, we will be non-judgmental, valuing respect, empathy, compassion and hope for a positive future.

"In matters of fiscal responsibility, we value living within our means, but with altruism and placing people before profits."

The Sept. 19 event will include both large and small group sessions covering issues prioritized in June, including: health care, jobs and fiscal responsibility and fairness, the environment, foreign policy, and education.

Light snacks will be served.

OBITUARIES

Zinn

Joanne Dissette Zinn, age 99, passed away peacefully in her sleep on Aug. 17, 2011. At the time of her death, she was a resident of the Saline Evangelical Nursing home in Saline, Mich.

Joanne was born on Oct. 4, 1911, in Indianapolis, Ind., to James Irving and Alice DePree Dissette. She was the youngest of five siblings: a sister Mary Eunice, a half-sister Lois Dissette Lee, and two half-brothers, Ted and Whitney. She spent her early childhood on the family estate, Irvingcroft, outside of Indianapolis, where she developed a lifelong love of horses and nature. It was here that she fell into a watering tough and contracted typhus, and also survived the great flu pandemic of 1918. Subsequently, James Irving Dissette moved his family to Indianapolis, where Joanne spent the rest of her childhood.

Joanne attended the Santa Barbara Girls' School and Stoneleigh Academy before matriculating at Smith College, graduating in 1933. An accomplished equestrienne, Joanne accumulated a large collection of ribbons and trophies during her prep school and college years. Following college, she worked in Indianapolis and in 1940 she married James Alexander Zinn, a handsome young Harvard graduate. The couple moved to Michigan where he began a long career with the National Bank of Detroit, rising to the position of executive vice president. They made their home in Grosse Pointe, raising their four children there and spending vacations at the family summer home, first in the Belvedere Club in Charlevoix and later on the south arm of Lake Charlevoix in Ironton. Her oldest daughter remembers Joanne knitting countless socks and mufflers for the Royal Canadian Air Force in WW II. Joanne was active in the Junior League, IBEX (a group of women dedicated to the promotion of the arts), and many activities supporting the various interests of her children.

Following the death of James Zinn in 1971, Joanne moved permanently from her Grosse Pointe residence to Ironton, where she enjoyed gardening and luring birds, raccoons, squirrels, and deer to her feeding stations. She spent many winters at her second home in Tucson, Ariz. until age made it too difficult to travel. During the course of her life she was an active member of the Grosse Pointe Presbyterian Church and the Ironton Congregational Church

Joanne is survived by her four children, Alice Elizabeth Ervin of Patagonia, Ariz.; James Alexander Zinn Jr. (Olivia) of Sour Lake, Texas; Mary Charlotte Raynard (Richard) of Denver; and, William Michael Zinn (Julianne) of Ann Arbor. She leaves seven grandchildren: Jill A. Thompson of Phoenix, Kathleen M. Ervin of Tucson, Matthew Keyerleber (Jen) of Denver, Jenny Keyerleber (Patrik) of Denver; Eric Zinn, Emma Zinn, and Elizabeth Zinn, all of Ann Arbor. She also leaves two great-grandchildren, Sofia and Marcus Landberg, as well as a niece and nephew, Barbara Lee Ingham of St. Michaels, Md. and Leslie S. Lee Jr. of Indianapolis, grandnieces Virginia Lee Davis (Kelly), and Katherine Lee Finch (L. Mark), and grandnephew Leslie S. Lee III, all of Indianapolis.

Joanne Zinn will be interred next to her husband at Crown Hill Cemetery in Indianapolis, with a family memorial service to be held at a later date.

The family would like to thank the excellent staff at Arbor Hospice and Saline Evangelical Nursing Home for their loving care of Joanne at the end of her long life.

In lieu of flowers the family suggests that donations can be made to any environmental, wildlife, child, or animal rescue charity.

Ross Edward Drayton Jr., 64

Drayton

Ross Edward Drayton Jr., age 64, formerly of Charlevoix, died peacefully in his home, surrounded by family, Monday Aug 29, 2011. He and his wife have lived in Sedona, Ariz. for the past 14 years.

He is survived by his loving wife Karen (Wares) Drayton, son Darren Drayton, daughters Bridget (David)Bailey, Tasha (Mike) Kittel, granddaughters Kennedy and Taylor Bailey, four brothers and spouses, and many nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his father Ross Drayton Sr., mother Rose Drayton, and his sister Louise Bellmer.

He was known for his love for family, friends, hiking, and strong coffee. He was also known for his big smile, hospitality, and teasing nature. Ross was an active member of the Sedona Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses. He loved teaching Bible truths to anyone who would listen. He enjoyed visiting Michigan in the summer, visiting friends during the Venetian Festival in Charlevoix, and attending the annual District Convention of Jehovah's Witnesses with his family.

As owner of Drayton Builders Inc., he built the Bay Harbor Equestrian Club, among many other projects.

A memorial service took place at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, 110 Northview Road, Sedona, Ariz., Saturday Sept. 3. In lieu of flowers those planning an expression of sympathy may consider the family.

A Beaver Island Municipal Boat Dock employee arrived at work around 6:45 a.m. on Sunday, Sept. 4, and noticed chamber property strewn across the property. The employee at the same time observed a man inside the chamber building who fled when Charlevoix County Sheriff's officials were called.

Authorities later apprehended the suspect, a 24-year-old Grand Rapids man, as he waited to catch the Beaver Island ferry. The suspect, whose name is being withheld by authorities pending arraignment for breaking and entering, currently is held at the Charlevoix County Jail.

The police investigation revealed the man didn't steal anything from the chamber, but knocked things over and threw items outside after he allegedly forced entry to the building. This happened after the suspect left a tavern, authorities said.

Beaver Island summer tourism upbeat

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

BEAVER ISLAND — Annual summer tourism seemed to perk up this year on Beaver Island, where the population typically swells with resorters, vacationers and hordes of day-trippers during the summer season.

Business operators reported a busier summer than last year, but they said revenues still haven't returned to the bounty of years before the recent economic recession. Labor Day is typically the last tourism hurrah before traffic to the island winds down prior to autumn's arrival.

"It was a lot better than last year," said Roy Elsworth, owner of the nine-room Erin Motel.

The small inn on Paradise Bay, the island's primary port, filled up with guests faster and more frequently than recent summers — including no vacancies during most weekends — but that slowed down by the end of August, he said.

SHERI MCWHIRTER/NEWS-REVIEW

Beaver Island residents report a good summer tourism season this year, a boost over last year but not as strong as the summers before the current economic recession.

"It didn't slow down as fast as it has in the past, though," Elsworth said.

Next door at Lakesports and Paradise Bay Gifts, visitors snapped up a lot of apparel and gift items, said Christy Albin, owner. "It seemed busier than last season," she said.

"I think the weather was fair. If we had more rainy days, it wouldn't have been so good," Albin said.

She's not the only one who credits the summer's fair weather patterns with the boost in tourism traffic.

"It's been a pretty good summer. I think that with the good weather we've had a slight uptick in the number of visitors," said Jeff Powers, owner of Powers' Hardware and Beaver Island Gift Shop.

His employee, Dawn George, who mans the cash register for the steady flow of summer tourists, agreed with Powers.

"I think we've done fairly well. It was kind of quiet up until the Fourth of July and then things picked up quite well. I think it's been a good season," she said.

The biggest daily surge in sales tends to come right before the ferry leaves for the mainland, George said, laughing.

"We're up some," she said. "We're not seeing the numbers from a few years back, but it's an improvement over the last couple of years."

Families with children frequently came in for lunches at the Shamrock Restaurant & Pub, a trend that kept food sales up, said employee Kayla Anderson.

"The dinners have been up a lot, even though it seems like there's not been a lot of people out at night," she said.

Overall, the increase in tourists this summer became clearly evident to island residents, said Tim McDonough, of McDonough's Market and a local government official.

"It seemed after the Fourth of July somebody flipped a switch and opened a floodgate for both the good weather and the visitors," he said.

But despite this summer's improvement over last, it's not back to the pre-recession tourism heyday, Elsworth said.

"The summer of 2007 was the last best summer before the economy slowed down," he said.

However, Elsworth said tourism is still better than some other industries on the island. He closed up his Beaver Island real estate business since property sales to resorters dried up, even among the wealthiest, he said.

Local history recounted first hand

JENNIFER RICHARDSON
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

ELLSWORTH — Donna Heeres of Ellsworth describes her great grandfather, Stephen Horatio Smith, as "quite a storyteller."

His life experiences provided a great deal of material for those stories. Smith lived on Beaver Island during the reign of James "King" Strang, and as a child, worked as a go-between for the U.S. Government in its dealings with local Native American tribes.

Smith was born in Redford, Mich., in 1849, and moved to Beaver Island with his family when he was 3 years old. His father had been given a commission as a lighthouse keeper.

In his youth, Smith also lived in Middle Village near Good Hart as well as Yuba. Heeres says that the family moved homesteads several times, constantly in search of a town that had a school for the children in the family.

As an adult, Smith served as a justice of the peace, and operated a store at 401 Antrim St., in Charlevoix. Smith's grandson, Kenneth Staley, still lives at that address. Donna Heeres, Kenneth Staley's daughter, recently published Smith's stories of his experiences in Northwest Michigan, titled "Footprints in the Sand: A true historical sketch of when Northwest Michigan was inhabited by Indians, Mormons and Fishermen."

JENNIFER RICHARDSON/NEWS-REVIEW

Donna Heeres (left) and her father, Kenneth Staley, display the book "Footprints in the Sand," and a piece of the artwork included in the text. The book was written by Heeres' great-grandfather, Stephen Smith, and tells stories of the history of Northwestern Michigan.

Smith wrote out the manuscript by hand during his lifetime, and his daughter, Audrey Staley Hillaker, typed and edited the manuscript during the 1930s and 40s. The family also researched the events described in the manuscript, visiting the places Smith mentioned, and searching census records and newspaper archives to verify events. Hillaker sought to publish the manuscript, but could not find a publisher, and found it too expensive to self-publish.

The illustrations depict Smith in the family cooperage, being home-schooled by his mother, delivering payments from the federal government to members of local Native American tribes, and the USS Michigan, which delivered Smith's family to Beaver Island in 1852.

The book also includes articles from the Grand Rapids Press and weekly magazines which verify events in Smith's stories.

An afterward by Smith's grandson, Kenneth Staley, brings the book to a conclusion.

"Footprints in the Sand" is available at Central Drug, the Charlevoix Historical Society, Book World and Round Lake Books in Charlevoix, McLean & Eakin in Petoskey; Between the Covers in Harbor Springs; the Good Hart Store in Good Hart; Country Now and Then in Boyne City, Busy Bridge in East Jordan, the Beaver Island Historical Society on Beaver Island; Friske's Orchard in Atwood, and the Front Porch in Ellsworth.

Books can also be purchased directly from Heeres. For further information, call (231) 588-7741, or visit the book's Facebook page.

Charlevoix County responds to FOIA suit

Charlevoix County officials have responded to the Petoskey News Review's Freedom of Information lawsuit and for the most part denied the newspaper's allegations.

The newspaper filed a lawsuit Tuesday, Aug. 2, under the Michigan Freedom of Information Act that sought to compel the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners and prosecutor's office to release several emails between commissioner Chris Christensen and prosecutor John Jarema, including any emails sent between the two during a public meeting that took place at Charlevoix County's administration building in Charlevoix. The county's response on Thursday, Aug. 25, denies the newspaper's allegation that the Freedom of Information Act denials came as "arbitrary and capricious" decisions by Jarema.

Jarema

Furthermore, the county denies that emails sent between the two elected officials are even public records. The county's response identifies one email sent to Jarema during a May 11 meeting that was automatically generated from Christensen's subscribed Multiple Listing Service account.

Christensen

Christensen is a local real estate agent with online abilities to email property listings to subscribers, [illegible] most property brokers.

Charlevoix County also effectively denied that Jarema told newspaper online editor Julie Witthoeft that he would extend the time frame to respond to a Freedom of Information Act request for a police report about Boyne Falls Police Chief David Hague's domestic violence arrest even before she filed it, because of editor Jeremy McBain.

More often than not, the county responded to the newspaper's lawsuit allegations by neither admitting nor denying the facts in play.

Christensen and Jarema separately filed for summary disposition of the case and legal sanctions against the newspaper for specifically naming them in the suit.

Those requested sanctions include a financial penalty to cover legal costs, but do not include punitive damages, according to Michigan law.

McBain

McBain said the newspaper is eager for a judge to weigh in.

"We look forward to presenting our case in court," he said.

Media attorney Robin Luce Herrmann, of Bloomfield Hills, represents the newspaper in the suit. She said the county's position in its response is "not entirely unexpected" and the newspaper will respond in turn.

"We'll be filing an appropriate response on behalf of the Petoskey News-Review and look forward to the judge resolving the issues," she said.

Herrmann also said the newspaper provided the county a copy of its complaint in advance of filing suit, when objections to Christensen and Jarema being named should have been raised.

"They had plenty of opportunity to address that in advance of the filing of this suit or their motion," Herrmann said.

Petoskey-based attorney Gretchen Olsen represents Charlevoix County in this case, despite Jarema serving as the board's civil counsel. Olsen is an attorney with the Plunkett Cooney firm in Petoskey.

Olsen

She declined to comment to a News-Review reporter because the county and the newspaper are pitted against each other in this case, she said.

"Our answer pretty well speaks for itself," Olsen said.

County clerk's officials said Charlevoix Agency, the county's liability insurance provider, retained Olsen as counsel for this case.

However, county commissioners Bob Drebenstedt and Shirlene Tripp — one-third of the board — said they do not agree with the county's strategy in this legal battle.

"I totally agree with the newspaper. The people have a right to know. We always say we're transparent, but then we go and pull this and that isn't very transparent, is it?" said Drebenstedt, of Marion Township. "I am just sorry we have to go through something like this. It's a shame they won't just turn this stuff over."

Drebenstedt

Tripp, of Hayes Township, said the county's position is wrong and should be reversed in the interest of public disclosure.

"I know the public would like to see this brought to a head. They are tired of these games," she said.

Tripp

Tripp also said she never saw or learned about the county's strategy to respond to the newspaper's suit before the county's lawyer filed the answer to the complaint document at the Emmet County courthouse. It should have been discussed in a closed session during a regularly scheduled full board meeting, she said.

"They wouldn't run anything by me, anyway. There's only about three of us who know what's going on," Tripp said.

Drebenstedt also confirmed the lawsuit strategy never came up during board meetings.

Commissioners Ron Reinhardt and Rich Gillespie declined to comment on the pending litigation and Jarema deferred questions to Olsen.

"It's fruitless for me to give the News-Review a quotation when they constantly misquote or short-quote me," Jarema said.

Christensen did not return repeated phone messages seeking comment, nor did board chariman Joel Evans.

A hearing on the summary disposition request is set for Monday, Oct. 17, in Emmet County Circuit Court before judge Charles W. Johnson.

I just finished reading your first issue of FAMILY LIFE. I think this is a winner! Good info for families. My husband, John and I laughed at the kids' quotes. We both agreed with the pick you made of the baby with large sunglasses, for winner of the gift certificate.

We both enjoyed reading: Blended Families by Gina Dunneback. My husband and I first met Gina's husband, Rob, at the Radiation Therapy Department of Northern Michigan Regional Hospital. A wonderful man and solid Christian. We were so glad to see their family priorities were God first. That's a start toward success in a life, a marriage, a family.

My husband, John, and I have 7 married children, 31 grandchildren, 11 are married and soon to be 24 great-grandchildren! We just found out the last 2 are identical twins, to be born in Ft. Worth TX in January. The older sibling will be 1 1/2 at that time!

I lived in Midland MI 32 years, really missed the Midland Daily News, until....I became addicted to the Petoskey-News Review! I am so proud to live in the area and enjoy the people and activities that you and others write so positively about.

This latest addition to the PNR family of publications is bound to be an award winner, at least in my book

Congratulations, Julie, its a good mix!

Heartbreaker

Rayders fall 12-6 to Glen Lake in overtime

Glen Lake scored on a 5-yard run to hand Charlevoix a heartbreaking 12-6 loss Thursday in a non-league high school football game at Kipke Field.

Glen Lake seized a 6-0 lead in the second quarter, and it stayed that way until Charlevoix quarterback Andrew Potter tossed a 16-yard touchdown pass to Charlie Hamilton with a minute remaining in regulation.

Charlevoix went on offense first in the OT, and missed a fourth-down field goal attempt.

"We fumbled twice in the red zone in the second quarter," Charlevoix coach Don Jess said. "One of them was a fumble through the end zone for a touchback.

"We've done a good job of protecting the ball in our scrimmage and in our first game. Tonight, it was so hot and the ball and arms were slippery. We had a tough time hanging onto the ball."

Potter completed 10-of-19 passes for 168 yards. Hamilton finished with six catches for 91 yards. John Boss led the Charlevoix run game with 36 yards on eight carries, while Jake McLean added 26 on nine attempts.

Andrew Robarge made 12 tackles to lead Charlevoix's defense, while Potter had eight stops. Potter had two interceptions, while Tanner Catt and Myles Kurr had one apiece.

"I thought our defensive coordinator, Keith Carey, and the whole defense just did a phenomenal job tonight," Jess said.

Charlevoix's River Gauthier and Shane Sutherland each recorded a sack.

"It's a hard loss for everybody," Jess said. "We still have high expectations, but we just made it hard on ourselves. I expect our kids to respond."

The loss dropped Charlevoix to 0-2. The Rayders play host to Harbor Springs in the Lake Michigan Conference opener for both schools on Friday, Sept. 9. Game time is 7 p.m. at Kipke Field.

For the second week in a row, Taylor Seese again led the offense with 176 yards rushing, two touchdowns, and a 2 point conversion. He also had a 37-yard punt return for a touchdown to seal the victory in the fourth quarter. Brian Noirot scored the other touchdown on a 15-yard run and Luke Klinger hooked up with tight end Nate Moon for a 2-point conversion. Will Telgenhof had four receptions for 45 yards, including a 30-yarder where he was forced out of bounds at the 1 yard line.

Spencer Bruce played a huge game on defense with 9 tackles, a forced fumble, an interception, and a sack. He also blocked a Glen Lake punt. Also leading the defense were Jamie Kelly with 15 tackles and Nate Moon with [illegible] tackles, 2 sacks, and one forced fumble.

"I was really proud of how the team responded when we got down 15-0," said JV head coach Doug Waha. "They showed tremendous character in coming back and taking control of the game."

The Charlevoix Junior Varsity Team travels to Harbor Springs next week. Kickoff is set for 6 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 8.

GOLF

Schmid wins GAM championship at Belvedere

Barb Schmid of Grand Rapids defeated two-time defending champion Joan Garety in a two-hole playoff Tuesday, Aug. 30 to win the Golf Association of Michigan Women's Senior Championship at Belvedere Golf Club.

Schmid and Garety finished 36 holes of stroke play tied at 153. Both players faltered on the first playoff hole with Garety, who took a two-shot lead into the final round, chipping past the hole and Schmid three-putting.

Schmid then made an 8-foot putt for birdie to secure the victory on the second playoff hole.

"We were both about even with our drives, but on the second shot Joan went into a bunker and I laid up and landed in a divot about 70 yards from the green," Schmid said. "My third shot was about eight feet from the pin so I had a sliding 8-footer to make the birdie and Joan made par."

The two golfers from Egypt Valley Golf Club in Ada have shared the fairway many times over the years.

"I respect Joan and was pleased to go head-to-head with her," Schmid said. "I feel like if I can compete with Joan, I'm playing well.

With the win, Schmid earns a berth in the United States Golf Association Senior Women's Amateur, which is scheduled for Sept. 10-15 in Chattanooga, Tenn.

"I went into this with the idea of working on some swing changes and getting my mind in order for next week," Schmid said. "It was great to win the tournament and I feel good about my finish in the GAM Women's Mid-Amateur a couple of weeks ago too.

"Now, I just have to get in the midset for the USGA."

The A Flight net winner and third place overall was Debra Horning of West Bloomfield, who shot a two-day 157, while Shelly Weiss of Southfield and Maureen Whitehead of Charlevoix finished tied for fourth at 160.

Cathy Kalahar of Harbor Springs finished 18th at 172, while Susan Hays of Boyne City was 43rd at 189 and Mary Jean Esselman was 44th at 190. Ginnie Cash of Charlevoix was tied for 57th at 201.

SOCCER

Rayder alumnus scores in Clemson victory

CLEMSON, S.C. — Charlevoix soccer standout and All-Stater Ben Myers notched an unassisted goal for the Clemson Tiger soccer team in a 2-0 victory over the University of South Carolina Friday.

Myers, a 2011 Charlevoix High School graduate and Clemson freshman, started at center-mid in the team's home opener in 7,423 spectators — a record attendance for the school's Riggs Field soccer venue.

Myers broke a scoreless tie at the 15:18 mark when he dribbled at the top of the box, with his back to the goal, shifted to his right then turned and fired a low 22-yard shot that just went in the goal near the right post to give the Tigers an 1-0 lead.

Myers

"(This win) gives us motivation, and gives us hope for the future," Meyer was quoted in a story about the game on the Clemson athletic department's website. "If we keep working hard and bringing it hard in practice, we are going to keep getting better."

"It's an amazing feeling to play in such an atmosphere as a freshman," Myers wrote in an e-mail to the Courier. "I couldn't have gone anywhere without the support from my community, friends and coaches. There are a ton of underrated athletes in Northern Michigan who don't get enough exposure. Luckily I did," he added

Following the win, the Tigers were 1-1 for the season. Clemson lost their season opener against Alabama-Birmingham 2-1. Myers also had a quality scoring chance late in the first half of that game, according to the school's website.

Clemson had been scheduled to face the University of North Carolina - Greensboro on Monday, but the game was postponed because of expected bad weather. The team is next slated to travel to Wake Forest on Thursday, Sept. 9

NWS: Summer was very hot

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

GAYLORD — Northern Lower Michigan experienced a hot and rainy summer, national officials report.

The National Weather Service station in Gaylord issued its summer 2011 report that shows the weather was hot — really hot. The report also ranked this summer among the top 10 warmest in many areas, especially July.

"That was the main show for the summer, the very warm July," said Nick Schwartz, federal meteorologist. "It certainly was above normal in temperature overall. It really came down to the warm July."

The service keeps weather records for a number of Northern Michigan spots that date back to the 19th and early 20th centuries, including Sault Ste. Marie, Houghton Lake, Alpena and Traverse City. Records in Petoskey do not date back that far.

Most places maintained an average summer temperature that was above normal, weather records show.

"The jet stream was pushed northward, well into Canada and up around the Great Lakes region," Schwartz said.

That helped lead to the hot, muggy conditions that descended on the region, sometimes for days on end.

"What we saw with the incredible heat that built in the South — we saw the intrusion of that hot air from the Plains with the jet stream north of us — we didn't have a way to kick that hot air out," Schwartz said.

Gaylord had an average summer temperature of 66.4 degrees, one degree higher than normal. The hottest day was 95 degrees on July 20, while the coolest was 41 degrees on June 2.

Traverse City had an average of 70 degrees this summer, more than three degrees above normal. There was a three-way tie for the hottest day, 96 degrees on June 7 and both July 17 and 20.

Traverse City's two coolest summer days were June 3 and 13 when it was 44 degrees, records show.

Despite the consistent heat across the region, rainfall stayed hit-or-miss from spot to spot.

Petoskey received 10.89 inches of rain throughout June, July and August, more than two inches above normal, and Sault Ste. Marie received 11.42 inches of rain, nearly three inches above normal. Gaylord received almost an inch of rain more than normal, but Traverse City collected nearly an inch less than normal years, records show.

Two girls injured in truck crash

IRONTON — Charlevoix County Sherrif's office officials said a pair of 12-year-old girls crashed a truck into a maple tree after a few laps in an alfalfa field Sunday.

Authorities said emergency responders were called at 12:42 p.m. when Margaret Alice Potter, 12, of Charlevoix, and her friend Sara Marie McClenathan, 12, of Ironton, took the family farm truck for a cruise on the back 40 acres. Margaret was unable to drive the truck out of the field and onto a two-track and lost control on a large bump, authorities said.

Margaret did not regain control and crashed the 1976 GMC Sierra flatbed pickup into the tree.

Both girls sustained injuries that included scrapes, lacerations and possible internal injuries. They did not wear seat belts, authorities said.

LOOKING BACK…

The fishing colony known as Pine River was permanently settled in the mid 1850s with the arrival of Medad and Phoebe Thompson and their many children. More settlers began to trickle in, some to stay in what became Charlevoix, others to found communities further down Pine Lake (Lake Charlevoix). The one event that jumpstarted the economy of the entire Pine Lake basin was the construction of a 900-foot dock into Lake Michigan by area entrepreneurs Hiram Rose and Amos Fox toward the end of the Civil War. What was intended at first to be only a "wooding" dock to supply area lumber as fuel for the lake steamers that ran between Chicago and Buffalo soon attracted other commercial interests. News of the region's healthy climate and stunning beauty filtered out from those who passed this way. Now tourists and resorters began to arrive here from all over the country. This dock alone put Pine River/Charlevoix and the inland lake on the map. It lasted until 1882 when the channel reached its current width and the largest lake steamers could now reach Round Lake. The dock was allowed to perish under the relentless fury of Lake Michigan.

The territory of the diocese was home to Bishop Baraga's first missionary assignment. Baraga Days will be an event for the community of Harbor Springs, Indian River, Petoskey and the entire Northern Michigan region. Bishop Baraga is a legendary figure in the history of Northern Michigan and a pioneer of the American Catholic Church.

The festivities for Baraga Days 2011 will officially start on Friday, Sept. 23, at The National Shrine of the Cross in the Woods, Indian River. The evening will begin with a 7 p.m. vespers service that will include special readings for the occasion as well as a blessing of a portrait of Bishop Baraga, painted by local artist Jane Cardinal. The service will be followed by a choral presentation and a dessert reception.

On both Saturday and Sunday, the pilgrimage sites will be open. Sites will include: Beaver Island, Burt Lake, Cheboygan, Cross Village, Gaylord, Good Hart, Harbor Springs, Indian River, Peshawbestown and Petoskey.

Blood drives — Officials with the American Red Cross are continuing their appeal to help replenish the critically low local supply of certain blood types. Officials said donations in May and June dropped to the lowest levels the Red Cross has seen during this timeframe in more than a dozen years. Red Cross officials said demand is high for all blood type, but particularly for types O negative, which can be used for any patient. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again.

In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. As an added incentive for donors, every person who attempts to donate in September will have a chance to win a $250 Meijer gift card and a $125 Meijer gas card. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. City council smiles on proposals for art, literacy and a new welcome sign

COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix is poised to become a little more literate, cultured and welcoming if all three proposals brought before the city council for its blessing last week come together as planned.

Among the projects are a two-year sculpture exhibit to be placed in public places throughout the city, a walking short-story tour with reading stations scattered throughout the city and a new welcome sign to greet guests as they traverse the Pine River Channel from Lake Michigan.

By consensus, at its regular semi-monthly meeting Tuesday, Sept. 6, (the meeting was pushed back a day because of the Labor Day holiday) the Charlevoix City Council gave its blessing to all three proposals.

Art in the park

The city council heard a proposal by John Sauve of the Sauve Art Foundation that would place 10 sculptures in public places around Charlevoix for two years.

Sauve, a Brighton resident, told the council that he's done similar projects in Brighton, Royal Oak, Port Huron and Birmingham.

He proposes to raise $20,000 to offset the costs of the project.

Sauve told the council that merchants in communities where he's done similar projects have reported that the sculptures seem to become a big attraction for visitors and they report reaping economic benefits.

The effort grew out of cooperative effort with city manager Rob Straebel, Sauve and the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, which would oversee fundraising.

Suave said the sculptures would be selected by his foundation by invitation and they would be for sale during the two years they would be on display.

The council was receptive to the plan and directed Straebel to move forward with it. Straebel said that city staff will work with the downtown development authority to discuss which locations would be best for the sculptures. For now the city's only costs would be some manpower to assist in placing the sculptures.

For more information on Sauve, visit his foundation's website at www.sauveartfoundation.org.

Signing off

At the meeting Charlevoix High School student Jonathon Lindfors presented his proposal to oversee the replacement of the sign on the south side of the Pine River Channel just west of Memorial Bridge that welcomes visitors arriving by boat to the city.

Jonathon is a Boy Scout who is working on completing the requirements for earning the rank of Eagle Scout. He wants to do the sign replacement to fulfill the Eagle Scout community service project requirement.

Lindfors

Jonathon proposes to replace the aging dark brown wooden sign with a new sign similar to those that greet visitors at the city's main entrances on U.S. 31 and M-66.

In a letter to city manager Rob Straebel, Jonathon wrote, "I am also planning to remove the existing overgrown juniper bushes that are behind the sign. Then, I was thinking that there should some landscaping around the new sign. I have met with a landscape architect, Mr. Traver Wood, to help design the arrangement of new plants and a small retaining wall to create a raised planting area around the sign. We have selected several plants to complement the new sign and improve the appearance in this area of the city.

Jonathon said the service club logos that currently adorn the sign would return with the addition of emblems for the Elks, Knight of Columbus, and Masons.

Total cost for the project is estimated at about $18,000.

At at the meeting, Jonathon asked not only for the council's blessing for the project, but asked if they would be willing to allocate $7,000 of the project's costs (the cost of the sign) in next year's budget. Jonathon plans to seek volunteer labor and monetary contributions to make up the rest of the project's cost.

Council members were very receptive of Jonathon's proposal and several commended him on his efforts.

"I think its a great idea," council member Lyle Gennett said. "I give you a lot of credit."

Jonathon hopes to start work on the project in the spring and expects work to be completed before Memorial Day.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the effort may contact the city manager's office at (231) 547-3270.

An exercise in literacy

The council also gave its blessing to a proposal by Sherrel Bergmann to create a children's literature walk throughout the city.

Bergmann told the council the project would provide a unique reading and literature and exercise experience for young visitors to Charlevoix by making short stories, poetry and fun facts about the area.

The walk would entail the placing 16-inch by 20-inch acrylic boxes at selected locations around town which would house the literature.

Bergmann proposes that the contents would be written or chosen by students at Charlevoix schools and a brochure would be developed to provide information about the project and a map to all the box locations. Tentatively, she suggests that the boxes go up when the petunias are planted and come out after Apple Festival.

City manager Rob Straebel noted that downtown development authority has already given the proposal its blessing.

Bergmann suggested that an animal mascot be developed for the project that would help with community and visitor awareness. She said a panel made up of representatives from the public library and schools would ensure that the material in the boxes meets criteria for posting and that she envisions each school, the library and the historical society could be given responsibility for supplying content to the boxes for the season.

She estimated the total cost for the project at about $1,200.

Bergmann said she got the idea from a similar project she saw while visiting Austria two summers ago.

Bergmann, who is a school consultant, university professor and has authored six books on teaching and learning, said the project not only would serve as yet another attraction in the town, but also promotes both literacy and exercise.

She hopes to have the project in place in the spring.

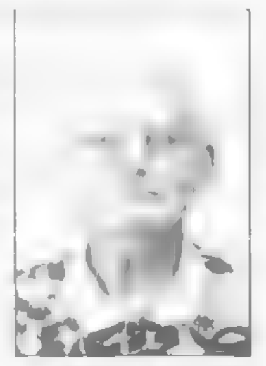
Presidents owed more heed



EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Right wing criticism of the "media" is almost standard, but criticism from the other parts' of the political scene is less common. I have a serious criticism of the media.

When President Obama speaks to the nation, whether at a press conference or in a speech to the Congress, press and TV coverage of his remarks most often consider them to be a part of his potential political campaign. What he says is treated by the media as a political speech. Now, in some cases it may be just that, but my concern is about the difference between a duly elected President and any of the potential wannabes out there. Certainly the President of the United States deserves some consideration. No one is required to agree with the President, but we should be encouraged to recognize that he is not just another candidate.

Even Richard Nixon, when he was President, was accorded more deference than a mere candidate. And Ronald Reagan was genuinely revered. I suspect that in both those cases, and in others that might be mentioned, the reverence and deference was not necessarily to the person, but to the position. When Barack Obama speaks, to the nation, whether at an Iowa farm or from the White House, he is addressing us as the President of the United States, not simply as a potential political candidate. And his remarks should be reported as the President speaking to the nation, not as just another stump speech by someone who is hoping be elected or re-elected.

A candidate most often will be speaking to his, or her constituency: Republican candidates to Republicans and Democratic candidates to Democrats. When the President, whoever it is, speaks publicly, he or she speaks to the nation, not to some politicized fragment of it.

Reporters love controversy, and the President speaking to the nation is not controversial. Franklin Roosevelt's Fireside Chats on the radio were not controversial. If, however, the President's remarks are reported as those of a candidate, what he says is heard through a different set of preconceptions, and controversy is unavoidable. I recall TV reporter Roger Mudd, during a previous presidential election that seemed too close to call, waxing overly-enthusiastically about what might happen if the election were thrown into the House of Representatives for decision. He was thrilled by the prospect, even though it would have caused the nation considerable pain and trouble.

The reportorial search for something controversial should not be the reason behind how the President's acts and speech are viewed. It might almost be considered unpatriotic to treat the President as just another candidate. The President is, after all, the official representative of our country. He is both the head of state and the head of government.

The language we choose to use, or what we read, directs our thoughts along particular lines, otherwise no one would ever advertise anything. Candidates are being sold. It seems to me that the President should not automatically fall into that category. Civility is a complicated idea, but probably necessary if we are to collectively avoid shouting matches as the way to truth. Listen civilly to the President.

LETTER to the editor

Editor:

Several years ago authorities at the state highway department determined that the railings on the bridge were not of sufficient strength to stop a speeding car or truck from plunging into the Pine River channel. As a result, the current stronger railings were ordered to be installed. This was deemed necessary in spite of the fact that the high curbs on the bridge are an effective means of containing errant motor vehicles. Correct me if I am wrong, but in the entire history of the bridge I am not aware of a single incident where a reckless motor vehicle has even come in contact with the railings, let alone challenged their strength. The current railings reduced the effective width of the sidewalks by about 8 inches making it difficult for north and south bound pedestrians to pass safely. This is particularly true when one of the pedestrians is walking a bicycle or pushing a double wide baby stroller as is often the case. The net result of the bureaucracy-forced bridge railing replacement was an expenditure of tax payer dollars to solve a non-existent problem of cars plunging into the channel while increasing the real possibility of pedestrians on the overcrowded sidewalks falling onto the roadway into the path of oncoming cars and trucks.

The city is now under the gun from federal bureaucrats to replace its street signs. The logic for this, I believe, is that the current signs are not sufficiently visible and that new reflective signs are needed to facilitate the response of emergency vehicles. Now Charlevoix is a small town with a limited number of streets and our emergency responders are mostly residents of the area and are familiar with community that they serve. One should check with them to be sure, but I suspect that the responders are rarely reliant on the street signs to get where they are going. And in those cases where they are, the current signs with bold raised black letters on a white background, although not reflective, are easily read night or day even by someone with my 64 year old eyes. Meanwhile, it must be said that the current signs are unique and are part of the character and charm of our community. Just as with the bridge railings, replacement of the street signs is a costly "solution" to a problem that doesn't exist and that has collateral damage.

I believe that bureaucrats function best when they know when to enforce one size fits all standards and when local conditions dictate that it is appropriate to relax the standards. I believe communities function best when they help to educate the bureaucrats in making this determination.

John W. Duerr

Charlevoix and Ann Arbor

Editor's note: On Aug. 30 the U.S. Department of Transportation announced it was proposing to eliminate deadlines for local and state agencies to replace most traffic signs. Under the proposed rule change, local and state governments would be allowed to wait until signs wear out before replacing them with signs meeting the new visibility standards. However "safety critical" signs such as "Stop" and "One Way" signs would still be held to the upgrade deadlines.

Charlevoix again named 'Tree City USA'

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix has again been recognized by the nonprofit Arbor Day Foundation as a Tree City USA community, an award the organization gives communities to honor their commitment to urban forestry.

It is the 19th year Charlevoix has earned the national designation.

The Tree City USA program is sponsored by the Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with the National Association of State Foresters and the USDA Forest Service.

To earn the designation, the city must meet four standards: Tree City USA communities must have a tree board or department, a tree-care ordinance, a comprehensive community forestry program with an annual budget of at least $2 per capita, and an Arbor Day observance and proclamation.

A mayoral proclamation about the program was approved at the Aug. 15 city council meeting.

City treasurer Rick Brandi said the current year's budget included about $11,000 for tree and shrub care, maintenance and replacement.

Officials with the Arbor Day Foundation said that trees are important because they:

— Promote healthier communities by filtering the air we breathe by removing dust and other particles.

— Moderate climate, conserve water and provide vital habitat for wildlife.

The Arbor Day Foundation is a nonprofit, environmental and education organization of nearly one million members, with a mission to inspire people to plant, nurture, and celebrate trees. More information on the foundation and its programs, including the Tree City USA program, can be found at www.arborday.org.

Pie time

For the past several years, the members of the Charlevoix Elks Lodge have been baking or collecting pies to hand out to public safety workers on the anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks as a way to say, "Thank you." This year, the organization distributed the most pies to-date, with 100 being handed out to police officers, firefighters and U.S. Coast Guard members. Fifty of the pies were baked by Elks members Shawn McDonough, Ken Hoffman and Pat Faust and their wives at the Belvedere Casino. Organizers are hoping to again increase the number of pies for next year's anniversary. Pictured above, Chris Jones (left) and Bruce Beaudoin (right) deliver pies to U.S. Coast Guard members at Station Charlevoix on Sept. 11.

CROP walk set for Sept. 24

The Charlevoix CROP Hunger Walk will begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 24, from Whiting Park in Boyne City, Charlevoix Middle School and Elm Pointe in East Jordan. The event will benefit six local ministries.

Global ministries that will receive help from the CROP Hunger Walk include people in Haiti, survivors in Japan, children in Darfur, women in Kenya, families in Pakistan, and recent tornado/flood victims in the Midwest and Northeast.

Last year, the walk surpassed the $19,000 mark for total giving, with more that 116 people walking and hundreds contributing to this annual event over the years.

CROP Hunger Walking started in the late 1960"s when a group of churches in the Midwest hosted an event in solidarity with people in the developing world who had to walk daily for food, water, education, employment and health care. People raised funds through a pledge per mile and then choose to walk 20 miles together in tandem with those throughout the world who must walk on a daily basis. CROP Hunger Walks have multiplied to more than 2,000 walks nationwide. Michigan is celebrating its 41st year in 2011, with the first CROP Hunger Walk taking place in Marne, Mich., organized by the United Methodist Youth in the West Michigan District. Since that first walk, Michiganders have raised more than $45 million for hunger related needs in Michigan and in more than 80 countries worldwide.

Anthony John 'Tony' Wojan Jr., 75

The family moved to Charlevoix in 1948 where Tony worked as a logger with his father and then worked on the car ferries in Ludington. He then became a builder and finish carpenter until 1988. Tony married Donna Richards of Oregon in July of 1971. Together they built and opened Donto Kennels on Barnard Road in 1976. Tony spent his life dedicated to his family, friends, and the local community of animals that he cared for over the years. It wasn't unusual to walk into Donto Kennels and find Tony working with a big smile on his face and a favorite cat on his shoulder.

Tony enjoyed his family and friends and was always ready to greet you with a hot cup of coffee and good conversation. He also enjoyed hunting, fishing, gardening, poker, and was an avid Detroit Tigers fan. In the winter months when the native northerners were heading south to Florida, Tony would head south to Torch Lake in pursuit of the mighty whitefish, which he would cook for family and friends. Tony had a zest for life and will be deeply missed by family and friends.

Tony is survived by his wife Donna; sisters Madelyn Renaud of Charlevoix, Delores Gallagher of Riverdale, Ill., Mary Wood of Roseville, Phyllis (Norman) Switzer of Oak Grove; brothers Walt Wojan of Beaver Island, and Albert Wojan of Charlevoix; many dear nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.

A memorial service will take place at Kelsey B's Restaurant, 230 Ferry Ave. in Charlevoix (formerly known as Nanny's) on Friday Sept. 23, where family and friends will gather from 5-8 p.m.

Tony and his wife, Donna, were instrumental in the development of the Charlevoix County Humane Society, as well as financial supporters. In lieu of flowers the family suggest memorial contributions be made to the Charlevoix County Humane Society, 614 Beardsley St., Boyne City, MI 49712.

NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District was recently accredited by the nation's strictest accreditation agency.

The intermediate school district is the fifth of 57 other intermediate school districts in Michigan and one of only 10 nationwide to receive the honor from North Central Association Commission on Accreditation and School Improvement/AdvancED.

The honor is especially noteworthy as intermediate school districts are celebrating 50 years of service to local schools in their communities later this year.

Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District was the first multi-county intermediate school district established in the state in 1962 to bring about quality and equitable educational opportunities to students and schools throughout the state.

"Accreditation provides Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District with a nationally-recognized mark of quality for our agency," said superintendent, Rick Diebold. "It demonstrates to our community our commitment to excellence, our openness to external review and feedback, and our desire to be the best we can be on behalf of the students, families and communities that we serve."

The voluntary AdvancED accreditation process provides a national protocol for education service agencies committed to systemic, systematic and sustainable continuous improvement. The process supports, enhances and stimulates growth and improvement throughout the agency.

The accreditation process involves three ongoing components:

Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District's path to accreditation began in late February, when a six-person AdvancED team spent four full days visiting district employees, local school district staff and administrators, community business leaders, parents and even students. The team met with more than 100 people and visited 22 intermediate school district programs and local school districts.

"This is a big deal to get this feedback," Diebold said. "Our mission is to serve our local schools and our vision is to be indispensable. What this tells me is that our staff are providing outstanding service in all aspects of their jobs."

Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District officials said the organization helps districts by creating and promoting economies of scale for purchasing, sharing services such as technology, business and special education services; sharing current and credible research, best practices and innovation through initiatives such as professional development; and providing oversight and liaison roles through programs including career and technical education, special education and more.

Women Business Owners Need Retirement Plans

If you're a woman who owns a business, you've got plenty of company. In fact, women own more than 10 million U.S. companies, and women-owned businesses account for about 40% of all privately held firms in the U.S., according to the Center for Women's Business Research. Clearly, the good news is that women like you are entering the small-business arena at a rapid pace. The not-so-good news is that you may be facing a retirement savings gap in comparison to male business owners.

According to the U.S. Small Business Administration's Office of Advocacy, 19.4% of male business owners have 401(k) or similar plans, compared with just 15.5% of women owners.

The percentage of female business owners with Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) is about the same as that of male business owners — but the men have more money in their accounts. The average woman's IRA balance is about $51,000, compared with $91,000 for men, according to a recent report by the Employee Benefit Research Institute. Although these figures change constantly with the ebbs and flow of the market, the difference between the genders remains significant.

One way to help close this savings gap, of course, is to set up a retirement plan for your business. But for many women business owners (and male owners, too), the perceived cost of setting up and running a retirement plan has been an obstacle. However, the retirement plan market has opened up considerably for small business owners over the past several years, so you might be surprised at the ease and inexpensiveness of administering a quality plan that can help you build resources for your own retirement — and help you attract and retain good employees.

With the help of a financial professional, you can consider some of the myriad of plans that may be available to you:

Owner-only 401(k) — This plan, which is also known as an individual 401(k), is available to self-employed individuals and business owners with no full-time employees other than themselves or a spouse. You may even be able to choose a Roth option for your 401(k), which allows you to make after-tax contributions that can grow tax-free.

SEP IRA — If you have just a few employees or are self-employed with no employees, you may want to consider a SEP IRA. You'll fund the plan with tax-deductible contributions, and you must cover all eligible employees.

Solo defined benefit plan — Pension plans, also known as defined benefit plans, are still around — and you can set one up for yourself if you are self-employed or own your own business. This plan has high contribution limits, which are determined by an actuarial calculation, and as is the case with other retirement plans, your contributions are typically tax-deductible.

SIMPLE IRA — A SIMPLE IRA, as its name suggests, is easy to set up and maintain, and it can be a good plan if your business has fewer than 10 employees. Still, while a SIMPLE IRA may be advantageous for your employees, it's less generous to you, as far as allowable contributions, than an owner-only 401(k), a SEP IRA or a defined benefit plan.

As a business owner, you spend a lot of time thinking about what needs to be done today, but you don't want to forget about tomorrow — so consider putting a retirement plan to work for you soon.

Pediatrician Rachel Newman joins hospital, practice

Newman

Charlevoix has a new pediatrician. Dr. Rachel Newman recently joined Dr. Rod Tinney as the second pediatrician at Charlevoix Pediatrics and Charlevoix Area Hospital. Newman recently completed her residency at Rush University in Chicago. She has an medical degree from Michigan State University, and is enjoying getting started in her practice here in Charlevoix.

Newman said in her first few weeks here, she already appreciates the positive attitudes she has encountered. "Everyone has been very welcoming and helpful as I learn my way around. In Chicago, I might walk down the hall and not see anyone I knew. Here, I'm already recognizing people in the hallway. It's nice to have that," Newman, she said.

Newman also said she appreciates the rapport between physicians here

"I've already had to consult with a few doctors here, and it seems there is a friendly, collegial atmosphere that I didn't often find in the larger hospital where I worked."

Newman said she is excited to build relationships with local families, and to see kids through their entire growing-up years.

"I enjoy watching kids grow and change through all of their stages from babies to teenagers. We get to watch kids grow up and hopefully play an important role in their lives," she said.

Newman said she enjoys explaining the causes of illnesses to her patients and their parents and teaching them steps to prevent disease.

"I am hopeful that I will be able to teach my patients the keys to being healthy as they grow up and as they move into adulthood. A lot of healthy habits are established early in life — eating well, making good food choices, staying active, getting a full night of sleep," she said.

"My family has a centennial farm in Central Lake," she said. "We've been coming up here my whole life."

Although she has a short commute to work each day, she said she doesn't mind it.

"In Chicago, I drove three miles to work, and it took me 30 minutes. Here, my drive from Petoskey to Charlevoix is 30 minutes, but it is gorgeous."

Dr. Newman is available to see patients at her office at Charlevoix Pediatrics on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays. On other days she'll be on call at the hospital. To make an appointment with Dr. Newman, call (231) 547-3840.

Second 'Small Business Blitz'

Char-Em United Way is planning its second "Small Business Blitz" on Thursday, Sept. 29. The Blitz is intended to engage support from small businesses in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties for the United Way Campaign.

"We traditionally have support of larger businesses, which run employee campaigns, as well as from many individuals," Char-Em United Way Executive Director Martha Lancaster said. "The Small Business Blitz is a great way to give smaller businesses the opportunity to learn more about how they can help United Way meet community needs."

On Sept. 29, volunteers from United Way – many of them representatives of United Way's 29 Funded Partners – will be visiting and calling on small businesses, both in and out of the downtown areas of Boyne City, Charlevoix, Harbor Springs, and Petoskey. The volunteers will provide information about United Way and ask for a pledge or donation. Pledges of $30 or more will be read on Lite 96.3 FM throughout the day. In addition, all businesses donating during the Blitz will be entered in a drawing to win prizes including ads in the Petoskey News-Review, a Grand Traverse Pie Company lunch, and more.

"We are pleased that Lite 96.3 FM is again partnering with us on the Small Business Blitz," says Lancaster. "Last year, the businesses told us that the publicity and the excitement of the radio announcements encouraged them to donate. We also plan to have 'donation stations' in each downtown where donors can drop off their contributions and meet the Lite 96 crew. But the most important reason to donate is the increased need in the community for health and human services."

Last year was United Way's first "Blitz," and 77 small businesses made first-time donations on that day. United Way intended to double that this year.

Char-Em United Way has set a goal of $380,000 this year, and the Frey Foundation has offered an additional $20,000 challenge grant if the goal is reached. With economic conditions in Northern Michigan continuing to be serious, the need for the services supported by United Way is greater than ever.

Early bird pledges and online donations for the Small Business Blitz are also welcome. All gifts received by the day of the Blitz will be included in the prizes and announcements. Information about community needs and programs supported by United Way is available at www.charemunitedway.org. Donations can also be made from that secure website.

There is no minimum or maximum pledge. Donations of any size will help Char-Em United Way reach its goal and help meet community needs during the coming year.

Volunteers are also being recruited to help with the Small Business Blitz. To volunteer go to: http://volunteer.truist.com/charemunitedway/volunteer/ and search for Small Business Blitz. For additional information or to make a donation over the phone, call (231) 487-1006.

Herbal products store opens new location

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

MARK LINDSAY/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Creation Pharm recently opened in downtown Charlevoix.

After several years of success in the Traverse City market, Creation Pharm has opened an all new location in Charlevoix.

Based in the Frankfort area, Creation Pharm has a long history of producing natural herbal products for skin care and aroma therapy. The owners, Ann Sangemino and Mike Hulbert, have more than 20 years of experience in the business.

"The Charlevoix location is a bigger space and will allow us to both reach a new market and potentially expand our product line," said Hulbert. The couple have plans to add more products to their natural foods and herbal tea lines.

Sangemino is the co-author of a book titled "Country Living's Healthy Living Pure Beauty," published by Hearst books in 1999. She also worked with her husband to produce his book, "Country Living Handmade Soap Book: Simple Recipes for Crafting Soap at Home," published by Hearst in 1997 and again by Sterling in 2003.

"Our little herb farm near Betsie Bay is a family operation. Late nights working around our farmhouse table wrapping and labeling soaps, and hand addressing packages, has strengthened our family relationships. We have time to talk about events of the day and discuss future product ideas made from herbs we grow on the farm," Sangemino noted.

In the mid 1970s, Sangemino moved from New Jersey, after completing high school, to the Blue Ridge region of the Appalachian Mountain chain. There she began studying gardening and herbs, and began developing ideas for how to use them for her personal health care after noticing the lack of availability in the area.

Sangemino said her acquired knowledge of the healing properties of herbs in her garden and in the wild soon spread from use in her family to her circle of friends. In the early 1980s she began to work more closely with the oils and extracts of herbs, producing products for use on her own.

"Anna had sensitive skin and had trouble finding products she could use, so she decided to develop her own," Hulbert noted.

The pair began visiting Northern Michigan and taking part in Blissfest. For 14 years, the couple brought their family to the area and fell in love with the community.

"We really connected with the large community of people in Northern Michigan that support and use natural, locally grown and manufactured products," Sangemino noted.

The couple decided to relocate from North Carolina to Northern Michigan in 2004 and were able to find property near Frankfort that suited their needs for both a home and herb farm.

"We were fortunate to find property ideal for growing the herbs we need to support the business and its growth," Sangemino said.

Over the years the business grew and expanded to the woodshed, then to the barn, now to a small factory where things are still done the same way. All products are still produced in relatively small batches by hand to maintain the home-style level of care in each container.

Creation Pharm produces Creation Soap, a line of natural herbal beauty, bath and facial soaps. With more than 30 varieties, Creation Soaps are now available at more than 300 locations in the United States.

In 1998, Sangemino was invited to appear on national TV. Her products were featured on a "Quest for America's Best" segment broadcast live on the QVC Home Shopping Network and the soaps quickly sold out. She has served on the board of directors for the North Carolina Herb Association for the past two years.

Their natural aromatherapy soaps are scented with pure essential oils and herbs. Essential oils of tea tree, lavender, rosemary, sweet orange, peppermint and others are available. Many of the same oils are also available in aroma blends for herbal benefits skin care.

Their line of aromatic products also contain specialty herbal ingredients such as organic extra virgin coconut oil, evening primrose oil, pomace olive oil and lavender. According to Sangemino, many of these essential oils may be effective treatments for acne, rosacea and other skin maladies.

The pair will be teaching an herbal soap making workshop at the New York Open Center in Manhattan on Dec. 17.

The new Charlevoix store is located at 325 Bridge St. Hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 10 a.m.-7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. For more information, call (231) 547-6950 or visit www.creationsoap.com

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Charlevoix bounces back from 0-2 start with 46-40 victory over Harbor Springs

After dropping two close, hard fought games to open the season, the Charlevoix Rayder varsity football team's offense was clicking on all eight cylinders as the team roared to its first victory of the season last week.

Senior quarterback Andrew Potter threw for three touchdowns, rushed for another and added an interception return for a score as the Charlevoix Rayders rolled past Harbor Springs, 46-6, Friday in a Lake Michigan Conference contest.

The Rayders now 1-3 overall, 1-0 league, lost in overtime loss to Maple City Glen Lake 12-6 the week before.

"It feels good to get that first win, especially after two tough losses," Charlevoix coach Don Jess said. "Our kids have been working hard and it really paid off."

Junior receiver Charlie Hamilton was hauled in all three of Potter's TD passes as he scored on passes of 71, 17 and 14 yards. Hamilton finished with three receptions for 102 yards, while Potter was 6 of 6 passing for 130 yards.

Potter added a 2-yard TD run as well as a 40 yard interception return for a score, while Jake McLean had a 17 yard TD pass from Tanner Catt. John Boss also scored on a 13-yard TD run.

Josh Hogan added a two-point conversion on a pass from Potter, while Hamilton had a pair of extra points.

McLean led all Rayder rushers with 54 yards on nine carries, while Catt went 3 of-3 passing for 38 yards.

Defensively, Catt had a pair of interceptions, while Potter had one interception and added a fumble recovery.

"Our defense played really well," Jess said. "They were really dominant in the first half and that's what really kick started our offense."

Also for the Rayders, Greyson Speigel finished with a team-high nine tackles, while River Gauthier and Jared Reibel each added sacks.

The Rayders will have a tough test this week as they travel to Grayling. The Vikings, who are 1-0 in the league and 3-0 overall, beat Boyne City last week 35-7. Game time is 7 p.m.

Nate Moon scored two rushing touchdowns and caught a 35-yard touchdown pass from Lane Klinger. Moon and Klinger also hooked up for one of the Rayders' two 2-point conversions. Sam Hovie added two rushing touchdowns, while Taylor Seese, Will Tegenhof, Brian Noirot, and Brad Rizzo also scored rushing touchdowns. Seese, Rizze, Jamie Kelly and Logan Eckhardt scored 2-point conversions. The Rayder offense racked up 403 yards rushing with Moon leading the way with 140 yards. Tegenhof had 70 yards, Noirot with 60 yards and Hovie with 54 yards.

Noirot led the Rayder defense with eight tackles while JJ Bottomley and Sam Eakes had seven tackles. Klinger, Kelly, Andrew Mitchell, and Luke Richman all recovered fumbles, while Sam Hovie had and interception. Moon and Kelly both recorded sacks.

"This was a great team win" head JV coach Doug Waha said. "Everybody was able to get in the game and we had a lot of different kids make plays".,

The Charlevoix Junior Varsity's next game is Thursday, Sept. 15, at home against Grayling. Kickoff is set for 6 p.m.

POP WARNER FOOTBALL

CROSS COUNTRY

Runners-up in the mud

Rayder boys and girls finish second in annual Mud Run event

The day was beautiful and the mud muddy Saturday at the 20th Annual Charlevoix Classic Cross Country Mud Run.

Charlevoix girls' cross country coach Mary Plude said the Mud Run, was started as an homage to cross country as it used to be: a hilly course filled with mud holes, hay bales and steeplechases.

"I ran on courses that were under water," said Mary Plude. "There are a lot of courses now that are flat, fast courses. We wanted to go back to cross country's roots."

And so runners from 26 schools in the boys' race, and 25 in the girls' were "playing in the mud," said Charlevoix boys' coach Ken Plude.

Cadillac boys placed first in the invitational with a combined time of 1 hour, 33 minutes, 23 seconds, while Charlevoix placed second at 1:33:29. Petoskey was third at 1:33:30.

Final placings were determined by times — not place numbers — as the races were split into grade categories.

Not far behind was Charlevoix senior Kirk Acharya, who was third in 17:57. Acharya's finish helped ensure his team the runner-up finish — a neck-and-neck feat, considering only seven seconds separated the third-place team, Petoskey, from the first-place Vikings.

Charlevoix freshman Jackson Buday placed second in the boys' 9th-10th race in 18:37, followed by three Northmen: Mark Smith, third, 18:55; Caleb Mitchum, fourth, 19:06; and Thomas VanSlembrouck, fifth, 19:11.

Charlevoix's Nick Plude and Tristen Rudolph finished eighth and ninth, respectively, while Lucas VonLau was 12th and CJ Rice placed 15th. Petoskey's Nick Fettig was 18th.

"It was a great team effort, especially when their coach isn't doing much but organizing," said Ken Plude, who spent his day ensuring the race went smoothly.

"The boys team is really tightening up the time between their 1-7 runners which is the goal for the larger meets," Ken Plude said. "The positions of the runners is moving around quite a bit, so that adds to the ability of the boys to improve their times by having different runners having strong races each week. The team has really liked having their leadership come from different individuals of the team."

Coach Mary Plude pulled two of her top seven runners — Annie Dipert and Lexie Barnes — for fear of injury, and still her team placed second with a collective time of 1:50:19.

Charlevoix's Olivia Certa was fourth in 21:10 and teammate Molly Jeakle placed eighth, and the Rayders' Hilray Way was 20th.

Mandy Paull of Cheboygan won the girls' 9th-10th race in 20:40, seven seconds ahead of runner-up Amber Way of Charlevoix.

"The girls team is really showing their depth," Mary Plude said. "Two of the top seven runners needed to sit out this race for injury issues. However, the team stepped it up and showed they do not let setbacks effect their team race. There has been a different top seven each race so far this season, and they still continue their winning ways and improve."

The Rayder cross country teams will be back in action at Ellsworth's House on the Hill Invitational on Saturday, Sept. 17th. The event starts with the girls races at 10 a.m.

Rally for the Cure raises $1,255

The Charlevoix Antrim Rally for the Cure golf event, which took place at Antrim Dells Golf Course, on Tuesday Sept. 6, drew 62 participants and raised $1,255.00 for Rally for breast cancer research.

The rally is an arm of Susan G. Komen for the Cure whose mission is to fulfill the promise Nancy G. Brinker made to her dying sister, Susan G. Komen to do everything in her power to end breast cancer forever.

The 18 hole winner of the Rally's closest to the pin contest, on hole number 5, was Barbara Steele of Charlevoix.

The longest putt winner on hole # 11 was Diana Hein of Eastport who sunk a 12-foot putt.

Chip-ins were made by Joyce Herbert and Audrey Trimble of Charlevoix and Kathy Martincheck of Petoskey

The rally organizers thanked the volunteers, the people who helped set up, Tim Kovosko, general manager of Antrim Dells for hosting this year, Friske's, Royal Farms, Oleson's, Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course, Charlevoix Country Club and all others who provided gifts and sponsorship to the event.

Anyone seeking more information about hosting or joining a rally, may call (800)327-6811 or info@rallyforthecure.com.

VARSITY VOLLEYBALL

Rayders take second at Petoskey Invitational

Petoskey defeated Charlevoix, 27-25, 25-21, in the title match Saturday as the Northmen successfully defended their championship in the Petoskey Volleyball Invitational.

"We played strong all day after a slow start to Boyne City," Rayder head coach Elizabeth Shaw said. "Our offense did a good job at spreading the attacks around and had contribution from each player. Our defense keeps getting better too. The girls are really working hard and it is paying off."

Petoskey's Katie Kidd and Megan Tompkins were named to the all-tournament team.

Charlevoix, which entered the tournament unbeaten and suffered its first loss of the season at the hands of the Northmen in the final, was led by Jenna Way and Allison Hankins, both of whom were named to the all-tournament team.

Way finished with 21 kills, 116 assists, 33 digs, 14 aces and seven blocks, while Hankins had 39 kills, 11 blocks.

Charlevoix opened pool play by splitting with Boyne City, 20-25, 25-11. It then defeated Onaway, 25-14, 25-14; Sault Ste. Marie, 25-23, 25-11; Traverse City St. Francis, 25-14, 26-24; and Harbor Springs, 25-20, 25-9.

The Rayders, who are 20-1-1 on the season, defeated Pellston, 25 17, 25-23, in a semifinal match.

Also for Charlevoix, Anna Way had 24 kills; Megan Peters finished with 21 kills, seven blocks; Kelsey Way had 15 kills, 40 digs, Karley Pearsall added 14 kills, 13 blocks; Kelly Greyerbiehl and Chelsie Hoffman finished with 42 and 29 digs, respectively; Maddie Zimmerman added 20 digs; and Sydney Carlson had four aces.

Kylie Hicks led Boyne City with 28 kills, 30 digs and 10 blocks on the day, while Allie Cain had 19 kills, nine blocks; Erin Baker finished with 24 digs; and setter Heather Nichols had 85 assists.

In pool play, the Ramblers split with Charlevoix and with Onaway, 18-25, 25-22; defeated St. Francis, 25-22, 25-21; and lost to Sault Ste. Marie, 11-25, 14-25. They then fell to the Hornets in a quarterfinal.

"The Petoskey tournament is a tough tournament," coach Casie Parker said. "It always has the top teams in the area. It was good competition for us."

The split with Charlevoix in their first pool-play match gave the Ramblers a boost, Parker said. Boyne took the first game, and it was the first time all season the Rayders had not won a match.

"It was a good confidence booster," she said. "In the second game we weren't so lucky. Charlevoix stepped up their play and we made several mental errors. Also in pool play, we were able to take a game from Onaway, which had beaten us earlier this season.

The Ramblers are 7-10-4.

JV VOLLEYBALL

JV takes second at tourney

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity volleyball team took a perfect 12-0 record into the finals Saturday at the Inland Lakes Invitational tournament before falling to Pellston in the third game of the final match.

The Rayders' perfect record in a long day of pool play in the 14-team tournament, earned them number 1 seed going into bracket play.

In bracket play the Rayders first faced Gaylord St. Marys, beating them in two games, before moving on to face rivals Pellston in the finals.

Pellston took the first game 19-25, Charlevoix came back to take the second game 15-25, then Pellston took the third game 9-15.

"Pellston came out strong (in the third game), rolling 4 points on us to start off." JV coach Audra Randall said. "The girls couldn't get on a roll to get back into it."

Despite the loss in the finals, Randall said she was pleased with the team's performance in the tournaments.

"There was fantastic play by many of the girls really making this a team accomplishment," Randall said.

For the day, Jennaca Holecheck lead the rayders with 34 aces, 23 kills, 21 digs, 4 blocks and 98 percent serve receive. Maddie Boss had 14 aces, 45 kills, 11 digs and 5 blocks. Jessica Paramo added 22 aces, 34 assists and 10 digs. Kelsey Pischner a dynamic server had 22 aces and 7 kills. From the back row, Allysa Chomeczski contributed 7 aces at the serving line, 16 digs and 85 percent serve receive.

"I am very content with how the girls played. They had set goals and were on a mission, which helped keep our focus throughout the day," Randall added

The Rayder JV's record stands at 10-4-1 overall and 2-0 in the conference.

The Rayder JV will next be in action when they host Elk Rapids at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 15.

SOCCER

Rayders turning it around

After being forced to cancel several early season games because of low roster numbers and then losing lopsided contests to conference foes Elk Rapids (12-0) and Boyne City (8-0) the Charlevoix Rayder soccer team made a huge U-turn defeating Kalkaska 8-0 on their home field last week.

Nick Snabes scored three goals and Fischer Kitley added two as the Rayders downed Kalkaska in a Lake Michigan Conference match on Thursday.

It was the first victory of the season for the Rayders, 1-3 overall, 1-2 league.

"It was a great all-around game for us tonight," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "We were able to keep the ball down and make short quick passes, the things we have worked on in practice."

On Monday, the Rayders couldn't come back from a 2-1 half-time deficit on a hot day at Harbor Springs' Reynolds Field.

Harbor's John Bailey netted three goals to lead the Rams to a 4-2 victory over the Rayders in a Lake Michigan Conference.

The Rams led 2-1 at halftime, and could've led by more if not for the strong play of Charlevoix goalkeeper Fisher Kiteley, who stopped several point blank chances.

"It was a good match," Harbor Springs coach Ed Fantozzi said as his team improves to 5-6 overall, 2-2 league. "Both schools are in a rebuilding year and it was an interesting match to watch. I thought we could've done better as far as finishing goes, but all in all, it was good.

"It was a conference win and we already have four more wins than we had all of last season."

For Charlevoix, Isaac Drost scored off a feed from Brendan Britt, while Nick Snabes also added a goal with help from Kiteley.

"It was a close game and we were moving the ball very well around the field," Charlevoix coach John Boss said. "We just started to get a little fatigued towards the end of the game."

Charlevoix hosts Grayling at 5 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 15 and Marqutte at 6 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 16, then travel to Traverse City Christian for a 5 p.m. game on Tuesday, Sept. 20.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

LOOKING BACK…

In 1866 pioneer settler John Dixon commissioned the first platting of the village that essentially was little more than a few blocks from the channel south to Antrim Street. State Street was made wider than any other because it was assumed this street would see the construction of the town's most important civic and religious buildings and commercial structures. As far as the first two went, this proved to be the case. The following year, a conference of Methodists resulted in the purchase of the northeast corner lot at the State and Clinton Streets intersection. Here a parsonage was erected where marriages and baptisms were performed while funds were slowly raised for a church. After seven years, in July of 1874 the Methodist Ladies Aid Society turned over the $65 necessary to purchase the adjoining lot to the north. On Aug. 12 a granite cornerstone was put in place. Teams of horses helped the Methodist men lay a stone foundation, but the church went up only as funds became available. Finally the stately structure, with its 100-foot spire, was finished in February of 1878, the first and only church in Charlevoix until the First Congregational Church across State Street opened its doors in late December of 1884. The exact date of the above photo is not know, but it is thought to have been the late 1800s or very early 1900s. (Information provided by David Miles of the Charlevoix Historical Society.)

It is also available at the Central Drug Store, Round Lake Books, Ell-Air Gallery, and Castle Farms. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

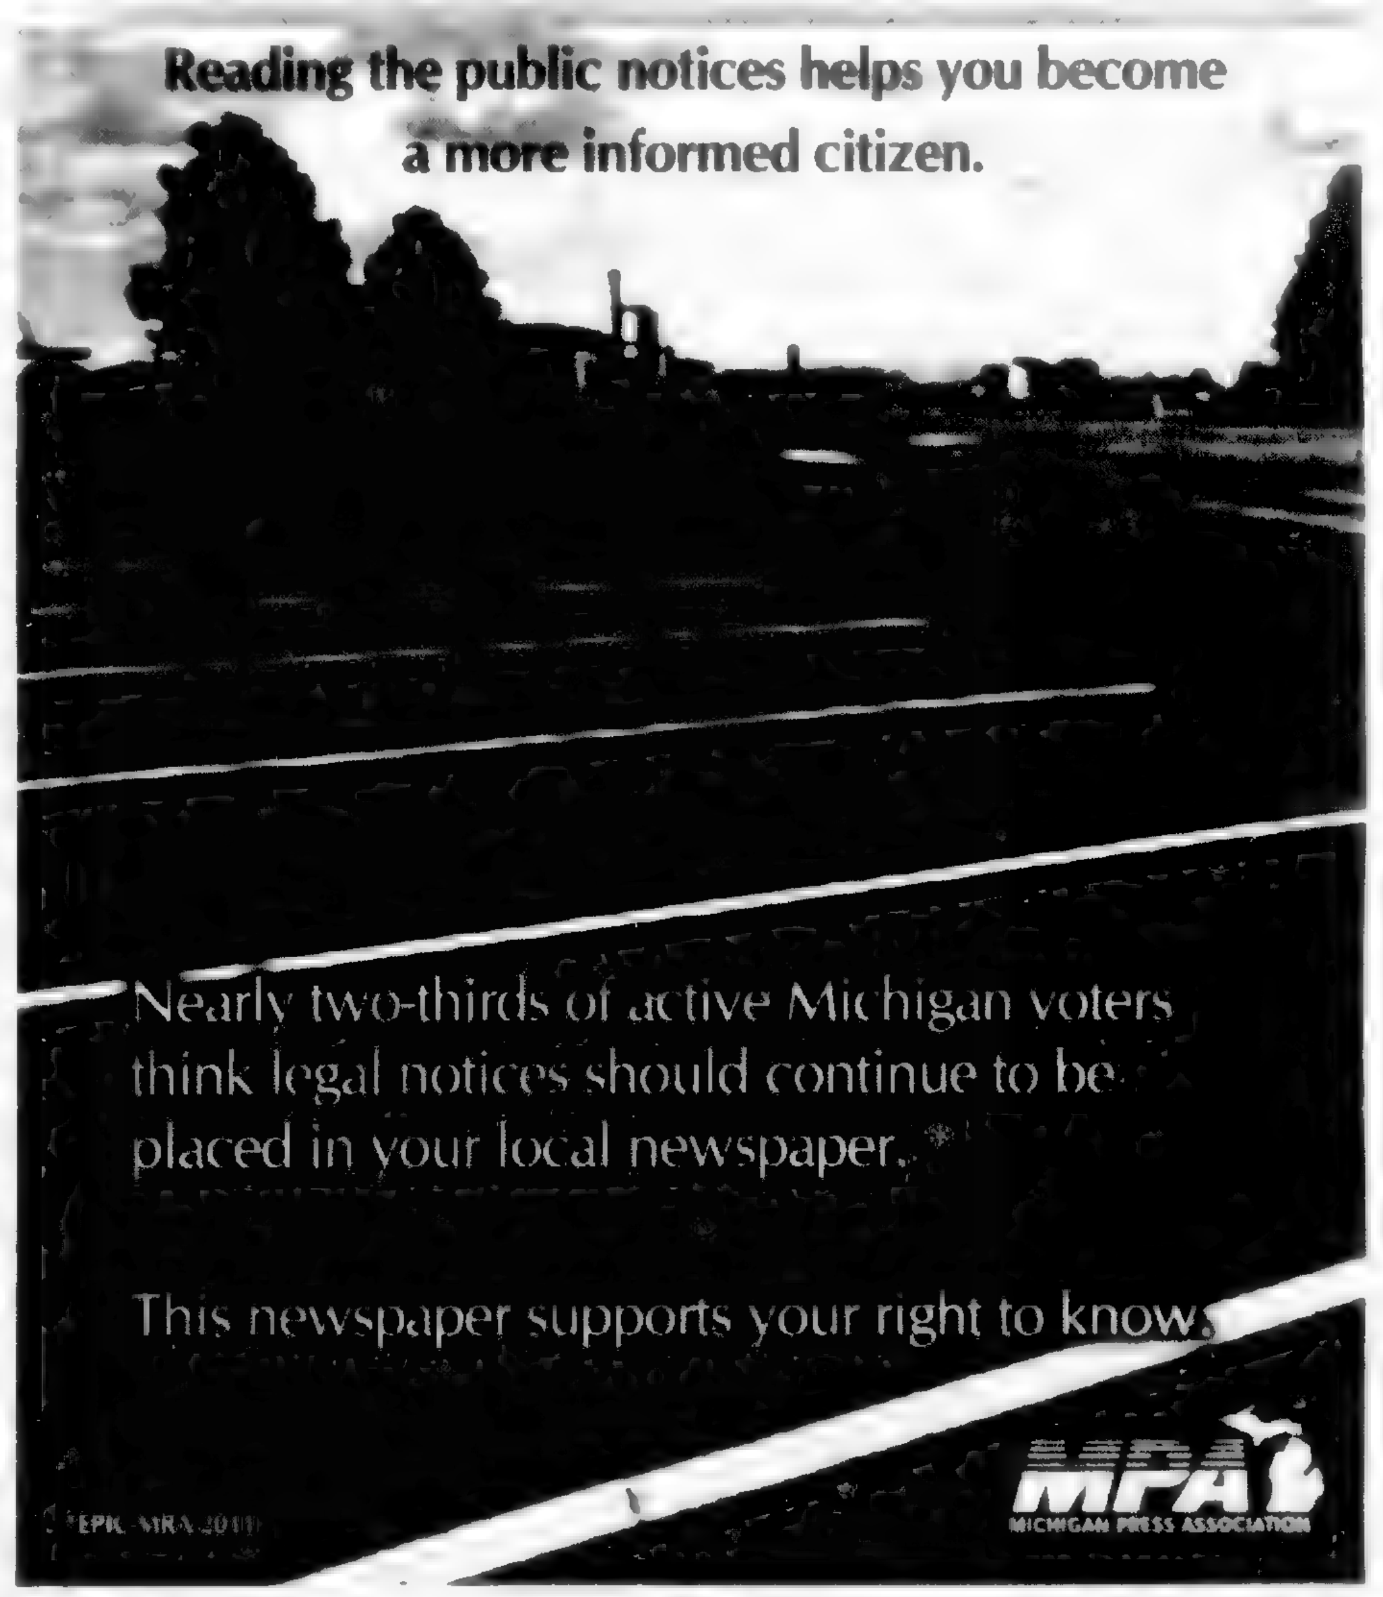
Why do we need public notices?

Public notices tell you, as a citizen, what is being done by your government. State law requires actions of interest to you be published in these notifications.

It keeps you up to date about what's happening with your city, county and school board, as well as other governmental bodies.



Reading the public notices helps you become a more informed citizen.

Nearly two-thirds of active Michigan voters think legal notices should continue to be placed in your local newspaper.*

This newspaper supports your right to know.

Blood drives — Officials with the American Red Cross are continuing their appeal to help replenish the critically low local supply of certain blood types. Officials said donations in May and June dropped to the lowest levels the Red Cross has seen during this timeframe in more than a dozen years. Red Cross officials said demand is high for all blood type, but particularly for types O negative, which can be used for any patient. Summer blood collections typically decrease because school is out and donors, who regularly give throughout the academic year, sometimes wait until school starts to donate again. In addition, individuals become busy with summer activities and do not think to make an appointment to donate blood. As an added incentive for donors, every person who attempts to donate in September will have a chance to win a $250 Meijer gift card and a $125 Meijer gas card. To schedule an appointment to donate call 1-800-REDCROSS (800) 733-2767 or visit www.RedCrossBlood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. A bit more moratorium

Medical marijuana ban extended

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday again extended its moratorium on producing medical marijuana within the city.

The council took the action at the request of city planner Mike Spencer who said the revisions to the city's zoning ordinance that will ultimately regulate where marijuana production will be allowed in the city are not yet complete. The council unanimously approved the additional six month extension.

The council approved a similar moratorium extension measure in April, which was set to expire on Oct. 3.

Charlevoix city legal counsel Jim Young told the council he was comfortable with the additional extension, but cautioned council members against pursuing another one at the end of the next six months noting that each time a municipality approves a moratorium extension, it is increasing the chances that someone might challenge it in court. Young said he believes that city is still on firm legal footing because it is actively moving toward implementing its means of regulating it through the zoning ordinance.

Spencer told the council that the city would likely not need the whole six months and could have the zoning ordinance amendment in place as early as November.

In late August the Charlevoix City Council, the Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees and the two municipalities' respective planning commissions met in a combined session to discuss how to best address regulating medical marijuana production.

At the meeting, leaders from both the township and the city agreed to pursue a "diffused" model — meaning rather than allow the production to take place only in commercial or industrial zones in a storefront setting, the use would be permitted only in residential areas and would be required to take place discretely. Leaders followed the advice of city legal counsel Bryan Graham who opined that the Michigan Medical Marijuana Act approved by voters in 2008 does not really allow for storefront operations, but rather allows for caregivers who are allowed to grow and prepare marijuana for use by qualifying patients who can't or don't want to produce their own.

A few days later, the Michigan Court of Appeals issued an opinion consistent with Graham's advice that the act's caregiver provisions does not permit the sale of marijuana.

Sunshine dock agreement sails through city council

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The forecast calls for there to be Sunshine in Charlevoix for many summers to come.

Or, at least for the next five years if the plans of a well known summer time sailing charter service pan out as projected.

Earlier this month the Charlevoix City Council unanimously approved a five year dock lease agreement with Sunshine Charters that not only sets the rate the business will pay for its dock space and ticket kiosk, but also an agreement that the city will not rent its other available commercial slip at the city marina to another sailing charter business.

In July, Sunshine Charters owner Gary Dawson came to the council with the request that the city grant him a long-term lease that included the no competition agreement.

Dawson, whose sailing charter business has become a summertime staple in Charlevoix during the past 14 years, said he's wishing to retire from day-to-day operations of the business. He's handing those responsibilities over to captain and business partner Joshua Mack. As part of Sunshine's

Spencer

Spencer said the city planning commission is expected to hear a first reading of the proposed zoning ordinance amendment at its next meeting, slated for 7 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 28. The planning commission will likely schedule a public hearing on the ordinance amendment and, if approved following the public hearing, the matter would pass to the city council for its consideration for final approval.

Lots of 'green' options

Also at Monday's meeting, the council gave its approval by consensus for city staff to seek grants that would help pay for ecologically-minded features for the city's plan to pave and otherwise improve the White parking lot. The White, which is currently not paved, is located approximately behind the city's fire station.

In August, the city council gave city manager Rob Straebel permission to seek a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation for a grant to help pay for the installation of an electric vehicle charge station in the White Lot to be included in an overall upgrade plan for the lot. Now, in addition to the pay-per-use electric vehicle charging station, the city is looking for help in paying for the added cost of using a special "permeable" asphalt that would allow at some rain to percolate into the ground, keeping it out of storm sewers that drain to Round Lake.

Straebel

As proposed, improvements to the lot would also include curb, gutters, some minor landscaping. When completed, the lot would have 24 standard parking spaces, two handicap spaces and two spaces for the electric vehicle charging station.

The total estimated cost of the project is about $127,000. City staff estimates the project would cost about $32,000 less without the electric charging station and using standard asphalt.

City street superintendent Pat Elliot said the cost estimates are very preliminary, but said that grant requests for the "green elements" of the projects would have a better chance of success if they are part of complete project. He also noted that the city is hoping to combine the White Lot work with road infrastructure reconstruction planned for Clinton Street between Bridge and State streets for next summer. He said the city would likely get more competitive bids if the work for the White Lot can be combined with the Clinton Street work.

No swimming

While there's been much discussion among the council recently about doing more to keep kids from swimming in the Pine River Channel, the city council on Monday unanimously approved a resolution to amend regulations at the city marina. The changes include a prohibition of swimming or diving in the marina and for feeding wildlife, such as ducks and sea gulls.

The swimming ban comes on the heels of a recent incident in Traverse City where a young man drowned while swimming in a marina after he received an electric shock coming from faulty dock wiring. City harbormaster Hal Evans said signs have been ordered and will be put up for the 2012 boating season putting boaters on notice of the swimming ban. Evans noted that the rules don't really have any "teeth" that would allow violators to be cited, as is the case with ordinance prohibiting swimming in the channel, but chronic violators could be asked to leave the marina.

Ended Beginnings can help start the healing

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Once upon a time there was a young girl who grew up in a home with many siblings. As the oldest, she often helped care for the younger ones and sometimes she wondered, "Is this what it's like to be a mom?" After high school and a couple of jobs later, she decided to go back to school to hone her skills as a nurse's aide. Caring for others was something that came naturally for her. When she completed her program, she married her high school sweetheart. They turned their two bedroom apartment into a warm and cozy home. A few months into the marriage she learned she was pregnant.

The thought of life growing inside her brought overwhelming happiness. She looked forward to the cooing only a mother understands and the kissing away of tears that came with growing up. From first steps to preschool and beyond she would provide this child with a warm hand to hold and opened arms that would wrap around him like a cuddly blanket. Plans were in the making: Her husband picked up a second job for extra money to create a nursery fit for a prince or princess. Everything would be wonderful — or so she thought.

Five months after hearing this joyous news our new mom experienced a painful and sickening heartache. She realized that things just didn't feel right. She knew her body better than her doctor. She recognized her baby's little kicks and the quiet beat of its heart that quietly thumped in a gentle rhythm with her own. The little heart, for some unknown reason stopped and so did life as she knew it. While at the doctor's office she began to realize that doctors aren't God and they can't fix everything. She heard the soft, consoling words coming from the nurse's mouth but the only thing registering was the fact that the baby she loved was no longer alive. Life continued to swirl around the grief stricken couple. How could other people still be happy and go on about their daily lives when they were experiencing such a loss?

In this time of grief there was someone who understood only as a mother could, who had experienced her own miscarriages. This special person is a registered nurse likened to an angel who helps families through a difficult time. This nurse felt there was a better way to help families experiencing loss early on in their pregnancy. After attending a conference "Resolve through Sharing — Issues of Pregnancy Loss," Debi Tuck, a registered nurse and certified in obstetrics started the Ended Beginnings Program. Once the program was in place, with the help of local donations, Debi made certain that the staff was equally aware of what to do should there be a pregnancy loss.

Since its inception in June 2004, you can visit the fruits of "Ended Beginnings" on a plot of land donated to this program. As you enter the grounds your eye will catch the beautiful hanging basket of flowers that miraculously shows up in the spring and is quietly maintained all summer. There is an angel statue to guide you to the little plots marked only by a heart shaped stone bearing a year. Each plot contains one infant sized casket with the remains in separate containers of little ones that had reached twenty weeks of gestation or less.

I am hoping this column will educate families so they know this service is available to them. Statistics report one out of every four pregnancies can end in a miscarriage. If the patient is interested, they may have a professional photo of their child, a beaded name bracelet and a plaster molding of the baby's hands and feet. The program is designed to meet the family's needs which may mean just being there to quietly support them.

The plot is considered non-denominational even though its location is in the Catholic cemetery. There is a graveside service every summer for families who have experienced an early pregnancy loss. I spoke at the most recent service held this summer. It was my honor and privilege to be included in this beautiful graveside service that Charlevoix Area Hospital provides and I, for one, am thankful we have wonderful nurses who touch the spirits of all our little angels.

new business plan, Dawson and Mack are pursuing purchasing a different sailboat — a 40-foot Mike Bell Offshore Catamaran to replace the current mono-hull Sunshine. The boat will likely cost about $125,000.

Dawson said the catamaran he's looking at (which has previously been used as a charter boat) would be a significant upgrade from the current boat, not only because it could carry more people (34 versus 20 now), but also because it is a more stable vessel that will provide more comfort and a greater sense of security for people who might otherwise be wary of venturing out on a cruise.

At the time of his request, Dawson said he's willing to take on the risk of purchasing the catamaran with Mack, but he was seeking the long-term lease with the no-compete agreement to help reduce that risk. Dawson told the council that while his business has been successful, he doesn't think there is enough business to support two sailing charter operations in the marina.

"Continuing to operate Sunshine Charters is going to be an extremely large step for us financially and a rather large risk without a commitment for support from the city," Dawson told the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Board in July. He added: "Another sailboat would not only cause the loss of revenue from our slip, but the other (commercial) slip as well ... having one successful business at the docks is better than having two slow or failing businesses in the downtown harbor."

Because some of the city marina's operations are governed by rules established by the Michigan Waterway's Commission, city officials asked state officials to help draft the language in the lease documents. One state requirement was that the lease be put out for competitive bids. That bid period ended in late August and Sunshine Charters was the lone bidder.

In addition to the exclusivity agreement, the lease requires Sunshine to pay $100 per foot annually for its dock space and $1,000 annually for the use of the ticket kiosk on shore.

On Tuesday, Mack told the Courier that he expects to close on the sale of the catamaran sometime this week. and all systems appear to be a go for the new sailboat to begin operations next spring.

In the meantime, the boat Sunshine has left Charlevoix for the season and perhaps for good. On Saturday Dawson and his girlfriend Alison Clock sailed the Sunshine out of Round Lake headed for the Missisippi and ultimately the Virgin Islands, Mack said. He said Dawson may return for visits, especially in the spring to get the new boat up and running, but he now plans to most of his time in the tropics. Mack said he has not yet decided on a name for the catamaran.

'Windward Shore' author to speak

Jerry Dennis

The Charlevoix Public Library will host a visit by author Jerry Dennis at 6:30 p.m., Monday, Oct. 3.

Dennis will discuss his newest book, The Windward Shore: A Winter on the Great Lakes. The book is a compilation of his experiences living for a winter in other people's houses, from a log cabin on the shore of Lake Superior, to a $20 million mansion on Lake Michigan. He will share his stories of the lakes and the people who live and work on them.

In his own words, Dennis said that he, "wanted to present a true picture of a complex region, part of my continuing project to learn at least one place on earth reasonably well, and trusted that it would appear gradually and accumulatively—and not as a conventional portrait, but as a mosaic that included the sounds and scents and textures of the place and its inhabitants." Thanks to Round Lake Bookstore, books will be available for purchase and signing after the program.

Dennis is the author of many literary and popular works about nature, science, and outdoor recreation. In 1999 the Michigan Library Association named Dennis the Michigan Author of the Year, the highest literary award in the state. He is a frequent guest lecturer at universities, has been a commentator on national and regional public radio, and serves on the faculty of the University of Michigan's Bear River Writers Conference, where he teaches nature writing and creative non-fiction. County budget hearing scheduled

Overall budget to increase by less than 1 percent

SHERI MCWHIRTER
NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix County leaders have set a time and place for citizens to speak up about the county's 2012 general fund budget.

Commissioners agreed on Wednesday to have a public hearing at 7:15 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 28, in the commissioners room at the county administration building, 203 Antrim St. in Charlevoix. They will take public comments on next year's proposed $13,898,224 general fund budget.

Plans call for the county board to propose an additional millage rate of 0.1004 mills for general operational purposes. That would increase the maximum allowable millage rate for operations to a total 7.25 mills, within the county's authorized levy rate of 7.79 mills.

This will allow the county to levy the same amount of mills as last year, said Betsy Mason, county equalization director.

Browe

Proposed revenues and expenses are evenly balanced at a 0.31-percent increase over last year's figures. That amounts to the lowest budget increase in years, said county Clerk Cheryl Potter Browe.

For complete county budget summary spreadsheets, visit charlevoixcourier.com

Typically, budget increases are around 2 percent or higher, she said.

Budget summaries for the proposed 2012 budget are available to be reviewed by the public at Browe's office in the county's administration building in Charlevoix, next door to the commissioners room. The Charlevoix Courier has also made spreadsheets of the information available on its website.

Several county departments are expected to take hefty cuts to their budgets, but none more than the county sheriff and the 33rd Circuit Court's probation operation.

Sheriff Don Schneider's budget will be reduced by 52.4 percent for marine patrols and by 49.87 percent for snowmobile law enforcement. That's a collective reduction of nearly $87,000 for those patrols, county documents show.

Schneider

However, Schneider's office will receive a more than $14,000 increase for secondary road patrols, a more than 18 percent bump.

"I think it will be fine. I'm not overly concerned," Schneider said. "It will obviously drop how many hours we can maintain for marine or snowmobile."

The sheriff said all governments and businesses are "cutting back" and his department is no different. It should be an average year, just one in which budget figures must be more closely monitored, Schneider said.

Meanwhile, the court's probation department will realize a nearly 47 percent decrease in its budget, a drop to $1,800 from this year's $3,375, records show.

History of Charlevoix County budget increases:

2010, 2.17 percent
2009, 1.88 percent
2008, 1.13 percent
2007, 4.29 percent
2006, 4.45 percent
2005, 6.8 percent

CROP walk

Charlevoix resident, 90, to participate

Doris Hayes, 90, of Charlevoix is planning to walk in this year's CROP Hunger Walk on Saturday Sept. 24.

The walk will begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 24, from Whiting Park in Boyne City, Charlevoix Middle School and Elm Pointe in East Jordan with walkers ultimately converging in Ironton.

The event will benefit six local ministries.

Hayes has never been a participant in the walk, but has wanted to for some time. Saturday she will walk the Charlevoix-to-Ironton leg of the event.

"I figure, I'm 90 years old and have always wanted to try it," Hayes said. "I have donated money but feel this is a good year for me to walk."

Anyone would like to sponsor Hayes, may reach her at (231) 547-2303, or you may send or drop donations off at Charlevoix United Methodist Church, 106 State St. in Charlevoix.

Global ministries that will receive help from the CROP Hunger Walk include people in Haiti, survivors in Japan, children in Darfur, women in Kenya, families in Pakistan, and recent tornado/flood victims in the Midwest and Northeast.

Last year, the walk surpassed the $19,000 mark for total giving, with more that 116 people walking and hundreds contributing to this annual event over the years.

For more information on the Sept. 24 Charlevoix CROP Walk, contact Mary Richwine in Boyne City at (231) 582-6035, John Young in Charlevoix at (231) 547-2042 and Marge Teske in East Jordan at (231) 536-3128; or visit www.churchworldservice.org or www.cropwalk.org.

A pig and a poker

Elks to host poker run and pig roast fundraiser Saturday

The third annual "Show Your Colors" Motorcycle Poker Run & Pig Roast, sponsored by the Charlevoix Elks Lodge will take place Saturday, Sept. 24 in downtown Charlevoix.

The event is a benefit for Michigan veterans. Last year organizers gave away $4,500 distributed between the Forgotten Eagles of Michigan, food and gas cards for local veterans in need, and to the family of a fallen soldier from Mancelona.

This year, organizers plan to make the family of a fallen Navy SEAL from Petoskey the family of focus for the fundraiser.

Registration for the poker run begins at 9 a.m. and bikes will be parked along Bridge Street. At 11:15 a pre-event show in the pavilion in East Park will begin and include an honoring and flag raising for POW/MIA, fallen soldiers, and all veterans as well as the singing of the National Anthem by Jessica Dominic. Bikes start their engines at noon and will be escorted by the Charlevoix Police Department out to M-66 on the way to thier first stop, Boyne Mountain's Eagle's Nest. Other stops include the Ugly Bar in Vanderbilt, The Brown Trout in Indian River, Papa Lou's in Petoskey, and Guiseppe's in Charlevoix and then back to the Charlevoix Elks Lodge for a the pig roast and post-event music.

Mary Holm: April 27, 1920 - Aug. 14, 2011

Holm

Mary, born on April 27, 1920 in Birmingham, Ala. to the Rev. Samuel and Florrie Hughes, spent her childhood moving to many small towns across the South. Singing and hairdressing were the two things Mary loved most. She began singing at age 10 in church and throughout her life participated in many varied musical activities. Her hairdressing career began at age 10, giving "finger waves" for 25 cents. She eventually owned salons in Walled Lake and Charlevoix. People still rave about her work.

In 1941 Mary married Wayne Beitel of Steward, Ill. They lived in several locations before settling in Charlevoix, where Wayne died in 1974. Some time later she married Joseph Liston of Charlevoix. They moved to Hot Springs Village, Ark., where they lived until his death. She married William K. Holm and they continued living in "The Village" until Bill's death.

Mary is survived by daughters Billie Jeanne (Brian) Seymour of Drummond Island, and Bette Beitel of Massachusetts, son Gary (Pat) Beitel of Arizona, three granddaughters; Lisa McDonald and Traci (Bryan) Sullivan both of Arizona, and Teri (Sasha) Jenson of California, five great grandchildren; Courtney, Connor, and Mckenna McDonald and Maya and Serena Jenson, her beloved niece Carol Hester of California, and cat Poogie, her friend and companion.

Mary was preceded in death by her three husbands, a son, Barry Duane Beitel, and her sister, Orine Suffern.

A Celebration of Life will take place at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix at 1 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 26, 2011. Internment will be at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in her name to any not-for-profit organization or the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

Fifty years and still growing

Garden club honors Nancy Fowler for 50 years of service

COURTESY PHOTO

Nancy Fowler

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club recently recognized Nancy Fowler for 50 years with the club. Fowler joined in 1961, 21 years after the it was organized. Since that time Nancy has actively served every year — even while raising her four children. She has been involved in various committees, such as, civic gardens, workshops, flower arrangement, and meeting hostess. She has served as secretary and treasurer, second vice president and twice as president of the non profit organization.

In 1978 the Club established a Living Memorial Garden located on Mercer Boulevard at the end of East Dixon Avenue. Fowler has chaired, co-chaired, or served on the Memorial Garden for more than 20 years. She has always kept the "book of donations" that allows the club to publish each and every one who has been recognized in a memorial donation to the garden for Memorial Day.

In 1983 the club introduced its first Standard Flower Show. Nancy entered each and every flower show sponsored by the club winning blue ribbons for her designs in each one.

Her passion for flower arranging has been seen in many community fundraising activities. She has made centerpieces for such events as the pool auction, Enduring Arts Auction, as well as the Charlevoix Area Garden Club's own Garden Walk Luncheon. This year Fowler "dressed" three tables using her quilts and place settings plus three unique floral arrangements at her tables.

Married for 55 years to her husband, Dave, she is the mother of four children (Susan, Tom, Jim and Meg). Nancy and Dave have lived in their Dixon Avenue house for 52 of those years.

"Fortunately for the Garden Club there is no 'ending' to Nancy Fowler's story of active involvement," club officials said. "She is truly our treasure and Charlevoix's, too."

Forming connections

COURTESY PHOTO

Local bank representatives who will be on hand for the forum include (from the left): Steve Weber, from Northwestern Bank, Keith Williams from Chase Bank – Petoskey, and Jim Wibby, from The Bank of Northern Michigan.

Businesses, accountants, professional service firms and others wanting to expand business, increase jobs and strengthen communities will have a chance to learn and make their pitch to sources of federal and state government funding and business support programs at an Oct. 4 forum set to take place at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. The program is open to businesses located in Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Antrim Counties.

The forum will begin 8:30 a.m., conclude at noon and is hosted by Northern Lakes Economic Alliance and North Central Michigan College.

The offices of U.S. Senator Carl Levin and U.S. Senator Debbie Stabenow are co-sponsoring the forum, with representatives on hand to talk about the role of their offices in support of business growth and development.

"This forum will focus on connecting banks, businesses and communities with sources of state and federal loan programs, to expand businesses and create jobs," Tom Erhart, Northern Lakes Economic Alliance Entrepreneurship director said. "Together, we will identify the needs and priorities for capital to support business growth and provide time for businesses to speak directly with financing sources about their particular needs."

Key representatives from the U.S. Small Business Administration, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Rural Development, the Michigan Economic Development Corporation and Northern Initiatives will discuss the availability of business financing and support programs and be available for one-on one discussion with banks, businesses and others.

Several area banks and credit unions will have experts on hand to answer questions and provide information about their programs.

"We hope that businesses and those concerned with the vitality of our businesses and communities will participate. We need to be taking full advantage of all of the tools available to build our economic base just as we are working to strengthen the appeal and amenities in our communities," Erhart said.

Anyone wishing to reserve a space at the forum should contact Tresa Guzniczak at (231) 582-6482 or tresa@northernlakes.net. The forum is free of charge and a continental breakfast will be available.

Local program seeks to repair relationships

MARK LINDSAY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Two long time area residents, active in local outreach programs, have joined forces to launch a new program for those in need.

The pair's new program, Continued Connection, offers training and education to the public on how to repair and maintain improved relationships with people in their lives.

Raeann Dunlop and Christine Lennard both have experience in motivational speaking and working with people's troubled relationships.

"The new program is a reflection of our desire to help people recognize the root causes of the issues they may have in relationships," Dunlop said.

Dunlop is a motivational speaker, author and consultant. She is also founder of the motivational program Future Focus for Teens, which she formed in 2008. She moved to Northern Michigan in 2000 from the mid-Michigan town of St. Johns, where she was born and raised.

Lennard said through her years of experience, she has developed methods to reach individuals and their families to help mend their basic relationships.

"Many times we have individuals being released form jail and returning to their families who have a hard time transitioning back into those relationships" she said.

Lennard has lived in the area for more than 25 years. She currently teaches stress-relieving techniques to residents of area jails as well as private clients. She holds a bachelor's degree from Northern Michigan University and is a graduate of the school for "The Work" with Byron Katie.

The Continued Connection program is not exclusively for people leaving incarceration, it is available to anyone seeking to improve their relationships.

"We are aware that inmates receive counseling and attend programs while in jail, and we are working as an extension of that after release" Dunlop noted.

The new program has several unique features that set it apart from others, both for inmates and the general public, Lennard and Dunlop said. "We encourage participants to attend classes with a partner, someone significant in their life," Lennard said.

Also unique is the program's work to have each participant sponsored by a local business.

"We work to partner every attendee with a potential sponsor," Dunlop said. "Although the program does have fees associated with it, they are mostly covered by sponsors." Each participant is required to pay a percentage of the program's fees on their own, which gives them some ownership, she said.

Sponsors are encouraged to be involved in the success of the client they support at whatever level they desire. Sponsors are involved and informed of the participant's success, as well as given the chance to celebrate the completion of the course with him/her. Donations are also on a tax deductible basis, offering an advantage to contributing to improving someone's life, Lennard and Dunlop said.

Continued Connection offers a 13-week program working with both Dunlop and Lennard directly throughout. The program is split into three parts, six weeks with each of the founders and a final week of joint work focusing on life skills. Each week offers something unique to the participants focusing on different ways to interact with others, and reduce strain and stress from relationships, Lennard and Dunlop said.

"We feel that our clients will leave with a much stronger understanding of why they do the things that cause them to end up in trouble," Lennard noted. "If a person can eliminate the stress in a relationship that has caused them to act out in the past, they often find they have no more need for their bad habits."

Dunlop's book, "Why Not? Put Your Life Together — It Belongs to You," is a key part of the programs curriculum. "We do use the book during the program, along with other literature and life experience," Dunlop noted. For more information on Dunlop, her book and her programs, visit her website at raeanndunlop.com.

Continued Connection offers programs in both Charlevoix and Gaylord currently, with plans to expand as possible. For information on participating in the program or on becoming a sponsor for a participant contact Lennard or Dunlop directly at either (231) 675-9073 or (231) 675-4744.

History program to feature Foster Boat Company

The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society will present its fifth History Speaker Series event for 2011 "Almost Famous Foster Boat Company" at 7 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 26, at the Charlevoix Depot Museum, 307 Chicago Ave., in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix as been the home for many successful ship and pleasure boat builders since the middle of the 19th century. The Foster Boat Company made its mark on the pleasure craft industry, military establishment and growing recreational consumer base. This company provided a boat-hungry middle class an affordable, light, speedy, yet sturdy pleasure craft for their families. During their short history, they played host to a few well-known personalities from Charlevoix, Michigan and elsewhere, like Harry G. Foster.

The event will feature noted historian Geoffrey Reynolds, a 1995 graduate from Wayne State University with a master's degree in library and information science and an archival administration certificate, who has been the director of the Joint Archives of Holland at Hope College since July 2001. He serves as the treasurer of the Dutch-American Historical Commission, membership chairperson for the Association for the Advancement of Dutch American Studies, webmaster of the Michigan Oral History Association, executive director of the Holland Area Historical Society, and newsletter and yearbook editor of the Water Wonderland Chapter of the Antique and Classic Boat Society. His research and writing interests include the pleasure boat building industry of Holland and vintage race boat history.

Geoffrey Reynolds will present the history of Foster Boat Company using his research and images gathered over the years. The event is free and open to the public. For more information, go to www.cchps.info call the society's event coordinator at (231) 582-5326.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Upset out of reach

Rayders come out strong, but fall short against Grayling

GRAYLING — The Charlevoix Rayders varsity football team got off to the start they wanted Friday against Lake Michigan Conference powerhouse Grayling, but unfortunately not the finish as the Vikings came from behind hand the Rayders a 48-33 defeat.

The Rayders jumped to an early 13-0 lead and were up, 27-20, at halftime Friday before the unbeaten Vikings stormed back in the second half to improve to 4-0 overall, 2-0 league.

"Our kids played really well for three quarters," said Charlevoix coach Don Jess, whose team slipped to 1-3, 1-1. "We had the lead and Grayling turned the ball over multiple times. They are a very, very good football team and they're big."

The Rayders were led on the ground by Jamael Kelly, who finished with 63 yards on 16 carries, while quarterback Andrew Potter added 53 yards on nine attempts.

Potter also finished 12 of 18 passing for 160 yards, three touchdowns and two interceptions.

Charlie Hamilton, who finished with six receptions for 60 yards, had TD receptions of 2 and 37 yards, while Josh Hogan added an 18 yard TD reception for the Rayders. Hogan finished with three catches for 35 yards and Tommy Zipp added two for 27.

Marc Durkee returned a kickoff 53 yards for a touchdown for Charlevoix, Potter scored on a 1-yard run, and Kelly added a two point conversion.

"This was a back and forth game for until the end. Our players gave it everything they had. We're not big, but our kids showed tremendous desire and toughness," Jess said.

Friday's game marked the third time this season that a victory fell just out of the Rayders' reach. In the first game of the season, the Rayders lost 26-21 to St. Ignace when a last minute scoring drive fell short. In their second game, they lost 12-6 to Glen Lake in overtime.

The Rayders only have a few days to take what they've learned from those losses and channel it into another upset opportunity when they host perennial conference powerhouse Traverse City St. Francis Friday.

"We don't have time to dwell on this one with Traverse City St. Francis coming to town. They're always a good team, but our kids can play with anyone. We look forward to the opportunity to play them on our home field Friday night."

The Gladiators are 2-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference and 3-1 overall. Last week they beat East Jordan 35-0 and the week before beat Elk Rapids 48-13.

Kickoff is set for 7 p.m. Friday.

Grayling hands JV 1st loss

The Charlevoix Junior Varsity lost their first game of the season to a very good Grayling team 50-6 Thursday night at Kipke Field in Charlevoix. Both teams came into the game undefeated, but sophomore-heavy Grayling jumped out to a 28-6 halftime lead and never looked back.

Taylor Seese came close to breaking loose on several Viking kickoffs. He logged kickoff returns of 58 yards, 55 yards, and 60 yards, and also picked up another 76 yards rushing to lead the Charlevoix offense. Brad Rizzo caught a 9 yard touchdown pass from Nate Moon for Charlevoix's only score on the night.

Leading Charlevoix's defense was J.J. Bottomley with 9 tackles, while Brad Rizzo had 8, and Seese, Brian Noirot, and Logan Eckhardt chipped in with 6 a piece. Seese had a sack, while Noirot and Eckhardt had interceptions. The defense also came

SOCCER

Soccer team drops two

After posting a convincing win over Kalkaska and playing tough with Harbor Springs earlier this month, the Charlevoix Rayder soccer team stumbled twice last week dropping games to Grayling and Marquette.

On Thursday the Rayder's lost a Lake Michigan Conference contest at home to Grayling 7-0. On Friday the Rayders fell in a non conference game with Marquette 8-0.

Rayder head coach Jon Boss said the team continues to be hampered some injuries that have left few reserves on the bench. In Thursday's game Boss had just one reserve and in Friday's game there were two.

Despite the lopsided scores in the two games, Boss said the team is improving as the season moves on.

"We've definitely come a long way since the beginning of the season," Boss said. "We're learning how to possess the ball, string passes together and play as a team."

The Rayder were scheduled to face Traverse City Christian at home on Tuesday and then travel to Elk Rapids on Thursday and Suttons Bay on Saturday.
